By authority of the Board of Directors of the New York Railway Company, and in conformity with the terms of the act of incorporation in that respect, the undersigned Commissioners on Stock Subscriptions give public notice for and on behalf of the directors, and of such company, that books of subscription for the capital stock thereof will be opened on Wednesday, the 28th day of June inst., at the following places in this city, viz.:—

At the banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., No. 11 Nassau street.

At the banking house of the Bank of the Metropolis, No. 13 Union square.

The Company is authorized to construct two Viaduct Railways or branches through the city of New York, on the east and west sides thereof, from a common starting point at or near Chambers street between Broadway and Chatham street; also across the Harlem river and through Westchester county; with power to build additional lines of railway or branches from time to time, in any part of the city or Westchester county. The property acquired by the Company is exempted from taxes and assessments during the period allowed for the final completion of the railway in the city. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of New York are authorized and directed, with the approval of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, to subscribe for five millions of dollars of the stock of the company whenever one million of dollars thereof has been subscribed for by private parties. This conditional amount of stock has been wholly subscribed for and taken by the directors of the company. On the completion of either of the lines of railway to the line of Westchester county the Supervisors of that county are authorized to issue the bonds of the county to such amount as the Supervisors shall deem expedient, to aid in the construction and extension of the railway in and through that county. For the proper equalization of the interest of shareholders who may subscribe and pay in moneys at different times the directors are authorized to issue scrip for interest on such payments, payable out of the earnings.

The terms of subscription will be as follows.—

Ten per cent of the amount of stock subscribed for to be paid in cash at the time of subscription. The residue to be paid as called for by the Board of Directors on a notice of thirty days, but no call at any one time to exceed ten per cent.

Scrip for interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum will be issued by the company payable out of the first earnings of the railway on all instalments paid on stock subscribed for within thirty days after the subscription books shall be opened.

The company reserves the right to close the subscription books at any time after the 29th day of July, 1871.

By order of the Board of Directors.

There are about 130 acres woodland, and the tract will be sold as a whole, or both woodland and farm land divided nearly in half, as at present worked. There is a large shed and a small house on one portion.

The title to all the above properties is indisputable, and the sale will be peremptory; all the fences are in prime condition, and on each of the large farms are beautiful situations for houses, with a very fine water view.
The attention of persons desiring to locate or invest in a delightful part of Maryland is solicited to this sale, and the undersigned will afford visitors every facility to examine the properties. The excellent society on the "Eastern Shore" should enhance their value for residence.

WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., July 20, 1871.

The exercises at the University are drawing to a close, and although every hour makes its demand upon the visitors, the weather has been so cool that attendance upon the various services and social gatherings has not been wearisome. The citizens of Middletown, together with the families of the professors, have extended a generous hospitality to the friends of Methodist education who have gathered hither upon this memorable occasion.

The "woman question," or the propriety of admitting female students to the University, came up for discussion last evening at the meeting of the Trustees. It was resolved that the subject be referred to the President and the Executive Committee, with power.

The Board of Trustees also directed that the new, spacious and beautiful chapel be hereafter used on Sabbaths, and that some member of the faculty preach a discourse. The students are compelled to attend the Methodist church twice each Sabbath. They seem to be perfectly satisfied with the new arrangement, and those of them who are preparing for the ministry will probably feel more at ease in exercising their "gifts and graces" in the college chapel than they would in the village church.

At nine o'clock this morning the faculty, trustees and alumni formed in procession on the campus, and, led by the band, marched through the principal streets and then proceeded to the church to participate in the commencement exercises.

The following was the order of exercises:—

*Excused.

The degrees were conferred which appeared in yesterday's HERALD.

Some of the orations were thoughtful and well written productions, but the majority of them did not possess more merit than similar maiden efforts of newly-fledged college-trained orators.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the church the procession was reformed and marched to the McDonough House, where a bountiful dinner was prepared, to which ample justice was done.

In the evening a select and brilliant assemblage was present at the residence of President Cummings, the ladies and gentlemen appearing in full dress. The President's levee is always looked forward to with interest as the social event of the week, and this occasion was equal to previous gatherings in the white house on the classic hill. Dr. and Mrs. Cummings exerted themselves to the utmost to entertain their guests.

During the evening Dr. Cummings met with an agreeable surprise by receiving a substantial token from the friends of the University of their appreciation of his genial nature, profound scholarship and indefatigable devotion to the interests of the University. Early in the morning Mr. Judd, with characteristic energy, moved quietly around among the people and secured in a very short time $1,000, which was presented to Dr. Cummings, to enable him to take a brief trip to Europe or elsewhere. This was a complete surprise to the faithful and beloved President of the University, who accepted the gift in his usual modest way. This was a simple act of justice, and if such a movement had been contemplated early in the week there would have been no difficulty in obtaining a much larger sum.

Universal regret is expressed at the retirement of Rev. Dr. Newhall from the Chair of English Literature. He is to be succeeded by Rev. George Prentis, who has the reputation of having made extensive acquirements in literature.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Summer Vacation—Teachers' Holiday.

Some people work for love and some for money. Teachers work for love. It is such delightful work to teach. The children are all so sweet, and gentle and beautiful. They are always so clean. It is such a pleasure to feel that one is imparting knowledge. Then the hours are short, and the work is light. Not much to do but to sit around and let the pupils study and recite. There is such a chance for teachers to do good. It is a great pleasure to do good. Very few people know this from experience; therefore a reporter who knows takes pleasure in bearing witness to this truth. Let it be repeated, it is a pleasure to do good. Teachers have a glorious opportunity for doing good. They are told this all the year round by committees of all kinds, by parents, by benevolent clergymen, by everybody. The teachers, tired of this story, might gently inquire why other people shouldn't do a little of the good, but this question would probably remain unanswered if it were asked.

The teachers are very ungrateful to ask for a longer vacation. Why should they be in a hurry to leave those delightful schoolrooms and the society of the bright cherubs under their care? Nothing but a depraved nature could make people want to get rid of children. However all things come to an end, even the delights of teaching, and yesterday the public schools all closed, not to reopen till the 11th of September. The teachers must be lonesome. They deserve the sympathy of all philanthropists. Scattered over the country far away from the dear little ones their hearts will, doubtless, often yearn for the pleasant sounds of the school room. May they be supported during the trials of absence. But to leave the teachers to green grass and shady trees—the public schools of New York are yearly getting nearer to the standard of perfection at which all systems of education should aim, though there is no doubt still great room for improvement. People are beginning to realize that school rooms should be airy and cheerful; that children should be surrounded by the most cheerful influences possible, and that education is not so much cramming as developing. A few persons begin to have a vague idea that teachers who are worth anything do a work that no money can pay, give themselves to their pupils. Music is being recognized more and more as an important agency in education. Teachers find that music takes the place of discipline—so-called—in a great degree. Every school room has its piano now, and at intervals there are music and songs, that harmonize the clashing elements and soothe the tired nerves and brains. Educators are approximating to the true methods. By and by children will have good times getting educated, and will be efficient and self-reliant as the result of the school processes. By and by it will be seen that it is true economy to secure the best quality of heart and brain for the teacher's profession; then and only then will the public schools be what they ought to be.

The average attendance of pupils during the months of June and July compares favorably with the attendance of the corresponding months of former years, the average in June being 82,000, and in July 77,000. In June and July, 1869, the daily average was about 52,759, and in the same months in 1870 it was 62,000.

Extensive alterations and repairs will be made in many of the school houses during the vacation, the most important being in No. 48, in Twenty-eighth street and No. 17, in Forty-seventh street. In the main the accommodations are sufficient, although in some cases there is a lack of room, which will no doubt be remedied as soon as possible.

That there is some work done during the year in the schools may be inferred from the number of teachers, there being 11,000 in the grammar school and 20,000 in the primary department.

THE PRISONER THAT VALLANDIGHAM WAS DEFENDING ESCAPED FROM JAIL.—At midnight the fire bells rang an alarm, and it was found that seven prisoners had dug their way out of the County Jail, among others McGehan, in whose defence Vallandigham lost his life recently. They effected their escape by tearing up a portion of the stone floor of one of the cells in the southeast corner of the prison, excavating a tunnel into the cellar under the Sheriff's residence. The cell from which the tunnel was made is only about eight feet from the cellar, but it must have required considerable labor to excavate the hole of sufficient size to enable the prisoners to crawl through. The earth from the excavation was thrown back into the cell. After reaching the cellar they made their exit through a window into the front yard of the jail, and succeeded in reaching the street before being discovered. The alarm was at once given, and Sheriff Swadener, with several of the police force and others, started in pursuit of the fugitives, who had scattered through the streets and alleys in the vicinity of the jail in various directions. The escape of any more of the inmates, ten of whom remained in the jail, was prevented by the immediate presence of the turnkey, though several of them refused to avail themselves of the opportunity of attempting it.—Dayton (Ohio) Journal, July 17.

CHARLES P. KIMBALL, democratic candidate for Governor of Maine, has been interviewed by one of the indefatigables of the Boston Post. He avowed himself a lifelong democrat—a Douglas democrat in 1860 and a McClellan democrat in 1864. The conversation proceeded:—

CORRESPONDENT—You are in favor, then, of the so-called "new departure?"

MR. KIMBALL (very composedly)—I expressed myself just as I feel with regard to that in my letter of acceptance.

As Mr. Kimball did not express himself at all on that point in his letter of acceptance, or, if at all, very ambiguously, it is no wonder he answered the correspondent's query "very composedly." Mr. Kimball wants to come before the people as a laboring man and a mechanic. Then don't let him labor so much in framing his replies to ordinary questions, or endeavor to avoid the responsibility thereof so mechanically.

VIRGINIA persistently adheres to many exploded ideas of public policy. Among the relics of bygone ages which the Old Dominion so fervently adheres to is that of public executions. One of these questionable exhibitions of the majesty of the law took place yesterday, at Greenville, in the hanging of Thomas McGiffin, who had been convicted of the crime of murder. The execution was witnessed by an immense crowd, a large portion of whom were women and children. The horror of the scene was intensified by the breaking of the rope, which let the half-strangled culprit fall to the ground with a thud that sent half of the spectators terror-stricken to their homes. After half an hour spent in readjusting the scaffold and repairing the rope the trap was again sprung, and McGiffin finally launched into eternity.

THE REPORT OF GENERAL SHALER.—Major General Shaler, commanding the First division of the National Guard, has made his report of the operations of the militia during the recent riots. He fully sets forth all the movements of the troops under his command, speaks warmly in praise of the different commands and of the police, and has a word against the complaints of misconduct on the part of some of the regiments on the day of the riot. There can be no doubt that the work of suppressing the mob was as effectively performed as was possible under the circumstances, and all who took part in it are deserving of praise rather than censure. But the taste of General Shaler's defence against the unwise animadversions of a few firebrands is somewhat questionable—a fact which he seems to recognize. It is better to let these idle and mischievous agitators talk on without noticing their foolish charges than to dignify them by refuting their allegations. The riots are past, and it is time that we had peace.

The Army Purchase Question in England—Another Step Toward Democracy.

The action of Mr. Gladstone in abolishing the system of purchasing rank in the British army is very significant. It shows that he is resolved to march with the spirit of the times and to popularize the institutions of England in accordance with the demands of the people. Being unable to carry this measure through Parliament as a legislative act, in consequence of the determined opposition of the aristocratic and tory party, and especially of the hostility of the House of Peers, he made a flank movement and induced the Queen to issue a royal warrant abolishing the purchase of commissions in the army. This he announced in the House of Commons on the night of Thursday last. We do not know whether this act of Her Majesty is retrospective or not, whether the whole system of commissions is to be changed at once or only new commissions are to be affected by it; but the change is evidently both radical and important. Mr. Gladstone said the Ministers had advised Her Majesty to take this action, which effectually disposed of the question in accordance with the manifest will of the country.

Seldom has anything occurred in Parliament that created a greater impression. The Premier's declaration was received with vehement cheering in the House of Commons, though Mr. Disraeli and the tory members generally were unable to restrain their anger. They bitterly denounced what they termed the arbitrary course of the government, which they were hardly prepared for. Mr. Gladstone was defiant, and challenged the opposition to move a vote of want of confidence. In the House of Lords Earl Granville defended the policy of the Ministry. Our special telegraphic despatches depicting the scene represent the Lords as being deeply moved, though decorous in their demonstrations. The opinion outside was that the action of the Ministry was bold or even desperate. The public, generally approving of this action, seemed to anticipate from it results favorable to democratic progress. Such is the substance of the news received from London.

The opposition press and members of Parliament assail the conduct of the Ministry as unprecedented and a violation of established usage. Some go so far as to say it is unconstitutional. There is some reason in this, for the Crown to anticipate or override the action of Parliament in such an important measure is arbitrary—is going much further in asserting monarchical prerogative than the kings or queens of England have been in the habit of going in late times. The measure is a good one, no doubt, and we cannot but admire the boldness of the Queen and Ministry in overruling opposition so promptly on this question, and in conceding at once so much to popular opinion; but it gives the opposition an argument, and it might prove a dangerous precedent should a despotic monarch hereafter choose to assert the same prerogative to force illiberal measures upon the country. True, Mr. Gladstone assumed that the House of Lords, though impugning the government plan for the abolition of the purchase system, had failed to sustain that system; but this was begging the question and savored rather of political trickery. It is evident he was afraid and did not wish to leave the matter to a vote of the Peers. In great popular measures, as in that of the Reform bill, for example, the Crown has been in the habit of overcoming the opposition of the House of Lords by the creation of new liberal Peers. It has rarely of late years taken the power from the legislative body over important measures, even if it could constitutionally do so.

We suppose, therefore, that the exercise of the monarchical prerogative in abolishing the system of purchasing commissions in the army will lead to great discussion, and will try to the utmost the strength of both the Ministry and the opposition. Mr. Gladstone has, undoubtedly, foreseen this and weighed the matter well. His challenge to the opposition to move a vote of want of confidence shows that. He feels assured, we suppose, that if a vote of want of confidence were carried he could safely appeal to the country; for the measure he has forced by a sort of political coup d'état is a very popular one. In the case of a dissolution of Parliament and a new Parliament being elected Mr. Gladstone would, probably, obtain a much larger majority than he has now. The apprehension of such a result may calm down the opposition, or rally to the support of the Ministry a sufficient number of moderately conservative and independent members to prevent a vote of want of confidence being carried.

This act of Mr. Gladstone shows that he is a bolder statesman than the world generally has given him credit for being. It shows, too, that he is disposed to advance with the liberal and progressive spirit of the age, and that he will not endanger the peace and government of England by obstinately opposing public opinion. The statesmen of England, when in power, feel the responsibility of their position. Mr. Gladstone is but following the example of other distinguished conservatives who were his predecessors. The Duke of Wellington carried the Catholic Emancipation bill when in power, though he had been opposed to that measure before. It was the same with Sir Robert Peel and the Corn laws. It is true statesmanship to yield needful, liberal and progressive measures when public opinion demands them.

The abolition of the purchase of army commissions is a heavy blow to aristocratic privileges in England and an important stride toward democracy. The purchase of commissions was one of the oldest privileges of the aristocracy and wealthy classes of Great Britain. The army was an asylum for the younger members of the titled families. The positions of rank in the army were sold to them because the pay would enable them to live in a style that was supposed to be proper to their birth by the investment of their limited means. This system of commissions had nothing to do with merit, and rarely was merit in the army recognized unless backed by money or powerful family influence. The action of Mr. Gladstone will tend to improve the efficiency of the army, while it opens the service to merit for all classes. Thus, one by one, the props of aristocratic privilege in England are being thrown down. The aristocracy and monarchy cannot resist the democratic progress of the age. Church disestablishment, an extension of suffrage to all classes, the ballot, the abolition of the law of primogeniture and the hereditary peerage, with other liberal measures, must follow in time. No matter who is in power, the result will be the same. Mr. Gladstone comprehends this and acts accordingly. Mr. Disraeli, as his works show, understands this also, and were he at the helm of affairs he would go as far, probably, as the present Premier, or farther. We have set an example of the success of democratic government—have shown that the largest liberty is compatible with conservatism and strength in government, and the people of Great Britain are following us. The American republic, the last born of great nations, is fast leading the world to freedom and a higher civilization.

The New Spanish Ministry.

According to our special despatch from Madrid the resignation of the Ministry was caused by dissensions with regard to the International. Marshal Serrano advocated the rigorous suppression of that organization, while his colleagues favored a more conciliatory policy. The Cortes was somewhat uproarious on the subject of the Ministerial resignation, but noise and fuss are of such frequent occurrence in that assembly that its unruly character has become almost proverbial. The names of the new Cabinet which has been formed by Marshal Serrano are not familiar to us, with the exception of Admiral Malcampo, who till recently had command of the naval forces at Havana. His appointment as Minister of Marine seems to indicate a purpose of carrying on the war against the Cuban insurgents with vigor, but in every other respect it is without significance. The other members of the Ministry, if their names have been correctly reported, are obscure men, and will probably be short-lived. It is possible that the new Cabinet is only a temporary arrangement, in order that the King may gain time to form another strong and popular ministry. We cannot close our eyes to the fact that King Amadeus has much hard work to accomplish before he can find himself happy on the Spanish throne. Spain being a most Catholic country, it is a drawback to him that he is a member of the anathematized House of Savoy. But it is to be hoped that all things may yet go on well in old Spain;

Italian Opera and Its Brightest Ornament.

Seventeen years ago the present dingy old structure on the Battery, then the finest opera house in America, was crowded with the élite of the metropolis, and the vast assemblage was held spellbound by the magic of a voice such as was never heard before or since in this city. Who among the listeners on that memorable occasion can forget the tidal wave of enthusiasm than shook the building when Mario appeared as Gennaro and his queenly wife came forward as the guilty Duchess of Borgia? The exciting auction sale of seats and even the infatuated English lady who followed the handsome tenor like his shadow will be remembered by the old habitués of the opera. On Tuesday night last Mario bade a final farewell to the stage at the scene of his greatest triumphs, Covent Garden, and received an ovation such as rarely falls to the lot of any artist. It was a brilliant and fitting close to thirty-three years of faithful service in the cause of art. But these "farewells" of artists are not to be interpreted according to the strict sense of the word, and particularly in the case of Mario, who announced farewell performances even before he visited this country. All theatre-goers in this country have been accustomed for many years to the "farewells" of Forrest, and still theveteran dons the Gladiator's tunic and the royal robes of Lear. It is a hard struggle for the sovereigns of the footlights to relinquish the sceptre and step aside for younger aspirants. Therefore we shall not be astonished if the favorite sexagenarian of the Italian opera should take it in his head to commence another series of "farewells." He has an excellent opportunity now to do so by revisiting our shores, where he once received such a hearty welcome. Here is a chance for the management of the Nilsson troupe to become famous and earn the gratitude and the dollars of the New York public. Nilsson and Mario—the rising and the setting sun—would create together such a furor as would even wake up the operatic fossils around Irving place. The natural regret of all lovers of music to bid a farewell to this brightest ornament of Italian opera is heightened by the fact that he leaves no successor worthy of him. Tenors of even respectable calibre are scarcer now than ever, and there is not one capable of filling Mario's place. It is an unwelcome but yet undeniable fact, that as far as voices are concerned the Italian opera stage has retrograded sadly. Mario, Grisi, Tamburini and Lablache formed a quartet which we cannot hope to hear in these days; and yet they were but the successors of still greater artists. The next season of music in this city promises well, and if the managers fulfil but half of their bounteous promises we need not look with envy and regret at the prospectuses of the capitals of Europe. What with Parepa-Rosa and her complete English opera company, Rullman and the Vienna Lady Orchestra, and the Nilsson troupe, we shall have enough music to satisfy even the most exacting theatre-goer. It will not be the fault this time of the directors of the Academy of Music if the opera be not successful in the fall. They are making many important and much-needed changes in the interior arrangements of the building, not the least of which is a complete alteration of the plan of the dress circle, which is to be modelled after the most fashionable of the London theatres. Steinway Hall is also to be fitted up in grand style for the reception of the Lady Orchestra. We trust that this season will be the commencement of a long and brilliant term of first class musical entertainments, and that the latent talent of America may have a chance at last to assert its rights.

OFFICER LOGAN, who interfered with another officer against orders on the day of the riot, was dismissed the force yesterday. His action consisted in trying to save a sickly fellow from a clubbing during the mêlée on Twelfth street, and was not in itself so reprehensible as to demand dismissal; but his conduct upon the trial was enough to insure it.

A New Departure in Insurance.

The assembling in this city of Commissioners connected with the Insurance Department from over twenty States points to a new departure in the history of insurance. An official report of the first session, from May 24 to June 2, has just appeared, and the public are indebted to Mr. Henry S. Olcott, Secretary of the Convention, for this able compilation. In his excellent preface to it he has given a succinct history of the different branches of insurance.

Several important addresses were made to the Convention by gentlemen who have been for years connected with this interest. The information they afforded as to the practical working of the system will prove of general value, and the statistics, furnished by the most experienced authorities, will materially assist the future labors of the Convention, which is to meet again on the 18th of October. From Mr. H. A. Oakley, President of the National Board of Underwriters, we learn that during the twelve years the New York State Insurance Department has been in operation the aggregate amount of capital employed in the business of fire insurance was $483,938,761; that the amount of premiums received by the New York companies was $168,437,257, and that the losses paid were $94,849,497. In other States the aggregate amount of premiums received was $122,000,307, with losses of $73,829,416. Mr. G. W. Savage, President of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters and of the International Insurance Company of New York, alluded to the opinion expressed by Lord Mansfield, "that the relation which exists between the assured and the assurer should be one of good faith." Mr. Savage remarked that in consideration of the low rates at present charged to cover the fire risks it was impossible for a company to verify the statements made by applicants, and that in consequence a false affidavit should be regarded by our courts as a fraud. In speaking of the importance of fire insurance to the community he asked who would risk the vast sums of money now daily invested in all the large cities of the Union, and particularly in New York, in buildings and merchandise, if it were not for the protection given by fire insurance. Would mills or elevators, or any of those structures which have become absolutely necessary to our civilization, be built if not protected against loss by fire? Of the advantage of this risk resting with a corporation rather than with an individual he said:—"The responsibility of a company and their ability to pay can be known exactly, while it would be difficult to determine that of an individual." This is certainly a plea for more legal protection from fraud for all companies engaged in the insurance business, of whatever kind, than is usually given; the interests of the community demand it, for it is known that the rates charged by the fire companies are regulated with a view to ascertain percentage of deceit among their customers, which the law, it seems, fails to recognize. Mr. Savage testified that these corporations are doing their full share toward the building up of this country and promoting its advancement and prosperity.

In the marine department of insurance the progress of modern nautical science is illustrated by memoranda of premiums, obtained from the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company of this city, which showed an average reduction of about one-half in the rates paid now as compared with those charged at the beginning of the present century. Mr. Batterson, who represented the Travellers' Insurance Company of Hartford, stated that from practical results it is ascertained that the law of average in regard to accidents was equally reliable with that of mortality. For instance, for every person accidentally killed it is found that about eighty persons receive non-fatal injuries, producing an average disability of twenty days. The monthly average for accidental dead claims had been $7,726, and the monthly average for personal injuries non-fatal, $7,514. Mr. Elizur Wright, late Commissioner of the State of Massachusetts, unfolded his views of the valuation of policies and the question of surrender values.

The history of life insurance, as embodied in this report, is remarkable. It has been of slow and laborious growth, but its nature and influence being better understood, it has now become very popular. This is indicated by the figures given in the State reports, which show that since the establishment, in 1859, of a State Insurance department the volume of the business has been about fifteen times as great as that of the previous sixteen years. This progress is due to a variety of causes; but we notice more discernment than formerly on the part of our leading companies in their dealings with the public. This is recognized and appreciated. We have already alluded to the decision of the Equitable Life in regard to permits to the members of our militia. As an illustration of the good faith growing up between the public and these corporations we may mention that the above company, which was organized at the time when life insurance took a fresh start and under the influence of an altered condition of things, has only had occasion to dispute in our courts three claims—which, however, were very flagrant cases—out of more than sixty thousand policies. The Mutual Life, as well as the Equitable Life, have contributed from their books statistics which have formed the basis of some valuable tables showing how various are the laws and requirements of the different States. Much reform, it must be admitted, is needed, and if the object is attained for which Mr. G. W. Miller invited this Convention, and which he described in his opening address as being to create uniformity of State action relative to the government of insurance companies, much good will result. If wise and harmonious legislation be adopted it will tend to secure the interests of the assured and the stability and economical administration of the companies.

THE RIVERSIDE PARK MATTER reached yesterday its final determination for the present in the confirmation by Judge Barnard, of the Supreme Court, of the supplemental or amended report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment. This report was made in conformity with certain additional allowances ordered by the Judge to be made to owners of portions of the Bloomingdale road and the old Twelfth avenue embraced within the Park. There is still a good deal of dissatisfaction both as to the allowances granted to owners of property taken for the Park and in the assessments upon the property adjacent. There is the usual outcry of favoritism. Some claim that they have been left out in the cold altogether. It is not unlikely that the disaffected will appeal from the decision of Judge Barnard and that before this Park gets beyond its present stage—a park on paper—there will be a long and hotly contested litigation in the courts in regard to it.

Reconstruction in France.

At the present moment France is astir in consequence of her municipal elections. These elections will result in a fresh expression of the sentiments of the French people, and of course must exercise a potent influence on the policy of the government. The supplementary elections encouraged M. Thiers in his policy of delay. It remains to be seen what will follow from the municipal elections. Some facts in connection with the recent elections deserve to be noted. It is most significant that M. Gambetta has been sent to the Assembly by four different constituencies—Paris, Marseilles, Bordeaux and the Department of the Var. It is also significant that M. Rouher, so recently omnipotent in France, was defeated by a crushing majority in the Charente, where it was supposed he would have but slight opposition. Of the one hundred and seventeen vacancies ninety-one have been filled by men who declare themselves to be moderate republicans and supporters of M. Thiers. Only one legitimist and one monarchist found a place. The Assembly will soon adjourn until October, and during the interval we are likely to hear something of the plans of the various parties. It is rumored that Thiers, encouraged by the late elections, means to retain in office MM. Favre, Simon and Picard, and that Gambetta, after he has organized the left, will be taken into the Ministry. For the present the tide is more in favor of the republic than it has been since the re-establishment of order. The monarchists are not inactive, neither are the imperialists; but M. Thiers is unquestionably popular as the Executive Chief. Things are safe until October. After that, with such men as M. Rouher and M. Ledru-Rollin in the Assembly and Gambetta trying to lead the left, we may look with confidence for something like life.

The Southern Democracy.

The democracy down South are in a transition state. The "new departure" has caused a great commotion among them, from the Susquehanna to the Rio Grande, and from the Chesapeake to the wild woods of Arkansas. In Maryland, the other day, in their State Convention, the democrats, not being fully prepared to take the new or to abandon their old departure, compromised the matter by splitting the difference, and they contrived to split it by doing without a platform of any sort. This ought to be satisfactory to all the party, for it leaves the Bourbons and the progressives each to take their own course. This is as much as could be expected from the Maryland democrats at their first Convention on the new departure, with all their "time-honored democratic principles" against the "blasted nigger;" but in or before the month of July, 1872, they will doubtless, with a mighty effort, gulp him down, though it may be as the whale swallowed Jonah, only to gulp him up again.

In Virginia the democrats, under their reconstructed title of the conservative party, are to have a State Convention in August for the purpose of a party reorganization. They accepted the situation in accepting the reconstruction of their State according to the terms of Congress. What they mean, therefore, by a reorganization of the party we are left to conjecture. We suspect, however, that they mean to drop the slow coach called the conservative party, and to reproclaim themselves as belonging to the national democratic party on the new departure, with some reservations in favor of the time-honored principles of Jefferson and the resolutions of '98 and '99.

In North Carolina the democracy are evidently resolved upon a reconstruction of the State which may bring them into collision with Congress, and the political excitement throughout the Commonwealth keeps open the field for the Ku Klux and anti-Ku Klux desperadoes and outlaws of all descriptions.

In South Carolina the chivalry are under the despotic sway of Sambo, and with four hundred thousand "niggers" in the State against three hundred thousand whites, including the landholders, we can't perceive how Sambo is to be ruled out. The Palmetto chivalry, however, would have their Southern confederacy, and in their late slaves, lifted up to be their masters, they have their reward.

In Georgia Mr. Alexander H. Stephens and the fiery Toombs, who is himself a magazine of skyrockets and Chinese crackers, have, in the wake of Jeff Davis and the "lost cause," been playing the mischief with the "new departure." They will have a party of their own on the "old departure." And the spirit and the men for a similar movement are waking up in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas. There are some democratic bolters against the "folly of Vallandigham" in Tennessee; but the active managers of the party in that State have learned a world of wisdom from "Andy Johnson," and are not going back to those democratic principles which were swept away and buried by the Deluge.

Kentucky, of all the Southern States, is the greatest puzzle to the political philosophers. First, her neutrality in the rebellion, and then her two State governments, one Union and one rebel, gave "Honest Old Abe Lincoln" more trouble than Louisiana, shutting up the mouths of the Mississippi, or Virginia thundering at the gates of Washington. The divided allegiance of Kentucky, between the Union and the Southern confederacy in the war, was a puzzle; but with the return of her rebel soldiers after the war she became a case for reconstruction. Left to herself, however, she has drifted slowly along, until now we find her democracy accepting the new and fighting for the old departure. All taken together, including those of Kentucky, we apprehend that the Southern democracy will make a lively time of it in the Democratic Presidential Convention of 1872.

TEXAS appears to be perfectly satisfied with her present limited banking facilities. Since the passage of the act of July 12, 1870, authorizing the issue of fifty-four millions of dollars additional circulation in the Western and Southern States the banking circulation in Texas has been increased but one hundred and forty-five thousand dollars.

The Board of Health and the Tenement Houses.

A number of families have just been removed from the five-story tenement house in Cherry street called Gotham court, in order that it might undergo disinfection and fumigation. This den surpasses in filth and wretchedness the dirtiest cellar in the Seven Dials. It is a huge towering pile, five stories high, and every avenue or corridor running through it is as foul as Vulcan's stithy and every breath of air to be found under its roof is tainted and rendered thick with foul poisons. Yet here children were being reared, and men and women existed, and even clung to their rank sty as if they enjoyed happiness and health there, when the health officers came to take them out of it. This Gotham court is probably the most noisome tenement house in the city, and yet to some degree, and in many instances to a degree almost as replete with disease and foulness, every tenement house in the city partakes of the worst and most deadly characteristics of this Gotham court.

There are 20,000 tenement houses in New York city, and in these fully half a million people are crowded; but some of them are of a sort that deserve some better name than that of tenements. Some of them are inhabited by only three or four families—the families of mechanics and skilled workmen, whose incomes permit them, by close saving, to live in flats and take care, to some extent, of the health and morals of their children by keeping them out of the dirtier crowds of tenement house families, and yet will not allow of their living altogether to themselves or in the cleaner thoroughfares devoted especially to millionnaires. These are not, however, a majority of the tenement houses. The greater portion of them are huge barracks, littered all over with dirt and festering humanity, something like the plague spot that is called Gotham court. There are two hundred and ninety-four thousand persons living in such as these in New York city, according to the report of the Board of Health. The death rate, taking the average of all these, is seven per cent per annum, while the rate of social destruction—crime engendered by the pestilent associations among the mass—is beyond calculation. It is probable that seven-tenths of all the crimes committed in New York city—the murders and burglaries and those other demoralizing crimes that are included in beggary and prostitution—spring from the training of tenement houses. From these also spring the foul gases that make our epidemics, the seeds of infection that produce choleras and fevers, the deadly blights that maim and degrade the children of our very poor.

As the great evil of the metropolis the tenement house system calls for some immediate and great remedy. The action of the Board of Health will not cure the evil any more than it will permanently cure Gotham court. It will give that place a slight scrubbing, which it will have forgotten in a week. There needs something more than partial disinfectants. There is required some means of attracting the wretches in these dens to other localities. It is thought that the Viaduct Railway and the numerous other rapid transit schemes, by which the poorest of our populace may contrive to go farther away from the busy marts, may effect a change for the better in the matter, but it is a change that will hardly be noticeable. Until North and East River are bridged at every cross street of the city, and the great barriers of water that now circumscribe the limits of the metropolis are substantially removed, the wretchedly poor of the city must herd together like wild beasts for the bare maintenance of life.

Another Land to Conquer.

Levuka, Ovalau, of the Fiji group, exports nine thousand bales of cotton of the best sea island quality—better, it is said, than that of South Carolina—per year. It has a newspaper called the Fiji Times, whose columns are well filled with advertisements, and whose motto is—"Sworn to no master, of no sect am I." Among the advertisements is one headed—"San Francisco and overland to England." The natives wear for dresses the satin-like bark of a tree, which, it is thought, might be successfully used in the manufacture of printing paper. But isn't this rather "too thin?" Levuka is becoming a port of considerable importance as a coaling station since the establishment of the line of steamers between Australia and San Francisco. In the number of the Times before us we notice a column of maritime news under the head of "Dates of Departures of Labor Vessels." That may be considered a "new name for it," when we read that a number of vessels have sailed on a "labor cruise"—that is, to pick up laborers wherever they can "gather them in" from among the adjacent islands. The laborer is, of course, worthy of his hire, and in the Fijis the Europeans rope him in according to the higher law. The principal civilized occupants of the island consist of about fourteen hundred Englishmen and some forty Americans—one of whom, a New York boy, has just returned home after twenty-three years' absence among the Fijis. How long will it be before some of our "manifest destiny" men will want to annex the group of Fiji Islands to the great American group of States?

THE FAMINE AND THE CHOLERA IN PERSIA.—The latest news from the East is of the most distressing character. Persia is suffering from that terrible visitation, the cholera. After months of famine, during which time the sufferings of the unfortunate Persians have been fearful in the extreme, the cholera now appears to complete their measure of misery. Dreadful, indeed, as were the sufferings of the people with the one, they will be increased tenfold now with the cholera extending and laying waste whole districts. Since 1817 we have had nothing so dreadful to record. It almost seems as if the cholera was again about to make its tour of death as it did in the first quarter of the present century.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS for the quarter ending June 30, 1871, show a somewhat remarkable turn in the tide of emigration. The number of actual immigrants arriving at the port of New York during the period mentioned was 101,015, of whom 30,814 were natives of Germany, 26,149 were from Ireland, and 29,529 from England and other British localities.

GLADSTONE'S COUP D'ETAT.

Herald Special Report from London.

General Amazement at the Manner in Which the Purchase System Has Been Abolished.

The Vote of the House of Lords Anticipated.

The Action of the Government Severely Criticised.

OPINIONS OF THE LONDON PRESS.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The following despatch has been received from our correspondent:—

LONDON, July 20, 1871.

There is great excitement among the intelligent classes at the extraordinary action of the government regarding the bill for the reorganization of the British army.

The most important part of the bill, the abolishment of the purchase system, was approved by the House of Commons.

But the vote in the House of Lords was not on the main issue, now intended to be final.

ANTICIPATING THE ACTION OF THE LORDS.

The Lords by their vote only rejected the amendment which had been made in the House of Commons, without taking action with regard to the rest of the bill.

The government thereupon assumed that the House of Lords was not opposed to the principal measure of the bill, and abolished the purchase system by the royal prerogative for the regulation of the army.

THE TIMES SEVERE ON MR. GLADSTONE.

The London Times says the act of the Ministers abolishing the system of purchase of army commissions by royal warrant is a violent wrench of the constitution and a wanton setting aside of the will of the House of Lords.

The London Times regrets that this grave issue has been raised, but expresses the hope that the Lords will, in their future action, think of the effect upon the officers of the army, rather than the indignity to their own privileges.

THE DAILY NEWS IN FAVOR OF GLADSTONE'S MEASURE.

The London Daily News approves the conduct of the government in making themselves the exponents of the popular will, and recommends that the Lords pass the bill abolishing the purchase of army commissions.

THE TELEGRAPH EULOGIZING THE MINISTRY.

The London Telegraph is exultant over the action of the Ministry, and says that Mr. Gladstone will be the more popular for vindicating the dignity of the House of Commons, in securing the harvest of its laborious session, and for reorganizing the defences of the country and guarding the interests of the army.

THE POST AND STANDARD CENSURE THE COURSE OF THE MINISTRY.

The London Post says the course of the governmen thas been somewhat unconstitutional, bringing, it believes, Parliament into contempt before the people.

MRS. GAMP INDIGNANT.

The London Standard asserts that Mr. Gladstone has grossly violated the privileges of Parliament, wasting its time and precipitating a constitutional crisis.

MR. DISRAELI'S OPINION OF THE MEASURE.

Mr. Disraeli, in the House of Commons, criticises the Ministry for appealing to the prerogative of the Crown, and says that the question might have been settled without resorting to such an extreme measure.

THE QUEEN'S WARRANT BEFORE THE COMMONS.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Cardwell, Secretary of State for War, laid on the table the Queen's warrant abolishing the system of puchase of army commissions.

Official Announcement of the New Cabinet Formed by Marshal Serrano.

The Cause of the Ministerial Resignation.

Shall the International Society be Suppressed or Not?

THE PROCEEDINGS IN THE CORTES.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The following despatch has been received from the HERALD correspondent at the capital of Spain:—

MADRID, July 20, 1871.

The formation of a new Cabinet has been officially announced.

The Ministerial crisis was brought about through dissensions regarding the International Society.

MARSHAL SERRANO DOWN ON THE INTERNATIONAL.

Marshal Serrano persisted in proposing rigorous measures against the members of the International. He held that it was necessary for the welfare of the country that this revolutionary organization should be put down and all its prominent members ordered to leave the country.

ZORILLA IN FAVOR OF A CONCILIATORY POLICY.

Minister Zorilla and two of his colleagues opposed the motion, expressing an opinion that the importance of the International Society had been exaggerated and that no danger was threatening from that organization.

Further discussions widened the breach still more and led to the resignation of the whole Ministry, which was accepted by the King.

HOW THE MINISTERIAL RESIGNATION WAS RECEIVED IN THE CORTES.

There was great uproar in the Cortes when the news of the resignation of the Cabinet was communicated, but after some remarks from the Ministerial benches the excitement calmed down.

A message was received from the King saying that a new Ministry would be formed within twenty-four hours. The Cortes thereupon suspended its session until a new Cabinet is chosen.

THE NEW CABINET.

Marshal Serrano, who has been entrusted by the King with the formation of a new Ministry, has already designated the following members:—

Minister of Justice.........Señor Gomez.
Minister of Foreign Affairs.Señor Candan.
Minister of Marine.........Admiral Malcampo.
Minister of Finance........Señor Camadro.

FILIBUSTERS FOR CUBA.

Canada Taking a Hand in the Cuban War—Two Hundred Recruits Enlisted in Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 21, 1871.

It has just become known that an agent of the New York Cuban Junta has been in Montreal, recruiting for an expedition, and that he has met with considerable success, having enlisted a number of volunteer officers and about 200 men. The officer who has charge of the Montreal Branch is is Mr. Ben Wood, Major of the Prince of Wales Rifles. Captain Stormes of the Iowa corps, with two officers of the Victorias, are also engaged. They have succeeded in raising 200 men, many of whom are returned members of the Red River expedition. They are all hardy and desperate fellows, and determined to carry out the programme laid down for them. They are to receive $100 bounty before leaving Montreal, and on arriving in New York they are to receive six months' pay in advance. They will receive orders to start as soon as the steamer Virgin arrives in New York from Trinidad. It is said that a number of the Hochelaga Light Infantry have promised to enroll themselves in the expedition, but they are waiting for an advance payment. It is certain that a large number of desperate characters who are without money or employment, have been enlisted, and that they will leave this city as soon as they will receive orders. The authorities are apparently unaware of the affair.

The detectives are satisfied that the affair is nothing more than a cheap attempt to create sympathy for Mrs. Fair, the convicted murderess, on the ground that she is a persecuted woman.

The whole business portion of the city of Truckee, Cal., on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, and the great lumber depot of the Sierra Nevada region, was burned again yesterday. The loss is immense.

THIERS.

Conversations with the President of the French Republic.

His Opinion of the Orleans Princes—He Doubts the Legitimists and Believes the Bonapartes Dead—Ungenerous Treatment by Bismarck—No More War Estimates.

PARIS, July 4, 1871.

Perhaps if the world understood M. Thiers better it would more respect his present position, and would not regard him as merely holding on to the name of republic while watching the opportunity to cheat what must now be accepted as the general aspiration of France for that form of government. It is with a view to give a current insight into his real thoughts than seems to be current that I jot down the result, in a summary, rambling way, of several recent conversations with this remarkably interesting man. And first for his much misunderstood relations with the Orleans Princes. He has for these gentlemen

"UNE TENDRE SOLICITUDE."

He loves them as though they were his children, but he has felt assured the moment was not propitious for any claim on their part to the throne, and he could not lend them his influence, as he appreciated the fact that to run counter to the strong republican tendency of the nation was to insure a terrible civil war. As the result of much attention paid to the matter

M. THIERS BECAME CONVINCED

last fall that throughout France a republican feeling was predominant. He was much struck to observe this to be the case in the army also, and as he knew that the majority of the Orleanists would deplore any action on the part of the Princes likely to render them unpopular, he has all along counselled their remaining quiet. It is only just to say that none of the Princes have evinced the slightest desire to force matters. They but wished to reside in France. It is affecting to see those exiles so absolutely satisfied with the mere freedom to come and go at pleasure. They love France too much, M. Thiers feels sure, to endanger her peace, more especially at such a moment. This answer they have made to all those more ardent adherents of theirs who urged the issue of programmes and the like. They but ask to SERVE FRANCE, NOT RULE HER.

Secure in the honesty of their intentions, the real and unaffected patriotism of them all, M. Thiers has had great pleasure in receiving the Princes. He was prudent enough, however, while inviting them, to invite at the same time the most marked among the republican Deputies. This was done to prevent the comments which it was known the legitimist organs and the Bonaparte organs would surely make. It is false that M. Thiers demanded a promise from the Duke d'Aumale and the Prince de Joinville that they would not take their seats in the Assembly when the elections were validated. M. Thiers deems their right unquestionable, and anticipates not the slightest danger from their presence, certainly not from their actions. In fact he deems it wiser the Princes should be seen everywhere. "The more they mingle with the people the more will the latter learn to esteem them and the less will they fear political manœuvres on their part," says M. Thiers; and he adds:—"They are not parties from whom we may expect coup d'états; they are too honest, too straightforward for that."

He has

LESS CONFIDENCE IN THE LEGITIMISTS,

and less liking for them, and watches them closely. It was in this duty of watchfulness that he checked the eager recruiting of General the Baron de Charette, who was raising a strong legion in Brittany.

THE ELECTIONS.

The result, so far as known, of the elections, affords infinite pleasure to M. Thiers, who, by the advent of so many new supporters in the Assembly, is more than ever master of the situation. He thinks that this unequivocal expression of the desires and tendencies of France proves the possibility of the successful establishment of a "moderate republic" here, and will bend his utmost energies to its accomplishment. He is sincerely desirous of gratifying the "majority" and will strive against all or any attempt at reviving monarchical institutions.

M. Thiers is pleased to see the country

PRONOUNCE SO COMPLETELY AGAINST THE BONAPARTES.

In the case of Monsieur Rouher, to secure whose election a million of francs were expended, the defeat is marked and will doubtless crush the hopes of even the most sanguine adherents of the ex-Emperor. M. Thiers considers that all danger from that quarter is averted, and will now labor heartily for the firmest republican foundation. He is strongly in favor of the return of the Assembly to Paris. He bitterly descants upon the ungenerous of the troubles which the Commune made for the government of France, and is pained to hear so constantly of the cruelties of the Prussians in the invaded districts. He has directed that strenuous representations be made on the subject, and complained personally a few days since to General Falrice, the Prussian commander at St. Denis, who was paying him a visit.

NO MORE WAR ESTIMATES.

M. Thiers will not have any of the estimates of the War Department reduced, and is, above all, desirous that the new and extensive fortifications to be erected around Paris be at once commenced. At his orders the surveys have been made, and I am assured that in some places the military engineers are already at work.

THE AMOUNT OF LABOR

gone through with by M. Thiers is enormous, but he is in excellent spirits. The success of the loan cheered him, and now the result of the elections gives him renewed vigor. He receives daily, from all parts of the country, the strongest and in many cases the most unexpected adhesions.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

A Malicious Slander Refuted.

MEMPHIS, July 21, 1871.

The following will appear in to-morrow's Avalanche:—

MEMPHIS, July 21, 1871.

Before and since my arrival in Memphis this day my attention has been called to slanderous articles in certain radical newspapers, which attack my private character in connection with that of a lady who, it is falsely stated, was travelling under my charge. It is deemed due to myself, as well as to my personal friends, to state unequivocally and without delay that the story, in the whole and in all its essential parts, is unmistakably the instigation of malace and is hereby pronounced utterly false.

KU KLUX IN KENTUCKY.

A Full Exposure of the Kentucky Ku Kluxes.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 21, 1871.

Nine men were brought before United States Commissioner Beatty to-day, charged with being concerned in recent Ku Klux outrages near Fitchburg Estille county, Ky., in which one man was killed and several wounded, all of the Ku Klux party.

Barry Vaughan, one of the negroes Ku Kluxed, testified to an attack on his house, in which one of the Ku Klux was killed, and recognized one of the prisoners as engaged in it.

Thomas Payne, one of the Ku Klux party, gave State's evidence. He said he belonged to a Ku Klux gang, and had joined it to escape their persecutions. He was with the party who attacked Vaughan's house, and pointed out six of the prisoners whom he recognized in the party, and mentioned the names of a number of others not present. He had been warned by them to leave the State and his house had been searched for him. He had joined the band to escape injury and learn all about them, so that he could inform on them and get satisfaction for his wrongs. He told of several bands of Ku Klux in Estille county organized and under orders of their leaders. He repeated several instances of outrages by them when he was forced to be present.

It appears that the cause of their organization, which is known to exist only in the mining district of Estille and Powell counties, was the entrance of an Ohio company into the district, who employed a large number of negro hands, thus arousing jealousy and ill feeling among the whites in that vicinity. Payne's evidence, if true, is most important, as it is the first instance of a so-called Ku Klux exposing his organization and companions.

It is stated that Cockerill, a member of the Kentucky State Senate, is at the bottom of the organization. He was frequently referred to by the members as their leader, and it seemed to be generally understood among them that he was a prominent mover in their affairs. The prisoners were held in $1,000 bail each to answer at the October term of the federal Court.

Payne was interviewed this evening and gave an account of the secrets of the Klan, as follows:—"I first signified my intention of joining the band to Henry Adams, working in the same drift with me. He took me to the middle of the drift, and in the presence of John Patricking, after asking me to put my left hand on my heart and hold up my right, he administered the following oath:—

> You do solemnly swear you will not reveal a sign or password of this secret organization to which you now attach yourself; also, you will aid and assist any brother in any difficulty in which he may become involved, and you will support the democracy; and may you suffer your body to be cut in four parts and cast to the four quarters of the earth before you will reveal a sign or password of this secret organization.

There was also something about negroes in it. Adams also gave me signs and passwords to recognize a brother at a distance. We raise the hat with the right hand, pull the brim down over the right eye. The answer is the same with the left hand. Both then draw their left hands across their mouths, as if washing, and strike their breasts with their right. The grips are made by grasping hands in the usual manner, with the thumb pressing slightly between the other's thumb and forefinger, saying, "I am all right; how are you?" He answers, "I am all right." I reply, "How may I know you are all right?" He answers, "By word or letter." I ask, "Which do you prefer?" He may call for either. If he asks for a letter I tell him, "Spell." He says, "S;" I say "L;" he says, "A;" I say, "P;" he says, "U;" I say, "P;" he says, spelling out, "Slap up," which is the text word of the order. I get into a difficulty and am overpowered, and desire to know if my brother is present. I lock arms across my breast as if cold, saying I wish I knew if any of St. Mary's children were about. If any brother is about he will come to my aid. If my opponent be a member of the band he will immediately desist. When travelling at night, on meeting a person and desiring to know if he is a brother, I say "halt" and give a loud slap with my hand on my thigh. He answers with two slaps. When it is desired by the captain to call a meeting he sends the Marshal to notify each member. The place of meeting is always in some dense wood, without fire or light of any kind. No man must leave home for the place of meeting before dark. When the meeting is assembled and the roll called the absentees are sent for and compelled to come under guard. No raid is ever made unless every member of the band is along.

FIRES.

Extensive Conflagration in West Forty-Seventh Street.

At fifteen minutes before nine o'clock last night a fire broke out in the boiler room of the two story building Nos. 628 and 630 West Forty-seventh street, occupied by Kenny & Clark as a planing mill. The front of the building was of corrugated iron, the balance being of wood. Their stock and building wer damaged about $20,000 and were fully covered by insurance. The adjoining building, Nos. 622, 624 and 626, a large five story brick building, occupied by C. P. Bucking as a sheepskin and morocco manufactory, was damaged about $5,000, in consequence of the flames extending to the top floor. The dwelling house of Thomas Ing, on the opposite side of the street, was damaged $600. The adjoining building, No. 627, occupied on the ground floor by John Darragh as a stable and the upper portion as a tenement house, was damaged $1,500 on building and $1,000 on furniture. Darragh, with the assistance of a detachment of police under command of Captain Killalea, of the Twenty-second precinct, succeeded in getting all his horses from the burning building. The stable of Henry Buchin, No. 629, was damaged $500. The rear of the above building was occupied by James Donavan as a slaughter house, and was damaged $500. John W. Stevens & Brothers' lumber yard, at Nos. 632 and 634, was damaged $5,000. The rear of Nos. 641 and 643, occupied as a rawhide manufactory, was also damaged $2,500. The cause of the fire and amount of insurance could not be ascertained last night.

Destruction of a Factory in Flushing.

Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock a fire broke out in Christie's sash and blind factory, near the Main street depot, and, although the Fire Department was promptly on hand, on account of the want of water the building, together with a large portion of the stock, was a total loss. The fire communicated to the dwelling of John Sharkey, adjoining, which was also destroyed. Mr. Christie's loss was about $5,000, and Mr. Sharkey's between $3,000 and $4,000. Both buildings were insured for about half their value. The Fire Department is in good condition and discipline, but would be nearly useless in most cases of fire on account of the impossibility of obtaining water.

Burning of a Cotton Mill Near Hudson, N. Y.

HUDSON, N. Y., July 21, 1871.

The cotton mill of Alexander Abbott, at Valatie, was destroyed by fire this morning, together with its contents. The loss is $60,000; insured for $39,000, in New York, Providence and Hartford companies. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

COMMERCIAL AGENCIES.

Manufacturing Credit—An Insight Into the Workings of a Western Commercial Agency.

ST. LOUIS, July 21, 1871.

The case of Mellier vs. Shepherd, Manager of Bradstreet's Commercial Agency, was before the Circuit Court yesterday, the hearing being on the motion of defendant to dissolve the injunction granted a few days ago enjoining the circulation of the July number of Bradstreet's Commercial Reports, on the ground of the false and injurious rating of the plaintiff. Several witnesses testified to the solvency of Mr. Mellier, his business qualifications, integrity, &c.; also that he is doing a large and prosperous business.

Mr. King, formerly an employé of the agency, testified to the mode of transacting the business of the agency. He said that most of the reports were manufactured in the office. From the time Mr. Shepherd took charge the reports were based on the old reports. The city reports were all copied into the letter book, and then forwarded to New York. A book called the "Black Book" was kept, in which all unfavorable reports were copied. Every one in the office had access to this book. He testified that Bradstreet's agency was partial to subscribers, and that a gold-headed cane would often raise a man's rating. The plaintiff had been reduced from the rating of "C C D D," a very high rating, to "D E," which meant that he was doing business with a capital of less than $500. Subscription to the agency generally meant an increase of credit. The witness further stated that he had manufactured hundreds of reports himself.

RAILROAD COLLISION IN NEW JERSEY.

MORRISTOWN, July 21, 1871.

A collision occurred at five o'clock this afternoon at Hinchman's mills, six miles west of here, on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, between a freight train going west and a coal train bound east. Both engines came together while going at the rate of fifteen miles an hour, the engine of the coal train completely mounting the other and so remaining. The engineers and firemen had time to jump and escaped uninjured. No one was hurt. The engines and three freight and twenty coal cars are completely ruined.

Statistics of Immigration at the Port of New York.

Aggregate Circulation of National Banks.

WASHINGTON, July 21, 1871.

New York Immigration Statistics.

The official returns received at the Bureau of Statistics show that during the quarter ending June 30, 1871, the total number of passengers arrived at the port of New York from foreign countries was 107,114, of whom 64,213 were males and 42,901 females. Of the total number arrived 101,015 were actual immigrants—males, 60,082; females, 40,933. Ages—Under fifteen, 19,812; fifteen and under forty, 71,056; forty and upwards, 10,147. The deaths on the voyage were ninety-two, of whom fifty-four were males and thirty-eight females. The principal nationalities of the immigrants were as follows:—England, 17,845; Scotland, 4,613; Wales, 399; Ireland, 26,149; Great Britain, locality unknown, 6,672; Germany, 30,814; Austria, 1,983; Sweden, 5,727; Norway, 1,286; Denmark, 1,143; France, 840; Switzerland, 1,305; Spain, 104; Italy, 8,671; Holland, 400; Belgium, 78; Russia, 295; Poland, 133; Cuba, 43; Bermuda, 77.

National Bank Circulation.

The total circulation issued to the national banks to date is $318,686,990. The act of July 12, 1870, authorized the issue of $54,000,000 additional circulation and the establishment of gold national banks, to which circulation can be issued upon the deposit of United States bonds at the rate of eighty per cent upon the par value thereof. Since the passage of the act circulation has been issued to the following states:—Virginia, $744,000; Illinois, $3,066; West Virginia, $950,000; Michigan, $1,166; Kentucky, $2,200,000; Indiana, $1,174,000; Wisconsin, $531,000; Ohio, $760,000; Tennessee, $1,300,000; Iowa, $1,076,000; Louisiana, $1,300,000; Minnesota, $380,000; Georgia, $561,050; Kansas, $176,100; North Carolina, $609,000; Missouri, $1,290,000; South Carolina, $258,000; Nebraska, $212,000; Texas, $145,000; Colorado, $6 ,000; New Mexico, $155,000; Oregon, $137,000; Alabama, $260,000; California, $3,205. The law requires that one-half of the increased circulation shall be apportioned among those States not having an excess already, according to population, and one-half according to the existing banking capital resources and business of such State or Territory. The census returns of the valuation of property and banking capital have not yet been received, and the proportion of circulation for the States of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois cannot probably be ascertained with any accuracy until about the 1st of October. It is probable, however, that there will be sufficient circulation for all of the Southern and Western States when the full census returns are received. No additional circulation can be issued to the Eastern and Middle States.

Commerce of Australasia—Subsidy for the American Steamers.

A statement has been completed at the Treasury Department from the latest statistics showing the imports into Australia and New Zealand, as follows:—From Great Britain, £17,924,420; from the United States, £1,354,385; all other countries, £3,812,478. Stated by percentage they are as follows:—From Great Britain, seventy-seven and six-tenths; from the United States, five and five-tenths; all other countries, sixteen and six-tenths. The Parliament of New South Wales has recently voted a subsidy of $75,000 to a monthly line of American steamers between San Francisco and Sydney. The imports of Australia and New Zealand being largely manufactured goods it is believed that a very large and profitable commerce will spring up with our Western coast, and if Congress made provision for a line of steamers they would be fully sustained.

Treasury Balances.

The balances in the Treasury at the close of business to-day were:—Currency, $3,213,000; coin, $83,488,000; certificates, $21,182,000.

DEATH OF ANOTHER VICTIM.

The interest created by the riot of the 12th instant is but slowly dying out. The official reports absorb much attention and are freely commented on, while meetings are being held and the course of the authorities denounced in expressive if not eloquent style. Below will be found the official report of Major General Shaler, giving a brief and succinct history of the trouble and the movements of the troops.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF MAJOR GENERAL SHALER.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 19, 1871.

SIR—I have the honor to report that on the morning of the 10th inst. I was personally waited upon by His Honor the Mayor, who informed me that on the evening of that day a police order would be issued to prevent any parades or processions upon Wednesday, the 12th inst., but that owing to the excited state of much of the populace there might nevertheless arise disturbances which might render the aid of the military necessary. Accordingly we examined section 242 of chapter 80 of the laws of 1870, and I received the following written communication under that law:—

NEW YORK, July 10, 1871.

In order that the police authorities of this city may be well sustained in suppressing a disturbance of the peace, of which on Wednesday, the 12th inst., there is anticipation and imminent danger, I desire you to order out and hold in readiness at their armories for active service three regiments of infantry and one troop of cavalry.

Very truly, yours,
A. OAKEY HALL,
Mayor of the city of New York.

To Major General ALEXANDER SHALER, Commandant of the First division.

During the day of the 11th inst. I also received a verbal request from the President of the Police Department to furnish an increased force. On the 11th, at about midnight, I was further requested by His Excellency the Governor of the State to furnish all the military aid required in assistance of the civil authorities. In answer to these requisitions the following order was issued from these headquarters:—

SPECIAL ORDERS—NO. 16.
HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 11, 1871.
[Extract.]

* * * * * * * *

II. In obedience to a requisition from the civil authorities the following organizations are hereby ordered to assemble at their respective armories, in fatigue dress, fully armed and equipped for actual service on Wednesday next, the 12th inst., at seven o'clock A. M.:—First regiment infantry, Sixth regiment infantry, Seventh regiment infantry, Eighth regiment infantry, Ninth regiment infantry, Eleventh regiment infantry, Twelfth regiment infantry, Twenty-second regiment infantry, Sixty-ninth regiment infantry, Seventy-first regiment infantry, Eighty-fourth regiment infantry, Washington Gray troop cavalry, Battery G, Battery C. The infantry will be supplied with forty rounds of ammunition and the artillery with twenty rounds per gun.

By order of
Major General ALEXANDER SHALER.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

At two A. M. on the 12th inst. I personally informed the Superintendent of Police of my action, and at six A. M. reported to the Commander-in-Chief in person, with a portion of my staff, at Police Headquarters.

The accompanying map, prepared as a part of this report, an examination of which is invited, will show the location of the forces under arms at seven A. M. The blue spots mark the quarters of the infantry regiments ordered on duty, the red those of the artillery and the orange those of the cavalry; the blue crosses the quarters of the infantry regiments and the orange cross that of the cavalry regiments, over which guards were placed.

It being apprehended at Police Headquarters that the necessary withdrawal of most of the police force from the Thirty-first precinct would invite disorder along the line of the Boulevard, it was deemed prudent to establish an armed force in the vicinity of Elm Park, and to secure the greatest amount of protection with the least number of men a regiment armed with breech-loaders and a squadron of cavalry were despatched by the issue of the following orders at half-past seven A. M.:—

SPECIAL ORDERS—NO. 17.
HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 12, 1871.

I. The commanding officer of the Washington Gray Troop will report immediately with his command to the commanding officer of the Seventy-first regiment of infantry, at the armory of the regiment, corner of Thirty-fifth street and Broadway.

By order of
Major General ALEXANDER SHALER.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 12, 1871.

Lieutenant Colonel GEORGE D. WOLCOTT, Commanding Seventy-first Regiment:—

COLONEL—Upon the receipt of this you will march your command up the Boulevard to the Thirty-first precinct police station, in 10th street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, and put yourself in communication with Captain Helme or other police officer in charge. You will regulate your movements so as to support the police force in the discharge of their duties, and for this purpose you will confer with the officer in command and keep yourself informed as to his movements.

The service which is required of you is, as you will appreciate, one of a delicate nature and one in which you must be guided by circumstances and your own judgment. The police will enforce the law so far as they can, and if not able to do so will call upon you for assistance, which you will render, as far as possible, to uphold them in the discharge of their duties. You will keep your command in the ranks and see that the men behave quietly and orderly and not allow any straggling, so that they can be used at a moment's notice.

If compelled to send detachments to any point you will see that they are sufficiently large to enforce order, if possible without resorting to extreme measures.

You will not use force unless it becomes absolutely necessary to put down a riot or disturbance, and then you are expected to act with coolness and firmness. No positive orders can be given to guide you in your actions, but you must be governed by the exigencies of the case, and your authority is, therefore, necessarily discretionary. The Washington Gray troop of cavalry has been ordered to report to you. It will co-operate with your command under your orders.

By order.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH,
Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

At the same hour Colonel Scott, of the Eighth regiment, was ordered to occupy the City Arsenal, corner of White and Elm streets, with about three-fourths of his command, for the purpose of protecting the building and its contents, and of supporting the two batteries assembled there, should their services be required.

The balance of the Eighth regiment were left for the protection of their own armory.

Colonel Ward, of the Twelfth regiment, was ordered to occupy the State Arsenal, corner of Seventh avenue and Thirty-fifth street, with his command, leaving about forty men for the protection of his armory, and detailing an equal number for the care of the Seventy-first regiment armory.

The commanding officer of the Fifth regiment stationed fifty men in the armory of his regiment, in Hester street, near Bowery, and an equal number in the armory of the First and Third cavalry, at 37 and 39 Bowery.

The commanding officer of the Seventy-ninth battalion stationed one company in the armory, corner of Greene and Houston streets. The commanding officer of the Ninety-sixth regiment stationed one company in the armory, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, 291 and 293 Bowery. At eight o'clock A. M. Brigadier Generals Varian and Ward, commanding the Third and First brigades, respectively of the First division, reported to me in person and were directed to establish their headquarters as follows:—General Varian at the armory of the Seventh regiment and General Ward at the armory of the Twenty-second regiment. They were requested to visit the armories of the regiments of their command and see that the instructions issued were observed and hold themselves and their staffs in readiness for any service.

In order that the excited condition of the public mind might not be aggravated by the presence of uniformed soldiers in the public streets and that the troops should be well in hand for prompt action the following circular was issued to all the commanding officers:—

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 12, 1871.
[Official and confidential.]

The Major General commanding directs that the ammunition be not distributed until orders to do so are received from these headquarters.

You will please form your companies as soon as the men arrive and keep them within the armory. Loitering about the doors and neighboring saloons will under no circumstances be permitted. If necessary to prevent it appoint a provost guard, not otherwise. Men arrested by a provost guard will be returned for disobedience.

By order of Major General ALEXANDER SHALER.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

By nine o'clock A. M. reports received at headquarters of small bodies of armed men moving in various parts of the city became frequent. The first one of any magnitude or of positive seriousness was received about eight A. M., to the effect that a large crowd of evil disposed persons had made a demonstration at 110th street and Seventh avenue, and obliged all the workmen in that neighborhood to quit work and join their party. There being no available police force in that vicinity I despatched, at the request of the police authorities, Major Jussen, of my staff, with orders to the commanding officer of the Seventy-first regiment, stationed at Elm Park, to at once move one wing of his regiment and the Washington Gray cavalry in the direction of the point indicated. This movement was rapidly executed, but upon reaching 110th street information was received that the rioters had moved down through the Park. The infantry remained for a short time at 110th street and Eighth avenue and the cavalry at 110th street and Sixth avenue, and at fifteen minutes past twelve P. M. were returned to Elm Park by a telegraphic order.

About ten A. M. information was received that a considerable body of rioters was moving down Third avenue at Eighty-sixth street, and that the workmen engaged in laying Croton pipes had quit work and joined them. To support a detachment of police, sent off in omnibuses to intercept them, the First regiment infantry, Colonel Perley commanding, was ordered to move across and up the Third avenue at twelve M. Colonel Perley telegraphed from the Nineteenth precinct station house, "Everything quiet," and he was, after consultation with the police authorities, telegraphed to return to the armory and keep a sharp lookout.

At half-past ten A. M. an effort was made by an excited crowd to seize the arms stored in a reported Fenian headquarters in avenue A, near Fourth street, and Colonel Clark, of the Seventh regiment, was ordered to detail two companies to co-operate with Captain Mount, of the Eleventh precinct, in protecting them. These companies shortly afterwards reported back to their armory, the arms having been secured and removed to Police Headquarters by the men under Captain Mount.

About the same hour an exciting report to the effect that an armed mob had attacked Second avenue cars was received, and a detachment of police was despatched by Superintendent Kelso to the Eighteenth precinct. To support and co-operate with this detachment Colonel Sterry, of the Sixth regiment, was ordered to send four companies of his command to the Second avenue. The report proved unfounded, or at least was greatly exaggerated. The numerous details of policemen had reduced the force at Headquarters so much that it was deemed necessary to reinforce it by a portion of the military. Colonel Clark, of the Seventh regiment, was therefore ordered to send two companies and occupy the second floor of the Headquarters building. These companies were commanded respectively by Captains Kipp and Ely.

The reports from different parts of the city had now become most exciting in their character. One from the immediate vicinity of Headquarters, brought in by detectives considered most reliable, was to the effect that an organized force, formed in companies with officers commanding, having a leader with a drawn sword at their head, was moving down Prince street towards Hibernia Hall. Instantly a plan of capture was determined upon. A body of policemen was to move down Mulberry street to Prince to meet the column; another body was to go down the Bowery to strike their rear, while a strong squad of detectives were to operate in making captures as circumstances would permit. To give more effect and render aid if required the Eighty-fourth regiment was moved from their armory at Fourth street down Broadway to Prince street, and the Eleventh regiment was moved from Delancey and Chrystie streets up the Bowery to Prince street. The rioters having received some information or entertained suspicions of an aggressive movement on the part of the authorities had marched off to another section of the city before the disposition made for dispersion was consummated. Subsequently, however, a goodly number of captures were made by the police in the same neighborhood. While the regiments last named were on the march they were directed to Police Headquarters. As soon as the Eighty-fourth regiment vacated their armory their surplus arms were removed for safety to Police Headquarters.

A report was received about the same time, and since confirmed by the official report of the commanding officer of the regiment, that a body of about five hundred men were threatening the armory of the Fifth regiment, in Hester street, near the Bowery. The building was occupied by a company placed there for its protection, and its presence deterred the mob from making an attack.

Information having been received about noon that the Orangemen had determined to parade, and that a considerable force would probably be required to aid the police in their protection, the Fifty-fifth regiment and the balance of the Seventy-ninth battalion were ordered to assemble at their armories. A detachment of the latter was ordered to Police Headquarters, and after conducting a body of prisoners to the Fifteenth precinct station house was returned to its armory to protect the United States Army building, in which it is located. Colonel Budke, of the Third cavalry, was authorized to assemble a part of his command to relieve a company of the Fifth infantry in the protection of the cavalry armory. Major General Woodward, commanding Second Division, N. G., very kindly offered the services of one of his regiments, armed with breech-loaders, already assembled at their armory. Their services were accepted and they were marched to the armory of the Ninety-sixth regiment, 291 and 293 Bowery, as a place most convenient of location and a point d'appui to the movements about to be commenced. At half-past one o'clock P. M., arrangements having been made by the police authorities to protect the procession that was to form at two o'clock at the corner of Eighth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, and desiring the support of the military, orders were issued to the Sixth, Colonel Sterry; Seventh, Colonel Clark; Ninth, Colonel Fisk; Twenty-second, Colonel Porter, and Eighty-fourth, Lieutenant Colonel Mitchell commanding, to report at once on the ground above designated to Brigadier General Varian, who had been assigned to the command of the escort and previously informed as to the number of regiments ordered to report to him, and the character of the services required of the escort. The instructions to General Varian were necessarily general in their character, and consisted chiefly of my opinions as to the proportions of troops to be placed in front, on the flanks and in the rear of the procession; with the usual caution about preserving steadiness among the men and keeping the ranks well closed up; all the details of formation, which would be varied according to the number of men in the procession, and which could be determined only upon the ground, together with the orders and instructions to the different regimental commanders according to their respective positions in the column, and the attitude assumed by the crowds at different points, were necessarily left to the exercise of his own best judgment and discretion after he should have arrived upon the ground. When the Seventh regiment moved from the armory the two companies on duty at Police Headquarters joined the regiment, and the Eleventh regiment occupied the rooms vacated on the upper floors. The regiments were reported promptly as ordered. For the dispositions made of them and other information concerning the procession your attention is invited to the following report of General Varian, submitted immediately after the procession had been dismissed:—

HEADQUARTERS THIRD BRIGADE,
FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 12, 1871.

Major General ALEXANDER SHALER, commanding First Division N. G. S. N. Y.:—

GENERAL—In compliance with your instructions I have the honor to submit the following report:—

According to verbal instructions received from you this morning I proceeded to visit the several regiments of my brigade, and had completed the hour, with the exception of the Eighth regiment, when orders were received from your headquarters desiring my presence immediately.

In accordance with your directions to take command of the escort to the Orange procession I at once proceeded with my staff to the place designated, viz., Eighth avenue, corner of Twenty-ninth street. On my arrival there I found the procession under the protection of the police and ready to move.

The regiments of infantry ordered for escort service—viz., Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Twenty-second and Eighty-fourth—arrived promptly and reported for duty. I at once disposed the troops in the following order:—Seventh regiment on the right, Twenty-second and Eighty-fourth on the right and left flanks respectively, in columns of fours, Sixth and Ninth in the rear (Sixth leading) in column by companies. Before ordering the column to move I was informed by Inspector Walling, of the Police force, that the roofs of the houses on the avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets, east side, were covered with men who had been seen loading firearms, and at once directed Colonel Clark to detach the right wing of his regiment and take position on the opposite side of said block, facing those buildings, instructing him to return any fire which should commence, with sufficient vigor to stop it, and to rejoin his regiment after the column had passed that locality. These preparations being made I gave command for the column to move, and at once took position on the right with my staff. Having arrived on the corner of Twenty-third street I halted the column to give the right wing of the Seventh an opportunity to rejoin the command. The order to halt had scarcely been obeyed when I heard firing proceeding apparently from the rear, and immediately returned to ascertain the nature of the difficulty. On arriving I ordered the firing to cease, made inquiry as to the cause, and learned that the column had been fired into both from sidewalk and houses, and the fire had been promptly returned by some of the regiments, killing and wounding a number of persons.

Comparative order being restored I again put the column in motion, proceeding through Twenty-third street to Fifth avenue, down the avenue to Fourteenth street, thence around Washington Monument, down Fourth avenue to the junction of Third avenue without further disturbance than the occasional arrest of individuals on the sidewalk by the police. At the said junction the procession dismissed, and in accordance with your further instructions I disposed of the troops so as to enclose the space between Fourth and Eighth streets, and then cleared the space of the crowd assembled.

After remaining in the position described about an hour and a half I gave directions to the several commands to return to their armories and to hold themselves in readiness for further orders from your headquarters.

I cannot close without expressing my satisfaction at the alacrity and cheerfulness displayed by officers and men in obeying orders and giving me every assistance in their power; to the police for their hearty co-operation, and, lastly, to the men composing the procession—for it must be said, to their credit, that not a word was spoken or firearm displayed, or anything done by them which could be construed as a menace to any one, carrying out the instructions given them to the letter.

I have the honor to be, General, respectfully, your obedient servant,
J. M. VARIAN, Brigadier General.

The firing referred to in General Varian's report was telegraphed to headquarters, with the additional information that large bodies of rioters were confronting the head of the column, impeding its advance. Upon this the First regiment infantry, Colonel Perley commanding, was ordered to move promptly down to and occupy Madison square, so as to flank the rioters should they continue in force in front of the procession when it reached that point, or render such assistance as General Varian might require. For a similar purpose two companies of the Eleventh regiment, afterwards reinforced by two other companies, were ordered to occupy Fourteenth street, near Irving place, and the Thirteenth regiment was moved up the Bowery as far as Fourth street. These movements were made on the left flank of the column under the supposition, which was afterwards found correct, that the bulk of the rioters would approach the route of the procession from the north and east. The Thirteenth regiment was subsequently reported to General Varian, and used in the dispositions made to insure order and quietude in the dispersion of the Orangemen. Those dispositions were simply the occupation by the troops of the streets running into and across the Bowery and Fourth avenue, from Astor place and Eighth street down to Fourth street. After the Orangemen had left for their homes the troops were gradually withdrawn and sent to their armories. The procession formed and marched from Eighth avenue shortly after two o'clock and arrived at its destination a little past four o'clock. While it was moving the troops not in the column or disposed of on the flanks, as above recited, were stationed, ready for immediate service, as follows, viz.:—The Fifth, Sixty-ninth, Fifty-fifth and Seventy-ninth in their respective armories; the Eighth at the City Arsenal, with Batteries C and G, Captain Schilling and Lieutenant Wright commanding, and the Twelfth at the State Arsenal.

Having been requested by the President of the Police Department to furnish a guard for the protection of the United States Post Office, a detachment of two companies of the Sixty-ninth regiment were ordered, at twenty minutes past five P. M., to occupy the Post Office and remain there until seven o'clock the next morning. At the same time two companies of the Seventy-first regiment were ordered to occupy Kapff's Garden, at Eighth avenue and 110th street, until eight o'clock A. M., to prevent an anticipated attack upon a picnic party. At six o'clock A. M., apparent quietude having been restored in the vicinity of headquarters, the Thirteenth regiment was relieved with the thanks of the division commander and ordered to return to its armory; at the same time the First regiment, at Madison square, was ordered to return to its armory, and the four companies of the Eleventh, at Fourteenth street, to rejoin the regiment at Police Headquarters. These dispositions brought all the troops, except the Eleventh regiment, to the position occupied early in the day, where they remained, undisturbed by orders or alarms, the whole night.

No indications of a necessity for the use of large bodies of troops being apparent, General Ward and staff were relieved at eight A. M. and General Varian and staff at one A. M. of the 13th instant by the issue of the following notice:—

The Major General commanding desires me to say that the recent reports from the various precincts are so satisfactory that he does not consider it necessary for you to remain longer on duty. You will therefore please consider yourself relieved upon receipt of this, with the thanks of the Commanding General for the efficient discharge of the difficult and delicate service of the day.

The regiments will all remain at their armories until further orders.

The night passed without any unusual excitement, and at eight o'clock A. M., with the consent of the police authorities, a gradual dismissal of all the troops, except the Twenty-second regiment, was begun. To the Twenty-second the following order was issued, viz.:—

SPECIAL ORDERS—NO. 18.
HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 13, 1871.

The commanding officer of the Twenty-second regiment infantry will proceed immediately with his command to Elm Park, corner of the Boulevard and Ninety-fourth street, to relieve the Seventy-first regiment and the Washington Gray troop of cavalry. Upon his arrival he will confer with the officer in charge of the Thirty-first police precinct, and co-operate with him in the preservation of order.

By order of Major General SHALER.
WM. H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, Assistant Adjutant General and Chief of Staff.

And at noon it was returned to the armory and dismissed.

CASUALTIES.

Sixth regiment—Captain Adler, slightly grazed at the wrist; one private badly bruised in the leg.

Ninth regiment—Sergeant Samuel Wyatt, Company F, killed; private H. C. Page, Company K, killed; Colonel James Fisk, Jr., ankle sprained; Captain B. W. Spencer, slightly hurt with a brick; private Pryor, Company A, wounded in leg, since dead; private Burns, Company E, stabbed in back; Sergeant T. C. Byers, Company B, kicked in side by mob.

Eighty-fourth regiment—Captain J. Douglas, Company K, cut in head by missile; private Jennie, Company I, shot in head, seriously; private W. Archer, Company F, flesh wound in wrist.

Seventh regiment—Sergeant Behringer, Company G, leg wound by a stone; private Townsend, Company G, shot in neck, musket ball; private Morgan, Company H, scalp wound, slight.

There are two points in connection with the operations of this command on the 12th inst. to which the attention of the Commander-in-Chief is specially invited. First, the promptitude with which the troops assembled, and which the Commander-in-Chief by his presence had an opportunity of witnessing, and second, the increased numbers which each organization turned out. In many regiments this increase amounted to fifty per cent more than usual parades, and when is considered the peculiar circumstances under which the orders were issued, and the divided and excited state of the public mind, the extraordinary and unusual conditions which made it necessary to call upon the National Guard and the extremely delicate character of the service to be performed, the devotion of the officers and men to principles of law and order, and of complete subordination to the constituted authorities is strikingly apparent. Their conduct during the twenty-four successive hours of service was in the highest degree commendable. But one case of misconduct of an officer is reported, and that is being attended to. A very small portion of the public press and a few persons with biassed and prejudiced minds have endeavored to create an impression that some of the regiments acted hastily in firing on Eighth avenue; but by a careful perusal of the official reports of all the principal commanding officers and a minute personal inquiry of the officers engaged and of the citizens residing in the neighborhood, into the circumstances attending the mêlée, I have failed to discover sufficient cause for the statements made. An official report of operations of a military body is not the place to discuss the merits of any proposition touching the conduct of the troops; that does not emanate from the recognized source of military authority. But as so much has been said by certain classes, and so much has been written calculated to bring into disrepute at least a portion of that organization which alone can protect and defend law-abiding citizens in their rights of person and property in times of riot and anarchy, I will be pardoned for assuming the guardianship of the honor and reputation of that part which I have the honor to command, so far as to declare my belief that what is said or written about the misconduct of the troops on the 12th inst. has a partisan origin and an unmanly aim. Letters of thanks from citizens in the neighborhood of the riot for the services rendered by the troops confirm the official reports of the officers. The testimony is abundant to show that long before the troops retaliated firearms were discharged and missiles of all kinds thrown at them from the sidewalks, windows and housetops, and it was not until an officer of the Eighty-fourth regiment had been struck down by a missile thrown from a housetop, one of the men shot in the head, and another had received a flesh wound, two men of the Ninth killed outright, a number wounded, and three of the Sixth wounded, that fire was opened on the mob. It is the opinion of the most experienced officers of the police force and military present that the troops did not fire any too soon; that in a very few minutes more it would have been difficult, if not impossible, to overpower the mob, and that the lives lost at Eighth avenue and Twenty-fourth street saved the sacrifice of a much greater number at some other point.

None can sympathize more deeply with the families that suffered by the unfortunate occurrences of the 12th inst. than do the men whose duty required them to use their weapons in sustaining the civil authorities and in defence of themselves. And it is not unreasonable to hope that while all are deploring the circumstances which made a resort to arms necessary, the public will not be unmindful of the bereaved families of the dead and suffering members of the National Guard.

The extremely delicate service of General Varian in commanding the escort to the procession was performed in a highly creditable manner and to my satisfaction, and it would be unjust to meritorious officers not to record herein my conviction that the regimental commanders of the escort acted with coolness and discretion; that the officers and men under them discharged their duty under circumstances calculated to excite and aggravate the most experienced troops, and are entitled, therefore, to the commendation of their superior officers. The orders issued from time to time were obeyed by all the commands on duty with an alacrity rarely witnessed, giving abundant evidence that the National Guard stands ready at all times to sustain the civil authorities in maintaining law and order against all aggressors.

To the members of my staff, who from early morning of the 12th until noon of the 13th were actively engaged, without rest, I am indebted for the prompt delivery of orders and despatches and other valuable assistance.

I desire also to record my acknowledgments for the professional services of Surgeon Cheeseman, formerly of the Seventh regiment, N. G., which were kindly volunteered and accepted early on the morning of the 12th.

Permit me in conclusion, while alluding to the meritorious services of those under my command, to confirm what the public press have already said of the gallant conduct of the police force engaged on that day. It was my duty to keep in constant communication with the Commander-in-Chief and the police authorities from early morning until the excitement of the public mind had subsided. At headquarters but one sentiment actuated the officers on duty, from the President of the Department, Mr. Henry Smith, and his colleagues of the Board of Commissioners, and Superintendent Kelso and his subordinate officers, and that was to do their whole duty in the most prompt and energetic manner. The movements of the detachments were made with the greatest alacrity, and the officers of the National Guard who witnessed their operations in attacking the mob at different points unite in giving the highest praise for the courage and dash displayed in making attacks, as well as for the patient coolness manifested while exposed to the abusive epithets and dangerous assaults of the mob. Their valor was conspicuous and entitles them not only to the respect of their superiors, but to the confidence of the public at large. While New York possesses so brave and self-sacrificing a body of protectors she has little to fear from internal dissensions.

Very respectfully yours,
ALEXANDER SHALER,
Major General Commanding.

THE CORONER'S INQUISITION.

Investigation to Be Commenced Next Monday at Twenty-second Street and Seventh Avenue—The Jury.

Coroner Young has at last decided upon a time and place for holding the investigation into the circumstances attendant upon the riot which occurred in this city on last Wednesday week, with such fearfully disastrous results. The Coroner has secured the use of the Eighth District (civil) Court room, southwest corner of Twenty-second street and Seventh avenue, and there intends to commence his inquisition at ten o'clock next Monday morning. No witnesses except those who were present at the scene of the riot will be called to testify, and Coroner Young will continue the examination from day to day and reach a conclusion at the earliest possible moment. It is probable that in the investigation the Coroner will be aided by District Attorney Garvin or one of his assistants, although he feels fully competent to conduct the case alone. Great interest is felt in the result of the inquiry and doubtless a large crowd will be in attendance at the court-room. It is likely to last about ten days.

THE JURY.

In order that there may be no cavil or fault-finding about the jury to be sworn in the case, Coroner Young has determined to wait upon Mr. Douglas Taylor, Commissioner of Jurors, the legally constituted officer for such duty, and request him to empanel twelve good men and assume the entire responsibility of that part of the business.

DISMISSAL OF OFFICER LOGAN, OF THE TWENTY-SIXTH PRECINCT.

Patrolman Patrick Logan, of the Twenty-sixth precinct, was yesterday tried before President Smith and Commissioners Barr and Manierre for improper conduct and insubordination on the day of the riots.

The charge was preferred against him by Sergeant Carpenter, of the Sanitary squad, who testified that on the 12th inst. the complainant was under the command of Captain Hedden, of the Fifteenth precinct, in Broadway, and received orders to disperse a crowd of ruffians who had collected at Eleventh street. A fight ensued, and the police were obliged to use their clubs freely. Among the men who were ordered to charge the mob was Patrick Logan, who has been on the force for ten years. This man saying that he was an Irishman and a Roman Catholic, and felt that his conscience would not allow him to attack his fellow countrymen. He subsequently interfered with other officers, calling upon them to "deal gently" with the mob, and seized one officer who was endeavoring to disperse the rioters. Logan called several witnesses to prove that unnecessary violence was used, but the evidence failed to establish the fact.

REFUSED TO ATTACK THE RIOTERS,

Other witnesses testified that the mob was a dangerous one and fought desperately, and testified that the conduct of Logan was calculated to

INJURE THE DISCIPLINE OF THE FORCE.

Logan, in his own defence, again urged that unnecessary violence was resorted to, and finally spoke in a disrespectful manner to the Commissioners, saying that "he knew he would not have a fair trial because he was a Roman Catholic, adding that he had never known an instance where a Roman Catholic had not been unfairly treated, and that it was his holy religion that was assailed."

Commissioner Smith said that the Board might have been induced to take a lenient view of the case in view of the previous good conduct of the accused, but such a course was impossible after the expressions used by Logan and his charges of unfair conduct on the part of the Board. He must, therefore, be dismissed from the department.

ANOTHER INNOCENT VICTIM.

Charles A. Kattenbeck died at Mount Sinai Hospital on Thursday night. He was a notary public and resided at 80½ Attorney street. On the day of the riot he went to Thirtieth street and Eighth avenue to draw a deed for a gentleman and left about two o'clock to return home. Nearing Twenty-sixth street he saw the crowd on the avenue and turned up Twenty-sixth street to avoid them. He had proceeded but a short distance when the German regiment opened fire on the rowdies. Mr. Kattenbeck received three balls, one in each arm and one in the back.

THE CATHOLIC BISHOP OF COLUMBUS, OHIO, ON THE JULY RIOT.

The following is a card from the Catholic Bishop of Columbus, Ohio, published in the Ohio State Journal:—

The attempt of certain persons to make the Catholic Church responsible for the late New York riot is unfair and unjust. Those who were fired upon by the police and military were on the spot in defiance of a strict command of their Archbishop, given in all the churches of the city the Sunday previous. The feud between the Orange and Ribbon factions, both made up of a faction of the lower orders of the Irish people, is now centuries old. Religion was made the pretext, but both parties practically renounced religion in their strife. The New York riot was simply a continuation of that strife. To make the Catholic Church responsible for what it forbids, abhors and condemns is unfair and unjust. The Rev. D. H. Moore, in Wesley chapel, last evening, according to the report in to-day's Journal, was guilty of this unfairness.

"A child," said he, "always tells the secret of the family," and in this riotous, untutored, ungoverned portion of the Catholic Church we see the tumultuous upheaving, the gathering power that shall shake, unless it is broken, this country from centre to circumference. The principle of toleration is a fundamental principle of this country; destroy it, and all is lost. The tendency of the whole Catholic Church, in its teachings, is toward intolerance."

The injustice of this consists in assuming that "the untutored, ungoverned portion of the Catholic Church" are following her teachings and fulfilling her spirit; that the "untutored" are the best taught, and the "ungoverned" the best directed. The fact is, those men, when they disobeyed the command given them from the altar, ceased to be children of the Church, and the secret they revealed was the old, old story of human wrath, known since the time of Cain.

To connect acts of violence like this with the doctrine of infallibility is simply absurd.

Toleration, to be wholesome, need not be founded on a conviction that there is no religious truth, but rather on the belief that God alone is master and judge of men. This was what actuated the Catholics of Maryland, who were the first to legalize religious toleration in America. This is the principle on which the Catholics of this country who are true to their faith propose to live in peace with their non-Catholic countrymen. They do not think of saying "we may be wrong in our belief, therefore let our neighbor alone," but, "we know our faith is true, therefore we know that we are bound to love our neighbors, no matter of what creed or color, as we love ourselves, and reverence in him the right we claim for ourselves, of having God alone for master and judge."

We Catholics, Mr. Editor, desire to be citizens of a free republic. We want nothing for ourselves but what we will do our best to maintain for others. It would be a pleasure for us to see Jesus Christ crucified honored and loved by all our countrymen, but no pleasure to see any one calling himself a Catholic for fashion's sake or on compulsion. The clergy have no temporal or political design. Their expectations are on the period that shall follow the judgment, whence they can suffer patiently, though with regret, the obloquy and unjust hate excited against them by misrepresentations of such scandals as the New York riot.

S. H. ROSECRANS, Bishop of Columbus.
COLUMBUS, July 18, 1871.

A "HEAVY" CLUB.

Three or four representatives of the Twentieth Ward Workingmen's Club met last night at Milleman's Hall, corner of Seventh avenue and Twenty-sixth street. The officers of the society were the only members present, and presented to the reporters resolutions condemnatory of the course pursued by Governor Hoffman during "the late unpleasantness."

RIOTERS IN COURT.

The Assault on the Two Officers of the Seventy-first Regiment—Application to Reduce the Bail of the Assailant.

John Mahony, the alleged rioter, was brought before Justice Cardozo, of the Supreme Court, yesterday, upon a writ of habeas corpus sued out by William F. Kintzing, his counsel. Mahonny, it will be remembered, was arrested last Sunday for having made an assault with a sword cane upon Captain Charles N. Swift and Lieutenant Emile Cardozo, two officers of the Seventy first regiment, who were walking along Thirty-ninth street, and near Third avenue. They were both in uniform at the time, returning from the funeral of Sergeant Wyatt and private Page, of the Ninth regiment, and on their way home. Lieutenant Cardozo drew his revolver and held the crowd, of which Mahonny was the leader, at bay until rescued. Mahonny was arrested and committed for trial by Justice Coulter in default of $6,000 bail. At the time of his arrest upon this charge it was supposed from the character of the weapon used by him that he was the man who stabbed private Burns, of the Ninth regiment, upon the day of the riots; but upon his being taken to the bedside of the soldier he failed to identify him.

Mr. Kintzing, in behalf of Mahonny, insisted that the amount of bail fixed by the magistrate was excessive, taking into consideration the character of the offence and the condition of the prisoner, who was but a poor working man. If he was guilty of an offence it was, he urged, but a simple assault. The bail ought to be $600 instead of $6,000. The prisoner was a man of most excellent character, instead of being a ruffian and rioter as characterized in some of our leading journals. He was to be found on the 12th day of July in the ranks of the Sixty-ninth regiment, with his musket, ready to support the authorities in vindicating the laws. The amount of bail fixed by the magistrate was simply disgraceful.

Assistant District Attorney Sullivan said that the question as to the reduction of bail was a matter purely within the discretion of the Court. From what counsel said it would seem that the bail was somewhat excessive. As to the character of the offence, that was a matter to be hereafter determined.

Judge Cardozo said that the complainant was of the same name as himself, but he was no connection or relation of his, and he had never heard of him before.

Mr. Kintzing observed that it was the complainant's good fortune to have so good a name.

The Judge remarked smilingly that this might be the prisoner's misfortune, and then added that he would take the papers.

CROPS ON LONG ISLAND.—From all parts of Long Island comes good news concerning the crops, which, it is said, have never in years presented such a promising aspect as at present. The frequent showers of the last two or three weeks have saved the hay, and grain and vegetables are everything that could be desired.

"OUT IN THE COLD WORLD."

Clearing Out a Cherry Street Rookery.

Chickens and Children Looking for Homes—Alterations and Improvements to be Made in Gotham Court.

The loneliest condition of human life in this world, and especially in a great city like this, is to be without a home—to be "turned out of house and home" and left to "die in the ditch," as the proverbial Irish landlords serve their tenants. So, undoubtedly, thought many of the poor tenants who yesterday had to vacate an immense five-story tenement in Cherry street, 50 feet wide by 240 feet deep, whose principal entrance for light and air is a narrow court or alley, ten feet wide, and known as West Gotham court. This immense structure was built twenty years ago and was first rented out in May, 1851. It is so built as to represent six tenements thrown into one, and each floor is made to accommodate four families. When the house was full there would be eighty-two families in it, containing an average of four persons each, or a constituency of 328 persons, men, women and children.

Cherry street commences at Franklin square and runs parallel with the East River for a couple of miles or more. Within a short distance of the square—or at Nos. 34 to 38 Cherry street—occur these

COURTS AND ROOKERIES.

For be it known that there are three of those tenements and three courts. The middle court accommodates half the tenants in the double structure and all of those in a building opposite not quite so large. The two tenements accommodate 112 families, so that about seventy-two families have always occupied the middle or West Gotham court, which divides No. 34 Cherry from Nos. 36 and 38. Between Nos. 32 and 34 there is another court, known as Mullins' court, which leads to a large tenement built by a former Alderman of the Fourth ward, now deceased. This property is now owned by a Mrs. McGrath, who resides in Renwick street. The building is occupied by twenty-seven families, and is admirably cared for by a Mrs. Congdon, who has resided in the court for twenty-three years. It was scrupulously neat and clean yesterday, and Mrs. Congdon and others assured the reporter that lodgers were not allowed to be kept by any of the families; that the cellars are swept twice a week, which their appearance seemed to justify, and the court every day. The water closets, unlike those in the other building, are above ground in the further end of the court and empty into a sewer which runs under the Fourth precinct police station into Roosevelt street. These closets were as dry and clean as any in a private dwelling could be. The property is not of equal width at both ends, and the southerly building on Gotham court almost juts up against it at the Pearl street end and shuts out very which it might otherwise have. This Gotham court house, too, is a story higher, and its chimneys and coping, not being in very good order, occasionally tumble down, endangering the lives of the Mullins' court folks.

On the north side of the double building, entered by Gotham court, is another courtway known as Single alley, because it is about half the width of Gotham and accommodates less than half the people. Single alley was comparatively dry and clean yesterday until the tenants began to turn out and empty beds and stoves, ashes, &c., into it. It commanded a little higher rent than the Gotham court side, the average being about $6 a month there to $5 25 in the other. A few rooms in Single alley and a few on the south side building of Gotham court rented for $7 a month. Formerly the water was in the rooms, but during the war and for a short time previously some malicious tenants cut the lead pipes in unoccupied apartments and carried off and sold the same, and ever since the water has been placed in hydrants in the court. A Mr. Sweeney, who formerly had a blacksmith shop where one of those buildings now stands, twenty-eight years ago, and who has lived in the neighborhood and reared his family there, and is familiar with the entire locality and with every one in it, has been the agent of those houses ever since they were built, twenty years ago, on the then site of a coal yard. The tenants, many of whom have lived several years under him and have the highest respect for him, have named the double tenement in his honor,

"SWEENEY'S HOTEL."

Well, Sweeney's Hotel has not been troubled with smallpox, cholera or any other disease for many years; and, notwithstanding the report that the Board of Health were turning the tenants out to rid the rookery of that pest, there was not a single case of it known yesterday among any of them. The measure was called for on sanitary grounds, but not to stop disease, and the tenants have had ample notice to move, but they held on day after day, until yesterday noon, when a platoon of about fifty policemen marched to the two courts—Gotham and Single alley—and, while a portion kept guard outside and prevented ingress or egress, save of those who lived there, another portion went up and down, in and out through the "hotel," and compelled the tenants to take up their beds and walk. Then there was a scene of confusion such as is rarely witnessed and which would require the pen of a Dickens or the pencil of a Brown or a Cruikshank or a Nast to do it full justice. Scores of little babies, each making its own lamentation on a different chord or pitch, were placed against the walls of the court, while the "mammies" ran up and down the rickety stairs for and with pieces of furniture, many of them quaint and dilapidated. Ticks and mattresses were emptied out by those who had money to renew the straw filling, and carmen in the neighborhood who had need of beds for their horses took the straw away in barrows or bundles. Cats and dogs and chickens ran around wildly looking for owners, and often fell foul of each other and of the motley crowd who were seeking a promised land and a home elsewhere. Babies fell over dogs, and mothers, with tubs and pots and chairs and stools, fell over babies, and then a howl and a wail and a whine and an oath

MINGLED TOGETHER MOST DISCORDANTLY

on the air. One old dame, who drowned her grief in a pot of "poteen," cried out that it was "an awful shame, as it was, to cum an' dhrive out poor people in this way out av house an' home. What are we cummin to at all at all," she asked, "when the peleece can't find nothin' betther to do than this?" Another old dame, who had not washed her face evidently for a good many days, responded:—"Arrah, thin, Mrs. Soolivan, what're you talkin' about? Sure there's plinty of room in New York, and we're not obliged to stay in the Fourth ward nor in Gotham court aither." If "Mrs. Soolivan's" face and neck and hands had had as much water poured on them as there had been Cherry street gin poured into her stomach it would have greatly improved her personal appearance, for she was a good-looking dame and had a young daughter about sixteen or seventeen years of age, handsome, but brazen, who strutted around barefooted and wearing loose, old woman's garments, and tried to get her mother to hold her tongue. "An' what the divil's the matter with you?" she said, "don't you know that he (the reporter) only wants to hear what you say to put it all down and print it in the papers to-morrow morning? Hold your tongue an' come in out o' that." This was too much for Mrs. Sullivan, and she told the daughter to and mind her own business, &c. Mrs. Sullivan knew her rights and she dared maintain them. And chief among those inalienable rights bestowed upon women in general and upon Mrs. Sullivan in particular was the right to talk as much as she pleased, and she held her ground firmly.

GO THERE HERSELF

Most of the tenants found rooms in the neighborhood. A few went up to Oak, Water and other streets, and as there were only thirteen families turned out yesterday there was no great difficulty experienced in finding homes for all in the vicinity. For more than two years Mr. Sweeney, the agent, has wanted the owners to make alterations and improvements in the "hotel" called after his name, but the owners have been divided and travelling and engaged in other pursuits, so that they have neglected it. The consequence has been that for the past eighteen months forty-four rooms have been idle in this building, and the tenants who occupied rooms had for the most part suited themselves before this "new departure" was promulgated. The present owner is a young gentleman named W. H. Roome, who has ordered the necessary improvements and alterations to be made under the superintendence of Mr. Sweeney. This gentleman is now sixty years of age, but looks healthy and strong enough for another score of years. To illustrate his kindliness of heart it may be mentioned that one tenant of his, not belonging to the "hotel," who could not, from avoid quarrelling with her neighbors, was ordered out, but having no place to go to and no money to hire a place he handed her five dollars to secure a home for herself rather than allow her to remain to annoy his tenants, notwithstanding her promises of good behavior in future.

The alterations and improvements to be made in this vast tenement, so far as at present determined upon are as follows:—The floors, which are now divided for four families will be altered for two, and will run the width of the building—fifty feet. Three arches equi-distant will be cut through from Gotham court to Single alley, each about twenty feet wide. The water closets and coal houses, which are now in the cellar, will then be placed on either side of those arches above ground and the cellars will be closed up. An open sewer runs through the centre of Gotham court, and from this arise the sickening odors and exhalations which the Board of Health feared would create an epidemic. And their fears would doubtless have been had the place continued to be occupied and next month been as warm as August months generally are. It must be noted that though the sewer is open it is not a ditch or gutter, but a wooden sewer beneath the stone pavement. The sewer was once covered all over with boards, but one after another they have been broken off and carried away and burned for fuel, and now the stench arises through the open gratings which cover it at regular distances. At the extreme end of the court there is a little blacksmith's forge, which Mr. Sweeney still keeps running and where his workman does any odd jobs which come in. This is to be taken away and replaced with closets and wood houses also for the tenants. "Sweeney's Hotel" is, in short, to get a thorough overhauling and to be made habitable for human beings, which it certainly is not now. Yesterday as the tenants filed in and out with their household goods, they notified the genial Sweeney that they would come back again to claim their vacated apartments when the improvements have been made. The honesty of those tenants was illustrated yesterday by Mr. Sweeney, who pointed to the loose iron gratings, which have remained there untouched in the same condition for twenty years, when it was in the power of any dishonest person to take them away at any time. His own blacksmith's tools and traps have also remained intact.

But, notwithstanding the honesty of the tenants themselves Gotham court and "Sweeney's Hotel" have been for years and from the location and character of the place this could hardly be avoided. Officers Sweeney and Buckley, of the Fourth, were on duty there yesterday afternoon. The former has been eleven years "around the diggins'," and is the only officer, probably, in the precinct, who can go in and out unmolested at any hour of the day or night. He is well known by all the tenants and by the roughs who gather in them at night, and not long ago one of the latter attempted to shoot him while the officer was chasing him across the roofs and yards of the "hotel" and the adjoining houses. As the doors on the court and the scuttles on the roofs are always open a ruffian has no difficulty in running up stairs and along the roof and down through another scuttle, or jumping off on adjoining roofs. It would take at least a score of policemen to arrest one criminal in that place, provided the latter showed any disposition to fight and dodge. The cellar, too, is all one open space, 240 feet deep, and may be entered and left just as easily. A few evenings ago a woman residing in the court was dragged by some ruffians into one of the doors and down the cellar stairs, where they would have violated her person but for the timely arrival of officer Sweeney. But to attempt to arrest them would be a most hopeless task for him, and those ruffians were invariably outsiders. The alterations in the building will remove the opportunities for much of this kind of vice and crime there in the future, and if it did nothing more it would be worth the cost for this alone.

THE MURDERED GAUGER OF BROOKLYN.

Inquest Over the Body of Clinton Gilbert—The City Authorities Recommended to Offer a Reward for the Murderer.

An inquest touching the death of Internal Revenue Gauger, Clinton Gilbert was held yesterday afternoon by Coroner Jones, at the Marine Hospital, on Flushing avenue.

TESTIMONY OF GENERAL JOURDAN.

I am Assessor of Internal Revenue, Second district; commenced the duties of the office on the 1st of December; there are places in Brooklyn where distilling is carried on unlawfully; some of them are carried on in the Fifth ward in the neighborhood of Gold and Prospect streets, and near the Navy Yard wall and the East River; that is the principal location; I have orders and authority to suppress this by ascertaining where it is done and reporting the facts to the Collector of Internal Revenue; I detail men to seize the property for any violation of the law; we seized both property and persons; I had information prior to the 14th that illicit distillation was being carried on in the Fifth ward, in Dixon's alley, Gold street and York street, also in Johnson street, near Gold, and Plymouth, near Little street, and Water street, near Hudson avenue, and in Little, near United States street; that is all I remember now; this information I reported to the Collector; that and other reports of a similar character have been given to the Collector frequently within the past few months; before the night of the 14th I asked that a deputy collector should be with me to make this seizure; my authority for making seizures comes by act of Congress, and is provided by the government; I have authority to use force in opening premises and entering into any places where it is known to be carried on; I knew that illicit distilling was being carried on at these places; the power to make arrests and seizures is vested in the Collector and United States Marshal by virtue of their office; in preparing for the raid of the 14th I ordered all the men in my office to assemble at two o'clock A. M. on the 14th at the office of United States Marshal in Montague street; I there divided them into squads of eight or ten each, and directed them to proceed to the Marine Barracks by different routes; at a quarter to three I joined them there, accompanied by the Deputy Collector; I then explained to them what duty they were expected to perform; we then proceeded through the Navy Yard to the York street side thereof; when each was detailed as arranged they proceeded to their respective duties; it was a quarter past three o'clock at this time; the Marshals proceeded to make arrests against those whom they had warrants; the Deputy Collector and the Assessor proceeded to an illicit still in Dixon's alley, near York street, leaving myself and five or six others in York street, nearly opposite Dixon's alley; I had previously arranged that a company of sixty marines should remain inside the Navy Yard gate ready to assist us if called upon; the gates were closed so that the marines should not be seen from the street; while standing there a shot was fired from the northeast corner of Hudson avenue and York street; immediately thereafter a volley of from seven to ten shots came from the same corner; we advanced toward the corner when a number of shots were fired from the northeast corner; in the second fire Mr. Gilbert said, "General, I am shot;" we were then retiring toward the gate, the officers drawing their pistols; immediately after hearing Gilbert say he was shot the officers fired, and he himself fired; I requested Gilbert to go into the yard twice, which he did, after firing two or three shots; during the firing Colonel Broome joined us and fired two or three shots; I called upon Colonel Broome to bring out the marines to assist us; just as he returned the firing ceased, and the officers commenced to assemble from the various localities, and the marines came from the Navy Yard and took position on York street, right resting on Hudson avenue; we remained there until the marshals had completed their work and brought in their prisoners, and then retired to the Navy Yard; I should think about from a quarter to two to four o'clock was the time; during and before the firing I saw no person in the street, except my party; I saw no person, and could only locate the position of the parties who fired upon us by the flashes of the pistols; I think the lamps up the street were dark; it was a hazy, foggy morning; I made my calculations to be there just at the break of day, but in consequence of the fog it was dark. The witness then showed the position of Mr. Gilbert at the time he was shot and the situation of the different parties by a diagram; a Mr. Selvage and a Mr. Weeks were shot, beside Mr. Gilbert, but so slightly as to almost escape unhurt; I am duly authorized to carry out the law in self defence; I have on former occasions been furnished with troops by order of the government; by no possibility could Gilbert have been shot by any of my men; it was an impossibility; Gilbert was five or six feet from me when he was shot.

TESTIMONY OF ASSISTANT ASSESSOR WOOD.

The testimony of Assistant Assessor James F. Wood corroborates that of General Jourdan. He testified that he was present at the raid in the Fifth ward on the morning of the 14th inst., under the command of Assessor Jourdan and acted under his authority; went there in company with Assistant Assessors William Green, George Weeks and others, and took his position on York street, near Hudson avenue; was standing in York street when a single shot was fired from the northeast corner of Hudson avenue and York street; the shot appeared to come from a distance of a foot or eighteen inches from the house; stepped into a doorway and immediately after a volley of eight or nine shots were fired from the same location; then saw Weeks fall; remained in the same position until the marines came out; immediately after heard some one, who was apparently running down Hudson avenue towards the river, say, "You —— we have one shot for every one of you;" went down towards the Navy Yard gate, and there heard that Gilbert had been shot; was then placed in charge of a prisoner and kept guard over him until the raid was over.

TESTIMONY OF GAUGER LITTLE.

Edward H. Little testified that he was a United States gauger and was present on the morning of the 14th inst. during the raid in the Fifth ward; was near Gilbert when he was shot; heard a volley of eight or nine shots fired; when Gilbert called to him to come to him that he was shot helped to remove him to the Navy Yard.

VERDICT OF THE JURY.

We, the undersigned, find that Clinton Gilbert came to his death by a pistol shot wound inflicted by a pistol in the hands of some person unknown to the jury, while in the discharge of his duties as an officer of the Internal Revenue in York street, near the Navy Yard gate.

We, the undersigned jurors, would recommend that the civil authorities of Brooklyn offer a reward for the apprehension and conviction of the person who inflicted said wound on the 14th day of July, 1871.

AN EXTRAORDINARY BALE OF COTTON.

A sample of the finest bale of cotton ever produced was exhibited at the New York Cotton Exchange yesterday. The weight of the bale was 443 pounds, which, in the aggregate, realized the respectable sum of $3,312 20—an average of $7 48 per pound. The cotton was raised by W. B. McShaw, Lee county, Mississippi, was picked by himself, wife and daughter in their parlor, and took the first premium of $500 for the best bale of short staple cotton offered at the St. Louis Fair last October. Again, it took the sweepstakes prize of $1,000 offered for the best bale of either long or short staple. After this Mr. McShaw donated his cotton to the Southern Educational Society, which offered it on the St. Louis Corn Exchange, and sold it to Mr. D. G. Tutt at thirty cents per pound. Mr. Tutt, in turn, presented it to the same society, when it was again sold at twenty-five cents per pound. Again it was presented to the society, when it realized thirty-eight cents per pound, the buyer in this case presenting it as formerly. After this it was not offered for sale by the society, but was raffled for $1,000, and afterwards sold and resold, to be finally purchased by Messrs. Shyrock & Rowland, of St. Louis, who shipped it to Messrs. Norton, Slaughter & Co., of this city, for the purpose of getting it so far away as to prevent it being entered for the $1,000 premium to be offered at the fair in October next, as well as to test the appreciation of Northern factors and manufacturers of the industry of Mrs. McShaw and daughter, whose fair hands have prepared for exhibition, beyond doubt, the finest bale of cotton ever grown in any country. Messrs. Norton, Slaughter & Co. report the sale of this cotton at fifty cents per pound, through Messrs. S. Munn, Son & Co., cotton brokers, to Mr. Jonathan Earl, treasurer of the Norfolk and New Brunswick Hosiery Company, of New Brunswick, N. J.

At the request of Mr. Earl Mr. T. J. Slaughter will write Mrs. McShaw for measurement of herself and daughter, who will be presented with full undersuits manufactured from this remarkable cotton.

SAD TIDINGS FROM THE SEA SHORE.

On Sunday afternoon last, according to the statement of Captain Jones, three men in a rowboat were drowned off Ruffle's Point. Their bodies were not recovered.

On Wednesday the dead body of an unknown man was found on the beach at Northwest Point. It was not recognized by any one and yesterday was buried on Barren Island.

THE GALLOWS.

Execution of an Ex-Federal Soldier in Virginia.

Thomas McGiffin, of Maine, Hanged as Accessory to a Murder.

History of the Crime—The Career of Two Carpet-Baggers.

Affecting Appeal by the Condemned Man.

Sickening Scene at the Scaffold—The Rope Breaks.

GREENSVILLE COURT HOUSE, Va., July 21, 1871.

Nearly four years ago a radical orator named Connolly, of the carpet-bag species, proclaimed to a large assemblage of negroes in the African church at Richmond that it was now their time to "hold high carnival," intimating that the military authorities were specially sent here to punish the whites and protect the negroes, and that the latter might with impunity commit any and all sorts of outrages on the whites in retaliation for the wrongs and oppressions of that race upon the negroes during a bondage of two hundred years. Happily for the people of Virginia, the defeat of the policy which the reconstruction acts were meant to secure saved them from that lawlessness and violence which prevailed to such an alarming extent in the South where the Congressional programme was triumphant. But they did not escape altogether. During the years of 1868 and 1869 among the horde of Northern adventurers that arrived in Virginia was one Dr. Lewis, who took up his abode in Brunswick county, organized a Union League and became teacher of the negro youth. Following the inspiration and teachings of his fellow carpet-bagger Connolly, the Richmond orator, he armed his league and at its head marched the streets of Lawrenceville, the county seat of Brunswick, with flaunting banners, yelling hideously, making hostile demonstrations and frequently perpetrating the most flagrant outrages. This was carried to such a fearful extent that the people became alarmed for the peace and safety of the community, and Lewis was arrested, tried and found guilty of

INCITING INSURRECTION.

and was sentenced to the Penitentiary for five years. In accordance with his sentence he was lodged in that institution, but in those days of military rule, when General Canby commanded District No. 1, the arrest and punishment of a "loyal" man was taken as an evidence of the still smouldering rebellious spirit in the South; and Governor Wells then ruling here by virtue of military authority, as is the custom with all radical Governors, pardoned Lewis a month after he was imprisoned. Upon representing to General Canby that he was persecuted by the rebels on account of his loyalty and devotion to the Union, that military autocrat granted Lewis certain documents exempting him from arrest by civil process. Triumphant, exulting and defiant he returned to Brunswick county, where he again resumed the leadership of the negro league, and renewed his hostile operations until a perfect was inaugurated in the county. In this course he was ably seconded by a man named Thomas McGiffin, an ex-federal soldier, recently from North Carolina, but a native of the State of Maine. By constant haranguing and preaching the negroes became frenzied with excitement, and they committed excesses and outrages daily, until lawlessness reigned supreme in the county. Under these circumstances a fresh effort was made by the civil authorities to maintain law and order and protect the people from outrage and violence. Accordingly a peace warrant was issued for the arrest of Lewis, but getting wind of it he continued to elude the officers in whose hands it was placed for a considerable period. Constable Drummond, the officer who had the warrant, receiving information of the whereabouts of Lewis, summoned a posse of eleven men, himself making the twelfth, and with this force he proceeded on the Lawrenceville county road to effect the capture of Lewis. It was not long afterwards when the posse met both Lewis and McGiffin

REIGN OF TERROR

MOUNTED AND ARMED

cap-à-pie. The two parties halted at about twelve paces and eyed each other intently. Lewis had his rifle cocked in his hand and McGiffin had a navy revolver similarly prepared. Constable Drummond then said:—

"We have a warrant for your arrest, Dr. Lewis."

LEWIS—I have protection papers from General Canby exempting me from arrest by civil process. Let me see your warrant.

Upon this one of the constable's party took the warrant in his hands and called out, "I will read it for you."

MCGIFFIN—If you come here I will shoot your damn guts out. No surrender is my motto. Surrender ain't my name.

Hostilities being now openly declared, Lewis and McGiffin cautiously fell back some thirty or forty paces, confronting the constable's posse as they did so. The posse then resolutely advanced the same distance, all of them being on foot except two.

DRUMMOND (with his gun at a ready)—I command you to surrender in the name of the State.

Lewis then raised his rifle to his shoulder, McGiffin crying out, "Shoot him! Shoot him! Kill him!"

A member of the posse then levelled his gun at Lewis, when Drummond exclaimed, "Hold! Let us have no bloodshed."

FELL DEAD IN HIS TRACKS,

shot through the heart. Lewis and McGiffin then wheeled their horses round and dashed down the road at a breakneck speed, which they did not slacken until they reached their homes by another route. Hastily collecting together what articles they needed, and all the money they had, these two branded murderers fled the State. A few hours' ride brought them into North Carolina, but traversing that entire State without making many long stoppages, they reached South Carolina and settled at length in the remote and unfrequented district or county of Horry. Here they resumed their respective occupations of farm hand and school teacher, remaining undisturbed nearly twelve months, when at last the bloodhounds of justice came upon their trail. After a desperate running fight of over eight miles, in which he received a wound in the right breast,

M'GIFFIN WAS ARRESTED

and brought to Richmond by Detective Knox, of that city. Lewis was arrested about the same time, and both were lodged in the City Prison of Richmond for safe keeping. From the time of his arrest and imprisonment Lewis became the victim of remorse. His crimes preyed heavily on his mind, sleep forsook him, he stopped talking to the jail officials, left his meals untouched, walked his cell all night, muttering incoherently—at last becoming a raving maniac. Both were brought up for trial at the April term of the Court of this county, where they had removed their trial. Owing to Lewis' idiotic condition the jury could not agree upon a verdict, and his trial was postponed until next October. McGiffin elected to be

TRIED THEN AND THERE,

though he could have had it deferred until after the trial of Lewis, who was the principal in the crime. Evidence, substantially as above narrated, was elicited on the trial, which occupied four days. At its close the jury remained absent but a short time, returning with a verdict of guilty, according to the indictment, which made McGiffin a principal as well as Lewis, though some argue he was only an accessory, and should have been so tried. Sentence of death was then passed and the criminal was returned to Richmond for safe keeping. The condemned man,

THOMAS M'GIFFIN,

was a native of Augusta county, State of Maine. His father and mother both died while he was young, and as a consequence he grew up in ignorance and vice. He was about five feet ten inches in height, of slender build, twenty-four years of age, sallow complexion, dark hair, hazel eyes, with side whiskers, light mustache and goatee, was ordinarily intelligent, and his features were rather pleasing than otherwise. He enlisted in the 104th New York infantry, and served in several campaigns in this State; and when his term of service expired he joined the navy, and was present at the bombardment of Fort Fisher by Admiral Porter's fleet. At the termination of hostilities he came to Richmond, where he remained but a short time—leading a roving sort of life until he settled at Porter's gold mine, in Franklin county, N. C. Here he wooed and won a damsel of the North State, seven years his senior, who accompanied him to Brunswick county, in this State, where they were married. His wife is now at her home in North Carolina, whence she wrote him that she never expected to see him again in this world. A boy, now four years old, was the result of this marriage. While he was yet at Richmond I visited McGiffin in the City Prison and had the following

INTERVIEW WITH HIM.

He was glad to meet a reporter of the HERALD, which he considered the greatest newspaper in the world, and he knew it would do him justice.

REPORTER—Do you consider you have had a fair and impartial trial?

MCGIFFIN—No, sir. I was convicted and sentenced on account of prejudice.

REPORTER—What prejudice?

MCGIFFIN—Because I am a Northern man, and because they thought I belonged to the League, which I didn't.

REPORTER—Then you are under the impression that you ought not to be executed?

MCGIFFIN—Yes, sir, I am. I had no hand in the killing of Drummond, not that I say he ought not to have been killed; he went than he would have gone. I was along with Lewis that day, but I took no part in it.

REPORTER—Did you not call out to Lewis to shoot him?

MCGIFFIN—No, I did not; and the witness that swore to that knew he was perjuring himself. Some of the witnesses swore they followed us up, but the whole posse

RAN LIKE COWARDS

when Lewis fired and Drummond fell.

REPORTER—Have you applied for a respite to the Governor?

MCGIFFIN—Yes, sir; my lawyer applied for a respite until Lewis could be tried, but the Governor refused to grant it.

REPORTER—Well, the Governor is a Northern man; he would be likely to do the best he could for you?

MCGIFFIN—Yes; but I reckon he is like the balance of the politicians. He knows which side his bread is buttered, and he would not go against the wishes of the Brunswick people, who would rather fast a week and go in sackcloth and ashes than that I should escape the gallows.

REPORTER—What could you hope for in case of a respite?

MCGIFFIN—Lewis' trial would clear me. It could then be proved that Drummond came that day prepared to kill me. Lewis had also a witness to prove that Drummond, who was once laid in wait for him (Lewis) to kill him, but his coward's heart failed him and he could not fire the shot.

REPORTER—Are you prepared to die?

MCGIFFIN—I hope I am if I ain't; but I would like to have a short while longer to serve my God. If Drummond had shot me that day, as he fully intended to, I should have went straight to hell; but now I have repented and made my peace with my Maker. (He had embraced the Catholic faith, was constantly visited by a priest and wore a crucifix around his neck.)

REPORTER—Have you any hope of being saved from the gallows?

MCGIFFIN—Yes; while there is life there is hope, and I possess the means of ending my life right here if I wished. It's a terrible means of death, the gallows.

REPORTER—You cannot possibly contemplate suicide?

MCGIFFIN—Well, no, not exactly. They say that is the unpardonable sin. I would prefer death in any shape to remaining manacled here in this horrible hot den.

This ended my talk with McGiffin and I took my leave. A few evenings since he cut one of his manacles in two with some sharp instrument, but every effort to discover it in his cell proved fruitless, and up to the last there were strong apprehensions that he would put an end to his own life.

Though there is no doubt that McGiffin did seriously contemplate suicide to avoid the terrors of the scaffold, yet he failed to do it, either from a lack of sufficient resolution or from a want of the means. During his stay in the Richmond jail he was heavily manacled and closely watched, and this may have prevented him from carrying out his idea of self-destruction. Sheriff Bidwell, of this county, arrived in Richmond yesterday, accompanied by a guard, to conduct McGiffin here. The condemned man was provided with a suit of new clothes, consisting of a blue cloth coat, dark cassimere pants, black slouch hat, neat calico shirt and black necktie, in which he made quite a respectable appearance. His manacles remained on him, and his arms were bound with cords at the elbows around the waist. A carriage conveyed himself and guards from the jail to the depot, where he took the cars almost unobserved and began

THE RIDE TO DEATH.

As soon as it became known that a condemned felon, on his way to the scaffold, was on the train the passengers flocked into the forward car to see him, and it soon was packed. McGiffin spoke cheerfully and resignedly of his fast approaching doom and held quite a spirited discussion with the jailer and his guards on the subject of eternal punishment beyond the grave, in which he took, as his position, the Catholic doctrine that all sinners must first be cleansed in purgatory, but eventually reach the kingdom of heaven. The passengers listened to this discussion with the most absorbed interest, and before long it became developed that McGiffin had another plan of evading the gallows besides that of committing suicide. It was observed by the watchful Sheriff that while McGiffin was most earnest and animated, completely engaging the attention of his listeners, that he cast furtive glances at the window of the car and was ready at any moment to slip his handcuffs, for his hands were quite small. He had intended to

JUMP FROM THE CARS

as the train passed over the James River bridge and either be shot or killed in the attempt, and thus save himself the ignominy of a gallows death; but Sheriff Bidwell detected his manœuvres and quickly warned him to desist, as his efforts would be useless. After this he abandoned all hope of escape and submitted with a good grace to what seemed inevitable. At all the intermediate stations between this point and Richmond large numbers of people were assembled to obtain a passing glimpse of the man "going to be hanged." Upon the arrival of the train the condemned man was conveyed in a wagon from the depot at Belfield to the jail here. Now, the murder of Drummond occurred in Brunswick, where feeling against the criminals ran high, and hence they elected to be tried in this the adjoining county, and although McGiffin was sentenced and executed here I found a strong

POPULAR SYMPATHY IN HIS FAVOR

and a general belief that the punishment was too severe and terrible for the part he had taken in the crime. This was not the case, however, among the people who came from Brunswick to witness the execution. They were unanimous in the expression of the justice of his sentence, and seemed rather to exult over than regret the terrible punishment. On the east side of the town, just beyond an old Confederate fortification, which was built to protect the railroad bridge over the Meherrin River, the scaffold was erected on a slight prominence in an old field, which made it conspicuous. It was a large, substantial structure, having a platform about ten feet high, with a drop in the centre, which was surmounted by a gallows, eight feet above the platform, making

A GHASTLY SPECTACLE,

which was viewed with intense interest by crowds of both whites and negroes during the morning. Owing to apprehensions that McGiffen might do himself violence, some of the guards remained in his cell the entire night. He prayed and conversed on spiritual matters alternately, and read a small Testament which he had by the light of a candle, sleeping but little, and then dreaming and speaking in his sleep. Father Janssen, a Catholic priest, arrived by the morning train at eight o'clock, and soon after went to the cell of the condemned man and engaged in the solemn services of that Church before death. While the clergyman was reading the services McGiffin became overpowered by weariness, and, placing his hand on the priest's shoulder, he begged him to continue reading, but said, "I can't keep awake; I must sleep." He then stretched his head upon his pallet and said, "Wake me up in half an hour, at eleven o'clock; I will then be refreshed." In a few seconds he was sound asleep and seemed to enjoy a last repose—calm and tranquil and not at all suggestive of a murderer's slumbers. At the hour of eleven he was awakened, and were resumed, continuing until the hour of noon. By that time the town was thronged with vehicles of every description, and a crowd that numbered over two thousand, and composed of all ages and sexes of both races, the females of the negro race predominating. In this assemblage the demoralizing effect of public executions was apparent in the eager, craving and impatient manner in which the crowd awaited the scaffold's tragedy. They moved restlessly about the jail and roamed between the gallows and that building in continuous stream, watching and waiting anxiously for the terrible event. Besides being demoralizing, too, public executions entail a loss to the communities in which they take place that sometimes is serious and irreparable. The labor of over one thousand persons, just now in the harvest season, was thrown away to-day to gratify a depraved and morbid curiosity in witnessing the expiring agonies of a condemned fellow creature.

THE MARCH TO THE SCAFFOLD.

About twelve M. the Sheriff entered the cell of the condemned man and pinioned him by the arms. He was then conducted without the jail, leaning upon the arms of two assistants. A procession was formed, with the Sheriff at its head, which, followed by a large concourse of people, moved slowly and solemnly toward the scaffold, and preceded by a rabble, running and scampering as if for life and death to obtain eligible places near the place of execution. The clergyman, Sheriff and Mr. Odwyer, a jailer from Richmond, accompanied McGiffin to the platform, the steps to which he ascended firmly, though assisted. He was ghastly pale, but composed. The clergyman and prisoner then knelt down, the former offering a fervent and feeling prayer, after which McGiffin stood up, a smile upon his countenance, and he took a survey of the crowd. An assistant then pinioned his hands behind his back and his ankles. During this operation he spoke to two or three persons whom he recognized, and then addressed the crowd as follows, in a clear and steady voice:—

THE DOOMED MAN'S DYING WORDS.

"I hope this will be a solemn warning to you all; yes, a warning to beware of whiskey and bad company. You all seem sad and look sadder than I feel, and if you were in my place you would not feel sad either. I know I am going to heaven, to leave this world of trouble and trials, and I shall go from purgatory to heaven, where there is nothing but joy and bliss. My only regret at leaving this world is on account of my little boy, whom I leave behind me. I ask you all to pray for him, and I will pray for every one of you, from the cradle up. As soon as my breath leaves my body I will see you all as I see you, every one of you, and I will pray for your forgiveness. I believe this is all I have to say. Goodby, ladies and gentlemen."

THE LAST ACT IN THE TRAGEDY.

In referring to the crime he reiterated what is contained in the interview above. At the conclusion of the speech the Sheriff, priest and deputies took a last farewell, and soon after the noose was placed over the criminal's head and tightened. The black cap was then drawn over the features, and at the same instant it began to rain. All those remaining on the platform had stepped clear of the drop; the Sheriff gave a signal; the heavy drop swung back, and

THE ROPE SNAPPED LIKE A THREAD,

McGiffin falling to the ground with a force that was terrible, the concussion being distinctly heard through the crowd, which stood an instant transfixed with horror. Then, with awe-stricken faces, large numbers turned and went away to shut out the repetition that might follow of this horrible scene. Four men lifted the pinioned, half strangled criminal and carried him back, placing him in an erect position again on the drop. He coolly requested the Sheriff to loosen the noose quick if the rope broke again. The cap was still over his face, the loosened noose and broken rope still dangling around his neck and his clothes covered with the earth from which he had been taken a hideous effigy.

A SICKENING SIGHT.

The same rope was tied where it broke, making the fall about one foot shorter, and again, at twenty-five minutes past twelve P. M., the drop fell. The crowd mostly turned their heads as the executioner withdrew the bolt, but looked round rapidly to see if the criminal was suspended. This time the tragic act was a success. The body of McGiffin swung in the air, the fall having been about five feet. The noose was not properly adjusted, and respiration continued some eight minutes, during which there were convulsive movements of the lower limbs. In twelve minutes pulsation had ceased, and after hanging twenty-five life was declared extinct and the body was cut down, placed in a coffin and

BURIED NEAR THE SCAFFOLD.

The neck had not been broken; but, guilty or innocent, the soul of McGiffin was in eternity.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Judge Blatchford, after having disposed of all the motions and business set down for hearing, has adjourned the court until the 8th of August. Meantime His Honor will have enough to do in writing up decisions on argued cases; for instance, in the Erie litigation, his opinion upon which may be looked for on or about the 29th or 30th of the present month. The other departments of the court—Bankruptcy and the United States Commissioners' offices—are open as usual. There is "no let up" in these, in which the officials are pretty well worked, even during this warm weather.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE.

Charge of Passing a Counterfeit Bill.

Before Commissioner Shields.

The United States vs. Antonio Grindelli.—The defendant had been charged with passing a $20 counterfeit bill. After having taken all the testimony the Commissioner discharged Grindelli, there being nothing in the testimony to support the accusation.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

The Law of False Tokens.

Before Judge Robinson.

Rufus Hatch vs. Fay H. Purdy.—This was a motion to discharge an order of arrest issued against defendant Purdy at the instance of plaintiff, in an action to recover on a protested check for $500. The affidavit on which the order of arrest was issued set forth that defendant gave his check to plaintiff for $500 on the Tarrytown Bank; that a similar check had passed between the same parties for $1,000 and had been returned to plaintiff protested almost immediately after the receipt of the $500 check; that, therefore, plaintiff sent his bookkeeper to Tarrytown to present the $500 check for payment, who there received the information that defendant had deposited $400 in the bank a short time before and had almost immediately drawn it out again, and that there were then no funds to his credit in the bank. On the motion to vacate the order of arrest it was shown by affidavits on behalf of defendant that he gave the check in good faith; that it was given, not for cash, but to cover margins on gold transactions; that though he had no money in the bank to meet the check at the time he gave it, yet he kept his accounts there, and intended to have money there on deposit in time to meet it if it had reached the bank through the ordinary course of collection through the banks, instead of being sent directly for payment; that he was taken sick just about the time the check was given, and continued so for about two weeks, thus interfering with his business; that since giving the check deposits had been made by him in the same bank amounting to over $8,000 and if it had been subsequently presented it would have been paid. In reference to this state of facts, affidavits were read on behalf of plaintiff to the effect that defendant had got a $25 check cashed by another party, and that it was protested for non-payment; that he had the reputation at some watering places of giving drafts which were also protested, and that on one occasion as a member of Christ church (Episcopal) he had got control of funds, the result of a lecture by Cordova, for missionary purposes, and had neglected to pay the amount over. The Judge held that this church missionary business was hardly appropriate to the motion except as bearing on the question of fraudulent intent in issuing this check. It was contended on behalf of the defendant that it was a very common if not a universal custom among merchants to issue checks without having the funds on deposit to meet them, expecting to make the account good before the check had reached the bank through the ordinary channels of bank collection, and that if defendant could be held under arrest in this transaction then almost every merchant and business man in the city was liable to a similar fate at some time in his business experience.

Judge Robinson vacated the order of arrest on condition that defendant stipulate not to bring an action for false imprisonment.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Setting Aside a Referee's Report.

Before Judge Cardozo.

Maria Gallinger vs. Simon Gallinger.—In this case, the full particulars of which were published yesterday, a motion, it will be remembered, was made to set aside the referee's report, the action being brought for divorce, as not allowing sufficient alimony, the amount allowed being $7 a week. The Judge rendered a decision yesterday upon the motion ordering the report to be set aside. He made this decision on the ground that there was no reason why the referee should have fixed the value of the defendant's property at $40,000 in the face of a bona fide offer of $52,000; that the debts sworn to by the defendant were to a great extent very suspicious; that, except his wife, whom the decree settles he has foully ill-treated, he has no one but a son, aged nineteen, dependent upon him, and that, under the circumstances, it is little enough to require him to pay alimony at the rate of $1,200 a year.

Decisions.

Lawrence et al. vs Taylor.—Memoranda for counsel.

Kinsman vs. Kinsman.—Motion denied.

In the Matter of the Application of Henry A. Kaly.—Motion granted.

Louis B. Cohen vs. Florence Wilkowski.—Order vacated without costs.

Same vs. Same.—Motion granted on payment of $10 costs to defendant, who has appeared.

Rodman vs. Jones.—Order settled.

THE RIVERSIDE PARK QUESTION.

Supplemental Report of the Commissioners—Judge Barnard Confirms It—Appeals Threatened.

The Riverside Park matter came up again yesterday before Judge Barnard, of the Supreme Court. As on the previous occasion, when the subject was before the Court, there was a large attendance of parties interested and nearly every one represented by separate counsel. It will be remembered that when the report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment was first presented for confirmation various objections were made to the same, and that the Judge overruled them all, except one, in which it was shown that no compensation had been given for the portions of the Bloomingdale road and the old Twelfth avenue included in the park, and he accordingly fixed the additional compensation to be allowed certain owners for the same, and sent the report back to the Commissioners to be altered accordingly. When the report was again to be presented the Commissioners had not been able to meet, but several land owners on closed or newly opened streets claimed that they were in the exact position of the owners on the old Twelfth avenue and should be allowed similar awards. The Court refused to alter its order unless with the consent of the Corporation Counsel. Thus the case stood at the reconvening of the Court yesterday for further hearing in the matter.

Mr. O'Gorman, Corporation Counsel, presented a supplemental or amended report, drawn in conformity with the order of the Court and duly signed by the Commissioners.

Mr. Devlin said that so far as Mr. Karrigan, one of his clients, was concerned, he having received a fair award he had nothing to say, but he would ask leave to file a list of the others for whom he appeared, so they might be included in case of appeal.

Ex-Judge Strong, on behalf of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, said that points had been presented to the Court on their behalf which, as they had not been noticed by His Honor in his opinion, had not, perhaps, come under his notice. He insisted that the railroad company had not received any benefit, and that it was the duty of the Court to see that it received its just rights.

Judge Barnard said that a large number of briefs, some of them very voluminous, had been given to him, embracing some one hundred or more points, and that he had examined them, but had noticed only those two on which he thought the Commissioners had erred. The rest he overruled.

Counsel for owners on Seventy-second and Seventy-third streets asked a correction, as being within the privilege of the Judge's order.

Judge Barnard said that it was too late, unless the Corporation Counsel would consent.

Mr. O'Gorman stated that he supposed he had no discretion in the matter. He could not go beyond the order of the Court; with this order the amended report concurred. It contained no more and no less.

The Judge signed the order confirming the report, after which he directed an adjournment of the Court sine die.

WALL STREET, }
FRIDAY, July 21—6 P. M. }

On 'Change to-day wheat was heavy and dull. The cotton market was more active at unchanged quotations.

MONEY TWO TO THREE PER CENT.

The money market was easy at two to three per cent.

Paper was dull and more difficult of sale. Buyers are indisposed to take anything having longer than sixty days to run. For such short paper the demand is good at 4½ a 5½ per cent. Paper of longer date is hardly salable below 6 per cent, and is quoted at 6 a 7 per cent.

Foreign exchange was nominally unchanged on the basis of 110¼ a 110⅜ for bankers' sixty-day sterling, and 110⅞ a 110⅞ for sight bills, but there was a pressure to sell borrowed bills, and sales out of second hand were made at ⅛ a ¼ below the asking rates.

GOLD WEAK—112¼ A 112.

The gold market was dull and weak, and declined from 112¼ to 112 on the sales of sterling bills above referred to, and also in consequence of the small engagements of specie for export to-morrow, which is a favorite day usually with remitters. The market eventually reacted to 112⅛, which was bid at the close. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	112¼	2 P. M.	112⅛
11 A. M.	112¼	2:42 P. M.	112
11:14 A. M.	112⅛	3 P. M.	112⅛
12 M.	112⅛	4 P. M.	112⅛
1 P. M.	112⅛	5:30 P. M.	112⅛ a 112¼

In the gold loan market the sales were 1 per cent for carrying and flat for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$21,230,000
Gold balances	1,224,657
Currency balances	1,377,515

The engagements of specie for Saturday's steamers foot up $340,000.

GOVERNMENTS STEADY.

The government list opened steady, but fell off a fraction all around at the noon board. Subsequently the market regained the morning's figures, and closed steady, the lower quotation of gold being offset by the fact that the coupons now represent more or less accrued interest. The following were the closing street prices:—United States currency sixes, 113⅞ a 114⅛; do., 1881, registered, 115⅜ a 115⅝; do. do., coupon, 115⅜ a 115⅝; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 113⅛ a 113⅜; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 114⅛ a 114⅜; do. do., 1864, do. do., 113⅜ a 113⅝; do. do., 1865, do. do., 113⅞ a 114; do. do., registered, January and July, 112⅛ a 113; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 112⅛ a 112⅜; do. do., 1867, do. do., 112⅞ a 113⅛; do. do., 1868, do. do., 113 a 113⅛; do. ten-forties, registered, 112⅝ a 112⅞; do. do., coupon, 113⅛ a 113⅜.

THE NEW LOAN.

There were no subscriptions to the new loan to-day.

In view of the fact that the London agent of the Associated Press recently telegraphed the brilliant success of Mr. Boutwell's new loan in Europe the following extract from a Washington despatch will be read with interest:—

Assistant Secretary Richardson's letter to Secretary Boutwell contains nothing intimating that he has been or will be successful in negotiating one dollar of the loan.

SOUTHERN SECURITIES DULL.

The Southern list was dull. The following were the closing street prices for the several State and corporate bonds, including the new Virginia consols and "deferred" bonds:—Tennessee, ex coupon, 72¼ a 72½; do. new, 72 a 72½; Virginia, ex coupon, 66 a 66½; do. new, 73 a 74; do. registered stock, old, 55 a 55½; do. consols, 70 a 71; do. deferred, 25 a 26; Georgia sixes, 86 a 88; do. sevens, 94 a 95; North Carolina, ex coupon, 44½ a 45; do. funding, 1866, 33 a 35; do. do., 1868, 30 a 32; do. new, 26½ a 27; do. special tax, 19½ a 20; Missouri sixes, 99 a 99¼; do. STOCKS LOWER AND STEADY.

The stock market was feverish throughout the forenoon, with a rally in Northwestern to 67, but became heavy in the afternoon, and after submitting to a further decline became steady and very dull. The chief feature was a tumble in Hannibal and St. Joseph, which dropped from 79 to 73. Eight thousand shares of Western Union which had been held on a "put" were delivered, occasioning a decline to 56⅛.

TOMBS POLICE COURT.

Wedded Entanglements—One Wife Too Many—A Case of Cognac—Pocket-Picking—Terrible Outrage on a Married Woman—"Red Bob's" Revenge.

Before Judge Hogan.

Mr. David George Hedgens has just got himself into an ugly difficulty by his predilection for plurality in wives. David is a young man, well dressed and tolerably good looking. On the 10th of October, 1865, he married Haidee Elizabeth, his wife, in this city, and they lived happily up to the fourth week in June last, when David got into a wandering spirit and left his wife at their residence on Staten Island to join himself to Margaret Kane. On the 10th of June, 1871, he married Miss Kane, at the Allen street Methodist Episcopal church, knowing his wife was living. At the time of his arrest, when David was questioned about the little affair, he manfully acknowledged it. His wife has instituted against him, but that only makes his case the better, as it is alleged he has avowed his intention, as soon as the divorce has been obtained, to remarry Margaret. He was locked up in default of $2,000 bail.

A DIVORCE SUIT

As Detectives Heidelberg and Tilman were walking down town yesterday morning they noticed three sneak thieves going along Park row, one of whom carried a case of brandy on his shoulder. The detectives gave chase, but two of the thieves got off; they captured the third one and the brandy, which is now lying at the Central Office waiting for an owner. The sneak was caught at the corner of Beekman street and Park row. The brandy is marked "T. Hines & Co."

John Tierney, a simple youth who hangs out at 152 Cherry street, took a walk up the Sixth avenue on the night before last. John saw or imagined he perceived something unusual in one of the heavenly bodies, and looking around for some one to whom he could express his admiration of the phenomenon he had discovered, found Sarah Wilson at his elbow. The gentle Sarah looked and admired and went into ecstasies over the rising comet (John thought he had discovered a comet), while she put her hand into his pocket and picked out $40. John was so delighted with the enthusiasm of the lovely Sarah for the heavenly bodies that he asked her to take a stroll, and they rambled along the streets until they reached the young Sarah's home in Cherry street; and John was chagrined to find that Sarah's "ma" was chiding her for keeping such late hours; but Johnny was still more surprised to find when he was alone that his coin was gone. He questioned one of the civic heroes upon the subject, and the conversation ended in Sarah's arrest and final commitment in default of $2,000.

A woman, named Ellen Reed, who sells mint in the drinking saloons, went into one of these places, on the southeast corner of West and Liberty streets. While she was there an unknown man requested her to drink something. She took a glass of sarsaparilla and left the place. Shortly after this man met her at the door of an office at 146 Liberty street, and he with two others grossly abused and ill-treated her. Mrs. Reed is a married woman and the mother of six children, three of whom are now living. The office at 146 Liberty street is kept by Frank McCormack, Jack Conway and Michael Keegan. When the poor woman came into Court yesterday morning to make a complaint she was approached by a man named James McFlynn, who offered her $50 to leave the place and say no more about the outrage. Mrs. Reed refused to do so and told the whole to Judge Hogan, who instantly ordered the arrest of McFlynn. McCormack is the only one of the three men who has yet been arrested.

An examination has been held in the case of Arnold and Leavens, for obtaining money on land they pretended to own in Suffolk county, Long Island. Mr. Rogers, of the firm of Rogers & Quin, was witness in the case, and said these two men had come to him some time since and asked him to procure them a loan of $2,500 on real estate they had on Long Island. Mr. Rogers went to Mr. McElroy, of Nassau street, whom he knew had money to lend, and proposed the matter to him. The affair was finally settled and Mr. McElroy lent the money at seven per cent interest, for the accommodation $200. The loan was paid over to Arnold and Leavens by Mr. Rogers, and it has since turned out that neither of them had any claim whatever to the property they mortgaged for this money. Arnold was remanded for further examination, but Leavens has not yet been arrested.

Another case of attempting to meddle with a complainant and buy her off happened towards the close of the Court. A Mrs. Margaret Ann Abbott, of 28 Mulberry street, had an altercation with her neighbor, Mrs. Sophia Estrom, and Mrs. Sophia, to be revenged upon her lady friend, poured a lot of scalding water upon her head from one of the upper windows of the house.

The husband of Mrs. Estrom endeavored to arrange the matter for $25, but it could not be done. Judge Hogan said to him when he was brought before him:—"I will not allow any complainant to be interfered with in this Court while I am here. That, to me, is one of the greatest offences a man can be guilty of, and I do not allow it to go unpunished whenever it comes before me. You take advantage of the poverty of the complainant to tempt him with a bribe, and you are at the same time sheltering a lawbreaker and fostering crime. You likewise show designing and malicious people how they can trade upon the susceptibilities of respectable citizens, and point out a means by which they could extort money from them. I will not permit it to go on."

AQUATICS.

Three Boat Races on the Connecticut, at Ingleside.

The Single Scull Race Won by Ellis Ward.

The Harvard Freshmen Beat the Brown Crew.

The Amherst Agriculturists Carry Off the Prize Against the Harvards and the Browns.

ANOTHER OVERTHROW OF FAVORITES.

INGLESIDE, near Holyoke, Mass., July 21, 1871.

The closing features of the week's aquatic sports on the Connecticut River have been by far the most interesting and exciting, and as a natural consequence have attracted the largest crowd of visitors. Some FOUR OR FIVE THOUSAND PERSONS allowed their interest in the various races of to-day to overcome their prejudices against the course and occupied what few available commanding positions there were during the progress of the several contests. The weather was propitious in every respect, and the river was as tranquil and peaceful as the most fastidious Harvard oarsman could wish. The only drawbacks, therefore, consisted of the ill chosen course, the lack of accommodation for those who wished to see the race, and the absence of properly conducted hotels in the immediate neighborhood, all of which inconveniences were borne by the multitude with a patience and good nature which were as amusing as they were marvellous.

THE RACES were announced to begin at three o'clock, but it was considerably after four before they commenced. The first on the programme was a single scull contest for prizes of $75 and $25 by the Springfield Club, an organization to which the public is indebted for what few meritorious arrangements there have been during the week. The competitors were James Ten Eyck, of New York; Thomas C. Butler, of Boston; Paudeen Harrington, of Springfield; Michael Hurley, of Chicopee, and Ellis Ward, of Cold Spring, New York. The distance rowed was two miles—one mile down the river and back again—and the positions in starting were in the order named. The weight of the several ambitious scullers, according to their own statements, put Butler 139 pounds, Ten Eyck at 130 pounds, Harrington at 136 pounds, Ward at 145 pounds and Hurley at 170 pounds. When the word was given the bold Ten Eyck jumped away AHEAD OF THE OTHERS, but the experienced Ward not only soon came up to him, but crept slowly and surely ahead, amid almost deafening cheers from the crowds along the shore. Then again, almost in a moment, Ward seemed to tire, and Ten Eyck came up even with him in a manner which could not fail to have been encouraging to his friends. In fact, he took the lead and left the renowned Ward second, and closely pursued by the energetic Butler, of Boston. The other two were about even, some half a dozen lengths behind. This was their position at the end of the first three-quarters of a mile, but before the other quarter was finished Ward took an advanced position, and was about a length ahead of Butler in turning the upper stake, and both followed sharply by Harrington and Ten Eyck, and Hurley loitering along leisurely under the chagrin of certain defeat. ON THE LAST HALF MILE, coming downward, kept ahead, and found that it was about all he could do to keep Butler and Harrington from passing him. He managed, however, to come in a couple of lengths ahead, making the two miles in 14m. 42s. Butler was second, 14m. 46¾s., and Harrington was third, Ten Eyck fourth and Hurley fifth and last.

The next race was between the six-oared Freshmen crews of Harvard and Brown Universities, and was over the three-mile straightaway course which was rowed over by the Atalantas and Harvards on Wednesday. The prizes were half a dozen silver goblets and a set of colors for the winning crew, and were furnished by the Springfield Club.

THE CREWS were as follows:—

Harvard—R. H. Dana, stroke; W. C. Sanger, H. L. Morse, C. E. Low, G. W. White, A. L. Bevans, bow.

Brown—H. Cornett, stroke; A. Gallup, W. Hurd, P. H. Case, J. L. Lincoln, P. A. Sayles, bow.

The contest was neither close nor exciting, and the result was not expected. The Harvards took the start almost from the word "go," and kept gaining slowly until the end of three miles, coming in about a dozen lengths ahead in 20m. 45s.

The next was THE "UNIVERSITY RACE," as it was playfully termed, and was likewise a three-mile straightaway over the same course, and also for prizes, consisting of silver goblets and a set of colors. The competing crews were from the Harvard and Brown Universities and the Massachusetts Agricultural College in Amherst. The Harvard crew was the same one which the New York Atalantas vanquished on Wednesday, and their competitors were as follows:—

Brown—C. C. Luther, stroke; W. E. Caldwell, A. M. Smith, W. H. Riebe, A. D. McClellan, E. H. Luther, bow.

Agricultural—F. C. Eldred, stroke; F. M. Somers, G. H. Allen, A. D. Norcross, George Leonard, bow.

This race was by all odds the most interesting and exciting of any during the day. It was generally anticipated that the Harvards would be victors, and that they would be followed in turn by the Browns and Agriculturals. Pools were sold at the rate of about 2 for the Agriculturals, 8 and 10 for the Browns, against 20 and 25 for the Harvards. The idea that the representatives of the Agricultural Institution would make any sort of a show was very remote, notwithstanding they had been under the training of the skilful Josh Ward.

WHEN THE WORD WAS GIVEN, however, it was evident that their acquatic ability had been most lamentably underrated. They shot way ahead at the start, and with that long and powerful stroke for which the Wards are famous they carried disappointment at once to the hearts of the Browns and Harvards. Not for a single moment did they lose, but constantly gained all the while, their strokes averaging about forty-one per minute. For the first two miles the Harvards and Browns were about even, but finally the latter began to show signs of weakening, and the Cambridge crew got ahead of them and followed the Agriculturals, who came in not less than a dozen lengths ahead, amid the astonishment and cheers of the assembled thousands. Their time was 17m. 47s., which is next to the fastest three-mile time ever made, the time of the Harvards was 18m. 30s., and of the Browns 18m. 49s. The prizes were at once awarded to the several victors. Then the crowds departed for their respective homes, and to-night Ingleside is again happy and serene, which is a great deal more than can be said of some of the week's visitors. If ever there are any other aquatic sports in this vicinity they will probably take place on the old river course, opposite the city of Springfield.

Boston Regatta—Three Fine Races for Keel and Centre Board Boats.

BOSTON, July 21, 1871.

The city regatta, which was postponed from the Fourth of July on account of the fog, took place yesterday. In the first race five boats entered. Starlight won the first prize in 4h. 35m. 41s.; Ianthe, the second prize, in 5h. 20m. 38s.

In the race for keel boats the Coming won the first prize in 3h. 57m. 40s., and Tartar the second in 4h. 42m. 50s.

In the second race for second class boats there were twenty-two entries. The first prize was won by the sloop Mist in 3h. 44m. and the second by the sloop Plaudiette in 3h. 10m. 50s.

For keel boats and centre boards the sloop White Cap won the first prize in 2h. 29m. 15s., and the sloop Clytie won the second prize in 2h. 31m. 20s.

For the third race there were forty entries. The sloop Ripple was the first to return, but the prizes were not awarded, as some matters of allowances are under consideration.

NEW HAVEN.

YALE LAW SCHOOL.—The faculty of Yale College have made the following appointments for the next term of the Yale Law School:—President Porter, lecturer upon mental discipline and methods of study; ex-President Woolsey, lecturer on international law; ex-Judge McCurdy, formerly of the Supreme Court bench, lecturer on the law of insurance; Professor Hadley, lecturer on commercial law; Professor Hoppin, lecturer on English composition and style; Professor Francis Bacon, lecturer on medical jurisprudence; Professor Bailey, lecturer on forensic elegance; ex-Lieutenant Governor Francis Wayland, lecturer on the law of bailments, the conflicts of law and civil jurisprudence.

HORSE DISEASE.—Within a week or two the West Haven Horse Railroad Company have had several of their horses attacked by the disease prevalent among the horses used by the railroad companies in New York. The progress of the disease has been stayed and those attacked are expected to recover. All the horses attacked were purchased last spring in New York. Those purchased in Canada have not been affected.

HORSE NOTES.

We learn from Buffalo that preparations are being made on a grand scale for the approaching annual summer meeting of the Buffalo Driving Park Association. The unprecedentedly large sum of $50,000 has been offered as premiums for the winning horses during the four days in August next, commencing on the 8th of that month. The splendid band of our Ninth regiment, Levy and all, have been engaged for the meeting.

Mr. Buck, of Buffalo, has matched his trotting gelding, Harry Harley, against the Pownal mare, for $1,000 a side, the race to come off the day after the close of the Buffalo meeting—the 12th of August.

Mr. Buck has also matched Harry Harley against Belle of Paterson, Mr. Buck laying $6,500 against $3,250; the race to come off on the 2d of October, at the Prospect Park Fair Grounds.

There is a trotting horse now in training at Columbus, Ohio, that is said to be a clipper. He will make his début on the trotting track at Buffalo, contending for some of the large purses to be given there in August. This horse is of a dun color, sixteen hands high. He is described, by one who has seen him, to be finely proportioned for a trotter. He is very deep in the chest, has immense quarters and is very short from the hock to the heel. He has a very low, springy stride and a remarkably easy way of going. The name of the horse is Milton Day, and the person who gave us the information about the horse says that he has frequently seen him trot quarters in thirty-two seconds. Milton Day was originally a pacer and never was known to trot until last spring. He will be very likely to carry off one of the $10,000 premiums.

Mr. Henry J. Howard has a private stable in Neilson place that will compare favorably with any in New York. It has every modern improvement that can conduce to the comfort of its inmates. In its roomy stalls, which are airy and light, are six splendid animals, all bays, comprising a fine pair of sixteen hand carriage horses, a pair of well-shaped road mares, who are fast trotters, and Frank and Bill, a slashing pair of geldings that can trot together close to 2:40.

Mr. J. Q. Laws recently purchased of Commissioner Galway a fine gray gelding as a mate for his chestnut mare. They make a stylish cross team, and trot beautifully together.

Joseph Townley has a capital pair of trotters, a bay and a brown, fifteen and a half hands high, which he says can trot in 2:45.

Mr. Phyfe has sent his bay mare Lady Lockwood to Captain Rynders' farm, at Passaic. Aberdeen is there.

Mr. James W. Gillies has recently purchased a very pretty sorrel mare. She is very fast double, and makes Brown Dick put his best foot foremost when they are driven together.

Mr. W. Ridabock has sent his brown horse Quaker to the country to rusticate during the summer months.

P. C. Barry has sent his black gelding Shoo Fly to John Rogers', at Fleetwood Park, for a course of training. This young horse is improving in speed very rapidly.

John H. Harbeck has taken his team of trotters to Long Branch.

Harry Hamilton has been rattling up and down Harlem lane lately behind a pair of white-faced trotters that seem to like the fun.

Mr. G. N. Furguson's bay gelding Needle Gun trotted half a mile on the Fleetwood Park track a few days since in 1:21. This horse, it will be remembered, broke his leg last autumn, and by skilful treatment was saved and is now nearly as fast as ever he was.

Robert Brown and his splendid gray gelding M. T. Brennan are again on the road, the horse having entirely recovered from his recent sprain.

Dunn Walton is driving a very fast pair of ponies. It is said they can trot in 2:40 to the pole. They are brown and look well. His Ethan Allen mare, White Stockings, is a "stunner."

Dan Mace is "grassing out" George Palmer. He will have him in order for the fall campaign. Rumors are afloat that Dan has one or two dark ones that he will bring to light at Buffalo and Kalamazoo. One of them is credited with having made a remarkable mile at the Fashion Course in a midnight trial recently.

W. H. Harbeck has turned out his stable of horses and gone to Europe for the summer.

John Olcott, of Cheesebrough place, Fort Washington, has under his charge the stallion Tattler, by Pilot, Jr. This horse has recovered entirely from his lameness and is trotting very fast. Olcott has also Garibaldi, Contraband, Yankee Dan, Jennie Clark, a Hambletonian, by the Clark Vandewater horse, and a number of other well bred ones.

Mr. Lawrence's black and roan team are hard to beat from Jerome Park to the pavements. They are rattlers of true metal.

Sam Truesdell is out every day with either the Doctor, Lew Pettit or Maximilian. They are all hard to beat.

John Briggs' bay gelding Bay George, by Royal George, is a splendid road horse. It is said that he can trot in 2:35. His is a very fine-looking animal and perfectly gentle.

Colonel Russell disclaims the assertions that his horse Czar was pulled in the trot with Heather Bloom, Easton Boy and others at the late trotting meeting at Beacon Park, Boston. The Colonel, we know, has been a hard worker in the cause of reform of abuses on the trotting track for years, and is now a member of the Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association.

TROTTING AT FLEETWOOD PARK.

NEW YORK THIEVES CAPTURED.

Their Operations—How They Were Detected.

Yesterday four notorious New York thieves, named John Hudner, Frank Murtle, Daniel Rooney and Charles Lang, were taken from Long Island City to the Queens County Jail, to await the action of the Grand Jury. A man named John Hayes moved from New York to Long Island City about two months ago. He would loiter about during the day in search of a place easy to be "cracked," and at night his New York confederates would cross the river above Blackwell's Island, and the places designated by Hayes would be robbed before morning. It is estimated that this gang stole over ten thousand dollars' worth from people of the city and vicinity. The goods were taken to New York and in due time were sold. Hayes was cheated out of his part of the spoils, and to be revenged unbosomed himself to Detective Lyman, who apprehended the four parties above named and a man named Daniel Hudner, who negotiated the sales. This latter man was taken to Brooklyn on a habeas corpus by order of Judge Pratt, and while in that city succeeded in making his escape. He told Officer Lyman that, if held, he would disclose the whereabouts of all the stolen property. Each of the four men held confessed having been in State Prison.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Narragansett, Commander Meade, arrived at Sandy Point, in the Straits of Magellan, June 5, on her way to San Francisco. Despatches dated June 2 have been received from Rear Admiral Lanman, commander of the South Atlantic fleet. The United States flagship Lancaster, Captain J. W. A. Nicholson, was at Rio Janeiro on June 25; all well. The Portsmouth and Wasp were at Montevideo, Uruguay; all well at latest dates. The latter was to proceed up the Paraguay River to Asuncion to convey the United States Minister, Hon. Mr. Stevens.

Ensign Frank C. Birney, son of the late Major General David B. Birney, died at Mount Holly Springs on the 16th inst.

YACHTING.

Fourth General Meeting of the New York Yacht Club.

Classification of Yachts—The Ocean Race Eastward—Ballast, Apportionments, the Annual Cruise and the Wallack Cup.

The New York Yacht Club held its fourth general meeting of the year at Delmonico's, Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street, on Thursday. There were present the owners of a large number of yachts, and the meeting was characterized by general good feeling. Commodore Bennett in the chair.

After the usual preliminary business incident to the meeting had been dispensed with Messrs. Livingston, Center and Krebs were appointed a committee to take into consideration the PROPER CLASSIFICATION OF YACHTS in any regatta, so far as dividing them into first and second class schooners and sloops was concerned, and at the same time to consider the number of men as a crew that each yacht should be allowed to carry. This committee will report at the October meeting.

THE OCEAN RACE EASTWARD.

Secretary Minton read a letter from Commodore Heard, of the Eastern Yacht Club, in which that gentleman referred to the contemplated visit of the Club fleet to Boston during the annual cruise, and desired to advise with them as to the better course over which the proposed ocean race of the two clubs from that harbor or the neighboring waters should be sailed. The Secretary was directed to communicate with the Eastern Club, giving as the sentiment of the New York Club that the entire matter be left in the hands of their brother yachtsmen.

BALLAST.

Rule 17 of the sailing regulations, on motion of Rear Commodore Osgood, was so changed as to allow the trimming of a yacht by dead weight up to the time of starting in any race, but not during its progress, and that no ballast or water can be taken in or discharged within twenty-four hours of the time named for any regatta.

APPORTIONMENTS RECALCULATED.

Rule 8 of the sailing regulations, on motion of Mr. Homans, was amended so that a yacht owner may have the apportionment of his yacht recalculated before any regatta, which new apportionment shall be valid, provided that it is certified by the chairman of the regatta committee.

THE ANNUAL CRUISE.

After a little discussion it was resolved that the fleet should rendezvous at Glen Cove on Saturday, August 5, for the annual cruise eastward. In this connection it was also decided that the guests of any yacht during the cruise should be exempt from being counted in as the required number of men allotted to each vessel.

THE WALLACK CUP.

The Club decided to leave the day of proposed race for the Wallack Cup in the hands of Commodore Bennett.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE NEW SCHOONER YACHT RESOLUTE.

Another Addition to the New York Yacht Club Fleet—Her Dimensions in Hull, Spars, Character of Construction, Accommodations and Tonnage.

On Monday next, at six o'clock P. M., the large schooner yacht Resolute, built for Mr. A. S. Hatch, a prominent member of the New York Yacht Club, will be launched from the ship yard of David Carll, at City Island. For months past the attention of the yachting community has been directed to this craft, and now, as the time draws near when she will make her appearance with both the old and new favorites of the club, the interest surrounding her materially increases.

The Resolute is a centre-board, cockpit schooner, modelled in many respects similar to the yacht Vesta, yet deeper and wider, and with much finer lines forward and aft than she possesses. The utmost care has been exercised by her builder, in accordance with instructions, that she should be stanch, durable and comfortable. These requirements are assumed to have been the governing ideas of her owner from the first, and not that they should be sacrificed to speed alone, and to this end the Resolute was constructed, and she will be aptly named, as there are few, if any, abler pleasure crafts afloat. The dimensions of the schooner are as follows:—

	Feet.
Length of keel	101.6
Length on water line	105.6
Length over all	118
Extreme breadth	25.9
Depth of hold	9
Draught of water	8.6

Tonnage, 240 tons, or thereabouts.

FRAME OF THE YACHT.

The frame of the Resolute is of live oak, white oak, white chestnut, hackmatack, red cedar and locust. Her keel, laid in the latter part of April, is of Ohio white oak; her apron and transom of live oak. The stem is in one piece, of white oak; the floors of live oak at each end of trunk, and sided fifteen inches. The ceiling is of yellow pine and the planking of live oak and white oak.

THE DECK

The yacht is built with a trunk cabin, her owner desiring this construction rather than that of a flush deck, because of the additional comfort and ventilation secured. The deck planking is of Susquehanna white pine, clear of knots, three by three inches, and is very handsome. The deck frame is of yellow pine, hackmatack and chestnut, fully kneed off with bosom lodging, and hanging knees of hackmatack. Her frame ballast—about twenty-four tons of lead—is adjusted in position with rubber springs.

THE BOWSPRIT is permanent, and elegantly finished in the old-fashioned way with carved work.

THE STERN of the schooner is elliptical, with seven feet rake from rudder head to after side of taffrail. Its finish will be decidedly American in type.

SPARRING.

In sparring the new yacht there is nothing noticeable that is peculiar or extraordinary. The annexed will give an excellent idea of what has been done in this particular:—

Mainmast, 86 feet 9 inches; 21¼ inches in partners, 18 inches at bounds; 9 feet masthead, of white pine.

Foremast, 85 feet 8 inches; 22¾ inches in partners, 19 inches at bounds; 9 feet masthead, of white pine.

Bowsprit, 28 feet outboard, 13 feet inboard, of white pine.

Mainboom, 72 feet; 13½ inches in the slings, of white pine, with mahogany jaws.

Foreboom, 34 feet; flying jibboom, 16 feet clear of cap; pole, 6 feet 6 inches.

Maingaff, 35 feet; foregaff, 32 feet 6 inches.

Topmasts, 45 feet and 45 feet 6 inches; to be fitted with patent fids.

Her standing rigging is of Italian hemp; the stay, back stays and topping lifts of charcoal wire.

THE ACCOMMODATIONS of the Resolute will be exceedingly comfortable. The interior arrangements were planned by her owner, and in many respects are novel. The companionway does not lead into the cabin. On either side of this there is a quarter room for guests or the storing of flags and cushions. The cabin is 18 feet 9 inches in length, 14 feet wide and has 7 feet 6 inches head room. Sofas, 2 feet 4 inches wide, extend around and the whole length of the cabin, with lockers at the back. Mahogany, gold, ash-stained and other rich woods will be tastefully blended in the panel work. Mirrors will abound in numbers here, and the ceiling finished in pink and light shades, with just so much of gold as to make the contrast effective. The upholstering of the cabin will be in good taste and in keeping with the surrounding finish. Amidships are THE STATEROOMS six in number, three on either side of the passageway, which is 2 feet 9 inches wide. First on the starboard side is that designed for ladies. It is 6 feet 3 inches long by 10 feet 6 inches wide; and will be finished in mahogany, with bird's-eye maple trimmings. Next is the owner's room, 11 feet by 10 feet 6 inches, which will be finished in black and French walnuts, rosewood, mahogany, white holly and bird's-eye maple. The third stateroom is 9 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 6 inches, and this in finish will be equally fine, but treated differently from the others. These three rooms can be thrown into one when required making a delightful apartment. On the port side will be three guests' staterooms, 6 feet 4 inches long and 8 feet wide. These are also arranged so as to be communicating, thereby making the ventilation more perfect. The centre skylight opens in part in the starboard staterooms, and fretwork is placed around the top of each room to insure greater ventilation.

The kitchen, icehouse and officers' rooms are on the port side forward. A large provision room and the cook and steward's quarters are opposite these. The bath tub, placed beneath the floor, is arranged for constant supplies of fresh and salt water.

The yacht is finished with mahogany rail. All skylights, coamings and companionways are of the same material.

Such, in brief, is the new Yacht Resolute, to be launched on Monday. Her owner desired comfort and stability; these are certainly combined in the new craft; and if speed is also found, which is anticipated, she will be a marked pleasure vessel.

A Yacht Club at Constantinople.

[From the Levant Herald, June 14.]

Not a few of our local readers will be glad to learn that a serious effort is at last being made to establish a Constantinople yacht club—this time free of the trammels and restrictions of any "patronage," except that of the members themselves. It is intended that the new club shall be formed on the model of those which have done so much to promote the love of aquatic sports in England and America, with such excellent effects on the practical seamanship of both countries. Neither the Solent nor New York Baycan compare with the Marmora as a yachting ground, and where nature has done so much it will be little creditable to Constantinople if there be not within it sporting energy enough to found at least the nucleus of a yacht squadron in some way worthy of these waters. A first meeting of the promoters of the movement is to be held on Monday next, at the Ottoman Bank, when a majority of the "original members" present will agree on a set of regulations and name officers for the current year.

OBITUARY.

Joseph F. Berg, D. D.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Berg, Professor in the Theological Seminary of New Brunswick, N. J., died in that city on Thursday evening. Dr. Berg was born at Grace Hill, Island of Antigua, on June 3, 1812, and was consequently but just past his fifty-ninth year. His parents were missionaries of the Moravian Church in the place of his birth; he was consequently educated in the Moravian faith, up to his twelfth year, at Full Neck, England. He came to the United States in 1825, and studied at Nazareth, Pa., at a Moravian school. As a linguist he had few equals in this country, speaking most modern languages with ease and fluency, while his knowledge of the classics was most remarkable, and at the early age of twenty-one he was Professor of Greek in the Mercersburg College. In 1835 he was ordained to the ministry in the Dutch Reformed Church, and in 1837 was called to the First German Reformed church in Philadelphia, where he attained a national reputation as a preacher. About ten years ago he was called to the chair of didactic and polemic theology in the Theological Seminary of the Dutch Reformed (now Reformed) church, New Brunswick, N. J., which position he held to the time of his death. It is generally considered the most eminent chair in the institution. Dr. Berg was not less celebrated as a writer than as a scholar and preacher. He was constantly engaged in literary labors, bringing out a great number of books and translations from the French and German. His works—over twenty volumes in all—are all on theological subjects, and mainly devoted to discussions of the Papal question. It is claimed that he was more intimately acquainted with Roman theology than any other Protestant clergyman in America, and his works, therefore, have the weight of authority.

Professor John W. S. Hows.

Professor John W. S. Hows, the well-known elocutionist, died in this city yesterday. He was born in London, England, June 22, 1795, but had been in this country over fifty years. Mr. Hows was engaged in mercantile pursuits for some time, but meeting with reverses he devoted his attention to instruction and authorship. He was for some time dramatic critic of the Golden Rule, Figaro, Mirror and Albion. Subsequently he prepared and published his "Practical Elocutionist," "Shakspearian Reader," "Historical Shakspeare," "Golden Leaves" of English and American poetry, "Ladies' Reader," "Ladies' Book of Readings and Recitations," "Junior Ladies' Reader" and "Primary Ladies' Reader," and was also a frequent contributor to the press. Mr. Hows was Professor of Elocution at Columbia College for fourteen years.

BATTLE OF BULL RUN ANNIVERSARY.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 21, 1871.

The Second Regiment Rhode Island Volunteers commemorated the tenth anniversary of the battle of Bull Run to-day by gathering at Rocky Point. Nearly two hundred veterans were on the line. A veteran association was formed, of which General Nelson Viall was elected President and Generals Burnside, Devens and others honorary members.

SUICIDE IN AN INSANE ASYLUM.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 21, 1871.

Robert Buffum, who murdered Mr. Seaverns, at Newburg, N. Y., last winter, committed suicide on Thursday in his cell, at the State Asylum for Insane Criminals, in this city, by cutting his throat with a razor. He made a barricade with his bedstead to prevent his keeper thwarting him in his design. Dr. Wilkie, the superintendent, tried to narcotize him, but the attempt failed, and Buffum accomplished his purpose while the cell door was being forced.

PROPOSED RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION IN ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, July 21, 1871.

The Rockford (Ill.) Gazette understands that the directors of the Rockford Central Railroad have under consideration proposals of consolidation with the proposed Madison and Portage Railroad, and that it is not improbable they may be accepted. If the consolidation takes place it will thereafter be known as the St. Louis and Duluth Railroad.

OHIO AND MISSISSIPPI RAILROAD.

CINCINNATI, July 21, 1871.

Active preparations are being made along the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad for a change of gauge, which will be accomplished throughout the entire line on Sunday next. It is reported that narrow gauge trains will run on Monday morning.

THE MAILS IN ARKANSAS.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 21, 1871.

None of the new mail contractors on routes leading from this city have made their appearance yet. A special mail agent is here endeavoring to make contracts for carrying the mails. Great complaints are made on account of failures.

FELONIOUS ASSAULT.

Timothy Clifton, of No. 10 Roosevelt street, last night got into an altercation with his wife and struck her on the head with a club, inflicting a severe wound. The assailant was arrested and the woman sent to Park Hospital.

Sarah Murray, of 22 Cherry street, last night struck James Kelly, a boarder at the above house, with an axe, breaking his arm. They were both arrested and locked up in the Fourth precinct station house.

ROASTED ALIVE.

Foul Play Suspected.

In the case of the old man Patrick J. Rafferty, who was roasted alive on Sunday morning, his relatives have reason to suspect foul play, and have induced the county physician to withdraw the certificate of burial previously given and to order an inquest. This takes place to-day.

By authority of the Board of Directors of the New York Railway Company, and in conformity with the terms of the act of incorporation in that respect, the undersigned Commissioners on Stock Subscriptions give public notice for and on behalf of the directors, and of such company, that books of subscription for the capital stock thereof will be opened on Wednesday, the 28th day of June inst., at the following places in this city, viz.:—

At the banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co., No. 11 Nassau street.

At the banking house of the Bank of the Metropolis, No. 13 Union square.

The company is authorized to construct two Viaduct Railways or branches through the city of New York, on the east and west sides thereof, from a common starting point at or near Chambers street between Broadway and Chatham street; also across the Harlem river and through Westchester county; with power to build additional lines of railway or branches from time to time, in any part of the city or Westchester county. The property acquired by the Company is exempted from taxes and assessments during the period allowed for the final completion of the railway in the city. The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of New York are authorized and directed, with the approval of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, to subscribe for five millions of dollars of the stock of the company whenever one million of dollars thereof has been subscribed for by private parties. This conditional amount of stock has been wholly subscribed for and taken by the directors of the company. On the completion of either of the lines of railway to the line of Westchester county the Supervisors of that county are authorized to issue the bonds of the county to such amount as the Supervisors shall deem expedient, to aid in the construction and extension of the railway in and through that county. For the proper equalization of the interest of shareholders who may subscribe and pay in moneys at different times the directors are authorized to issue scrip for interest on such payments, payable out of the earnings.

The terms of subscription will be as follows:—

Ten per cent of the amount of stock subscribed for to be paid in cash at the time of subscription. The residue to be paid as called for by the Board of Directors on a notice of thirty days, but no call at any one time to exceed ten per cent.

Scrip for interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum will be issued by the company payable out of the first earnings of the railway on all instalments paid on stock subscribed for within thirty days after the subscription books shall be opened.

The company reserves the right to close the subscription books at any time after the 29th day of July, 1871.

WESLEYAN UNIVERSITY.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., July 20, 1871.

The exercises at the University are drawing to a close, and although every hour makes its demand upon the visitors, the weather has been so cool that attendance upon the various services and social gatherings has not been wearisome. The citizens of Middletown, together with the families of the professors, have extended a generous hospitality to the friends of Methodist education who have gathered hither upon this memorable occasion.

The "woman question," or the propriety of admitting female students to the University, came up for discussion last evening at the meeting of the Trustees. It was resolved that the subject be referred to the President and the Executive Committee, with power.

The Board of Trustees also directed that the new, spacious and beautiful chapel be hereafter used on Sabbaths, and that some member of the faculty preach a discourse. The students are compelled to attend the Methodist church twice each Sabbath. They seem to be perfectly satisfied with the new arrangement, and those of them who are preparing for the ministry will probably feel more at ease in exercising their "gifts and graces" in the college chapel than they would in the village church.

At nine o'clock this morning the faculty, trustees and alumni formed in procession on the campus, and, led by the band, marched through the principal streets and then proceeded to the church to participate in the commencement exercises.

The following was the order of exercises:—

*Excused.

The degrees were conferred which appeared in yesterday's HERALD.

Some of the orations were thoughtful and well written productions, but the majority of them did not possess more merit than similar maiden efforts of newly-fledged college-trained orators.

At the conclusion of the exercises in the church the procession was reformed and marched to the McDonough House, where a bountiful dinner was prepared, to which ample justice was done.

In the evening a select and brilliant assemblage was present at the residence of President Cummings, the ladies and gentlemen appearing in full dress. The President's levee is always looked forward to with interest as the social event of the week, and this occasion was equal to previous gatherings in the white house on the classic hill. Dr. and Mrs. Cummings exerted themselves to the utmost to entertain their guests.

During the evening Dr. Cummings met with an agreeable surprise by receiving a substantial token from the friends of the University of their appreciation of his genial nature, profound scholarship and indefatigable devotion to the interests of the University. Early in the morning Mr. Judd, with characteristic energy, moved quietly around among the people and secured in a very short time $1,600, which was presented to Dr. Cummings, to enable him to take a brief trip to Europe or elsewhere. This was a complete surprise to the faithful and beloved President of the University, who accepted the gift in his usual modest way. This was a simple act of justice, and if such a movement had been contemplated early in the week there would have been no difficulty in obtaining a much larger sum.

Universal regret is expressed at the retirement of Rev. Dr. Newhall from the chair of English Literature. He is to be succeeded by Rev. George Prentis, who has the reputation of having made extensive acquirements in literature.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Summer Vacation—Teachers' Holiday.

Some people work for love and some for money. Teachers work for love. It is such delightful work to teach. The children are all so sweet, and gentle and beautiful. They are always so clean. It is such a pleasure to feel that one is imparting knowledge. Then the hours are short, and the work is light. Not much to do but to sit around and let the pupils study and recite. There is such a chance for teachers to do good. It is a great pleasure to do good. Very few people know this from experience; therefore a reporter who knows takes pleasure in bearing witness to this truth. Let it be repeated, it is a pleasure to do good. Teachers have a glorious opportunity for doing good. They are told this all the year round by committees of all kinds, by parents, by benevolent clergymen, by everybody. The teachers, tired of this story, might gently inquire why other people shouldn't do a little of the good, but this question would probably remain unanswered if it were asked.

The teachers are very unmerciful to ask for a longer vacation. Why should they be in a hurry to leave those delightful schoolrooms and the society of the bright cherubs under their care? Nothing but a depraved nature could make people want to get rid of children. However all things come to an end, even the delights of teaching, and yesterday the public schools all closed, not to reopen till the 11th of September. The teachers must be lonesome. They deserve the sympathy of all philanthropists scattered over the country far away from the dear little ones their hearts will, doubtless, often yearn for the pleasant sounds of the school room. May they be supported during the trials of absence. But to leave the teachers to green grass and shady trees—the public schools of New York are yearly getting nearer to the standard of perfection at which all systems of education should aim, though there is no doubt still great room for improvement. People are beginning to realize that school rooms should be airy and cheerful; that children should be surrounded by the most cheerful influences possible, and that education is not so much cramming as developing. A few persons begin to have a vague idea that teachers who are worth anything do a work that no money can pay, give themselves to their pupils. Music is being recognized more and more as an important agency in education. Teachers find that music takes the place of discipline—so-called—in a great degree. Every school room has its piano now, and at intervals there are music and songs, that harmonize the clashing elements and soothe the tired nerves and brains. Educators are approximating to the true methods. By and by children will have good times getting educated, and will be efficient and self-reliant as the result of the school processes. By and by it will be seen that it is true economy to secure the best quality of heart and brain for the teacher's profession; then and only then will the public schools be what they ought to be.

The average attendance of pupils during the months of June and July compares favorably with the attendance of the corresponding months of former years, the average in June being 97,000, and in July 77,000. In June and July, 1870, the daily average was about 82,750, and in the same months in 1870 it was 82,600.

Extensive alterations and repairs will be made in many of the school houses during the vacation, the most important being in No. 45, in Twenty-eighth street and No. 17, in Forty-seventh street. In the main the accommodations are sufficient, although in some cases there is a lack of room, which will no doubt be remedied as soon as possible.

That there is some work done during the year in the schools may be inferred from the number of teachers, there being 11,000 in the grammar school and 20,000 in the primary department.

THE PRISONER THAT VALLANDIGHAM WAS DEFENDING ESCAPED FROM JAIL.—At midnight the fire bells rang an alarm, and it was found that seven prisoners had dug their way out of the County Jail, among others McGehan, in whose defence Vallandigham lost his life recently. They effected their escape by tearing up a portion of the stone floor of one of the cells in the southeast corner of the prison, excavating a tunnel into the cellar under the Sheriff's residence. The cell from which the tunnel was made is only about eight feet from the cellar, but it must have required considerable labor to excavate the hole of sufficient size to enable the prisoners to crawl through. The earth from the excavation was thrown back into the cell. After reaching the cellar they made their exit through a window into the front yard of the jail, and succeeded in reaching the street before being discovered. The alarm was at once given, and Sheriff Swadener, with several of the police force and others, started in pursuit of the fugitives, who had scattered through the streets and alleys in the vicinity of the jail in various directions. The escape of any more of the inmates, ten of whom remained in the jail, was prevented by the immediate presence of the turnkey, though several of them refused to avail themselves of the opportunity of attempting it.—Dayton (Ohio) Journal, July 17.

A GRAND MONUMENT TO AMERICAN GENIUS, SKILL AND ENTERPRISE—The palatial passenger depot at Forty-second street. It is a greater wonder than the London Crystal Palace.

SPECTATORS who attend the performances of the band in City Hall Park will have a fine opportunity of viewing the unique fresco work that ornaments the rear of the new (or old) Court House building.

GOING UP RAPIDLY—The new Post Office building. It seems destined to be finished before the new (or more properly the old) Court House—yea, even before the latter gets its coping set, to say nothing of that huge dome.

CHARLES P. KIMBALL, democratic candidate for Governor of Maine, has been interviewed by one of the indefatigables of the Boston Post. He avowed himself a lifelong democrat—a Douglas democrat in 1860 and a McClellan democrat in 1864. The conversation proceeded:—

CORRESPONDENT—You are in favor, then, of the so-called "new departure?"

MR. KIMBALL (very composedly)—I expressed myself just as I feel with regard to that in my letter of acceptance.

As Mr. Kimball did not express himself at all on that point in his letter of acceptance, or, if at all, very ambiguously, it is no wonder he answered the correspondent's query "very composedly." Mr. Kimball wants to come before the people as a laboring man and a mechanic. Then don't let him labor so much in framing his replies to ordinary questions, or endeavor to avoid the responsibility thereof so mechanically.

VIRGINIA persistently adheres to many exploded ideas of public policy. Among the relics of bygone ages which the Old Dominion so fervently adheres to is that of public executions. One of these questionable exhibitions of the majesty of the law took place yesterday, at Greenville, in the hanging of Thomas McGiffin, who had been convicted of the crime of murder. The execution was witnessed by an immense crowd, a large portion of whom were women and children. The horror of the scene was intensified by the breaking of the rope, which let the half-strangled culprit fall to the ground with a thud that sent half of the spectators terror-stricken to their homes. After half an hour spent in readjusting the scaffold and repairing the rope the trap was again sprung, and McGiffin finally launched into eternity.

THE REPORT OF GENERAL SHALER.—Major General Shaler, commanding the First division of the National Guard, has made his report of the operations of the militia during the recent riots. He fully sets forth all the movements of the troops under his command, speaks warmly in praise of the different commands and of the police, and has a word against the complaints of misconduct on the part of some of the regiments on the day of the riot. There can be no doubt that the work of suppressing the mob was as effectively performed as was possible under the circumstances, and all who took part in it are deserving of praise rather than censure. But the taste of General Shaler's defence against the unwise animadversions of a few firebrands is somewhat questionable—a fact which he seems to recognize. It is better to let these idle and mischievous agitators talk on without noticing their foolish charges than to dignify them by refuting their allegations. The riots are past, and it is time that we had peace.

The Army Purchase Question in England—Another Step Toward Democracy.

The action of Mr. Gladstone in abolishing the system of purchasing rank in the British army is very significant. It shows that he is resolved to march with the spirit of the times and to popularize the institutions of England in accordance with the demands of the people. Being unable to carry this measure through Parliament as a legislative act, in consequence of the determined opposition of the aristocratic and tory party, and especially of the hostility of the House of Peers, he made a flank movement and induced the Queen to issue a royal warrant abolishing the purchase of commissions in the army. This he announced in the House of Commons on the night of Thursday last. We do not know whether this act of Her Majesty is retrospective or not, whether the whole system of commissions is to be changed at once or only new commissions are to be affected by it; but the change is evidently both radical and important. Mr. Gladstone said the Ministers had advised Her Majesty to take this action, which effectually disposed of the question in accordance with the manifest will of the country.

Seldom has anything occurred in Parliament that created a greater impression. The Premier's declaration was received with vehement cheering in the House of Commons, though Mr. Disraeli and the tory members generally were unable to restrain their anger. They bitterly denounced what they termed the arbitrary course of the government, which they were hardly prepared for. Mr. Gladstone was defiant, and challenged the opposition to move a vote of want of confidence. In the House of Lords Earl Granville defended the policy of the Ministry. Our special telegraphic despatches depicting the scene represent the Lords as being deeply moved, though decorous in their demonstrations. The opinion outside was that the action of the Ministry was bold or even desperate. The public, generally approving of this action, seemed to anticipate from it results favorable to democratic progress. Such is the substance of the news received from London.

The opposition press and members of Parliament assail the conduct of the Ministry as unprecedented and a violation of established usage. Some go so far as to say it is unconstitutional. There is some reason in this, for the Crown to anticipate or override the action of Parliament in such an important measure is arbitrary—is going much farther in asserting monarchical prerogative than the kings or queens of England have been in the habit of going in late times. The measure is a good one, no doubt, and we cannot but admire the boldness of the Queen and Ministry in overruling opposition so promptly on this question, and in conceding at once so much to popular opinion; but it gives the opposition an argument, and it might prove a dangerous precedent should a despotic monarch hereafter choose to assert the same prerogative to force illiberal measures upon the country. True, Mr. Gladstone assumed that the House of Lords, though impugning the government plan for the abolition of the purchase system, had failed to sustain that system; but this was begging the question and savored rather of political trickery. It is evident he was afraid and did not wish to leave the matter to a vote of the Peers. In great popular measures, as in that of the Reform bill, for example, the Crown has been in the habit of overcoming the opposition of the House of Lords by the creation of new liberal Peers. It has rarely of late years taken the power from the legislative body over important measures, even if it could constitutionally do so.

We suppose, therefore, that the exercise of the monarchical prerogative in abolishing the system of purchasing commissions in the army will lead to great discussion, and will try to the utmost the strength of both the Ministry and the opposition. Mr. Gladstone has, undoubtedly, foreseen this and weighed the matter well. His challenge to the opposition to move a vote of want of confidence shows that. He feels assured, we suppose, that if a vote of want of confidence were carried he could safely appeal to the country; for the measure he has forced by a sort of political coup d'état is a very popular one. In the case of a dissolution of Parliament and a new Parliament being elected Mr. Gladstone would, probably, obtain a much larger majority than he has now. The apprehension of such a result may calm down the opposition, or rally to the support of the Ministry a sufficient number of moderately conservative and independent members to prevent a vote of want of confidence being carried.

This act of Mr. Gladstone shows that he is a bolder statesman than the world generally has given him credit for being. It shows, too, that he is disposed to advance with the liberal and progressive spirit of the age, and that he will not endanger the peace and government of England by obstinately opposing public opinion. The statesmen of England, when in power, feel the responsibility of their position. Mr. Gladstone is but following the example of other distinguished conservatives who were his predecessors. The Duke of Wellington carried the Catholic Emancipation bill when in power, though he had been opposed to that measure before. It was the same with Sir Robert Peel and the Corn laws. It is true statesmanship to yield needful, liberal and progressive measures when public opinion demands them.

The abolition of the purchase of army commissions is a heavy blow to aristocratic privileges in England and an important stride toward democracy. The purchase of commissions was one of the oldest privileges of the aristocracy and wealthy classes of Great Britain. The army was an asylum for the younger members of the titled families. The positions of rank in the army were sold to them because the pay would enable them to live in a style that was supposed to be proper to their birth by the investment of their limited means. This system of commissions had nothing to do with merit, and rarely was merit in the army recognized unless backed by money or powerful family influence. The action of Mr. Gladstone will tend to improve the efficiency of the army, while it opens the service to merit for all classes. Thus, one by one, the props of aristocratic privilege in England are being thrown down. The aristocracy and monarchy cannot resist the democratic progress of the age. Church disestablishment, an extension of suffrage to all classes, the ballot, the abolition of the law of primogeniture and the hereditary peerage, with other liberal measures, must follow in time. No matter who is in power, the result will be the same. Mr. Gladstone comprehends this and acts accordingly. Mr. Disraeli, as his works show, understands this also, and were he at the helm of affairs he would go as far, probably, as the present Premier, or farther. We have set an example of the success of democratic government—have shown that the largest liberty is compatible with conservatism and strength in government, and the people of Great Britain are following us. The American republic, the last born of great nations, is fast leading the world to freedom and a higher civilization.

The New Spanish Ministry.

According to our special despatch from Madrid the resignation of the Ministry was caused by dissensions with regard to the International. Marshal Serrano advocated the rigorous suppression of that organization, while his colleagues favored a more conciliatory policy. The Cortes was somewhat uproarious on the subject of the Ministerial resignation, but noise and fuss are of such frequent occurrence in that assembly that its unruly character has become almost proverbial. The names of the new Cabinet which has been formed by Marshal Serrano are not familiar to us, with the exception of Admiral Malcampo, who till recently had command of the naval forces at Havana. His appointment as Minister of Marine seems to indicate a purpose of carrying on the war against the Cuban insurgents with vigor, but in every other respect it is without significance. The other members of the Ministry, if their names have been correctly reported, are obscure men, and will probably be short-lived. It is possible that the new Cabinet is only a temporary arrangement, in order that the King may gain time to form another strong and popular ministry. We cannot close our eyes to the fact that King Amadeus has much hard work to accomplish before he can find himself happy on the Spanish throne. Spain being a most Catholic country, it is a drawback to him that he is a member of the anathematized House of Savoy. But it is to be hoped that all things may yet go on well in old Spain;

Italian Opera and Its Brightest Ornament.

Seventeen years ago the present dingy old structure on the Battery, then the finest opera house in America, was crowded with the élite of the metropolis, and the vast assemblage was held spellbound by the magic of a voice such as was never heard before or since in this city. Who among the listeners on that memorable occasion can forget the tidal wave of enthusiasm than shook the building when Mario appeared as Gennaro and his queenly wife came forward as the guilty Duchess of Borgia? The exciting auction sale of seats and even the infatuated English lady who followed the handsome tenor like his shadow will be remembered by the old habitués of the opera. On Tuesday night last Mario bade a final farewell to the stage at the scene of his greatest triumphs, Covent Garden, and received an ovation such as rarely falls to the lot of any artist. It was a brilliant and fitting close to thirty-three years of faithful service in the cause of art. But these "farewells" of artists are not to be interpreted according to the strict sense of the word, and particularly in the case of Mario, who announced farewell performances even before he visited this country. All theatre-goers in this country have been accustomed for many years to the "farewells" of Forrest, and still the veteran dons the Gladiator's tunic and the royal robes of Lear. It is a hard struggle for the sovereigns of the footlights to relinquish the sceptre and step aside for younger aspirants. Therefore we shall not be astonished if the favorite sexagenarian of the Italian opera should take it in his head to commence another series of "farewells." He has an excellent opportunity now to do so by revisiting our shores, where he once received such a hearty welcome. Here is a chance for the management of the Nilsson troupe to become famous and earn the gratitude and the dollars of the New York public. Nilsson and Mario—the rising and the setting sun—would create together such a furor as would even wake up the operatic fossils around Irving place. The natural regret of all lovers of music to bid a farewell to this brightest ornament of Italian opera is heightened by the fact that he leaves no successor worthy of him. Tenors of even respectable calibre are scarcer now than ever, and there is not one capable of filling Mario's place. It is an unwelcome but yet undeniable fact, that as far as voices are concerned the Italian opera stage has retrograded sadly. Mario, Grisi, Tamburini and Lablache formed a quartet which we cannot hope to hear in these days; and yet they were but the successors of still greater artists. The next season of music in this city promises well, and if the managers fulfil but half of their bounteous promises we need not look with envy and regret at the prospectuses of the capitals of Europe. What with Parepa-Rosa and her complete English opera company, Rullman and the Vienna Lady Orchestra, and the Nilsson troupe, we shall have enough music to satisfy even the most exacting theatre-goer. It will not be the fault this time of the directors of the Academy of Music if the opera be not successful in the fall. They are making many important and much-needed changes in the interior arrangements of the building, not the least of which is a complete alteration of the plan of the dress circle, which is to be modelled after the most fashionable of the London theatres. Steinway Hall is also to be fitted up in grand style for the reception of the Lady Orchestra. We trust that this season will be the commencement of a long and brilliant term of first class musical entertainments, and that the latent talent of America may have a chance at last to assert its rights.

OFFICER LOGAN, who interfered with another officer against orders on the day of the riot, was dismissed the force yesterday. His action consisted in trying to save a sickly fellow from a clubbing during the mêlée on Twelfth street, and was not in itself so reprehensible as to demand dismissal; but his conduct upon the trial was enough to insure it.

A New Departure in Insurance.

The assembling in this city of Commissioners connected with the Insurance Department from over twenty States points to a new departure in the history of insurance. An official report of the first session, from May 24 to June 2, has just appeared, and the public are indebted to Mr. Henry S. Olcott, Secretary of the Convention, for this able compilation. In his excellent preface to it he has given a succinct history of the different branches of insurance.

Several important addresses were made to the Convention by gentlemen who have been for years connected with this interest. The information they afforded as to the practical working of the system will prove of general value, and the statistics, furnished by the most experienced authorities, will materially assist the future labors of the Convention, which is to meet again on the 18th of October. From Mr. H. A. Oakley, President of the National Board of Underwriters, we learn that during the twelve years the New York State Insurance Department has been in operation the aggregate amount of capital employed in the business of fire insurance was $483,938,761; that the amount of premiums received by the New York companies was $168,437,257, and that the losses paid were $91,849,497. In other States the aggregate amount of premiums received was $122,000,307, with losses of $73,829,416. Mr. G. W. Savage, President of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters and of the International Insurance Company of New York, alluded to the opinion expressed by Lord Mansfield, "that the relation which exists between the assured and the assurer should be one of good faith." Mr. Savage remarked that in consideration of the low rates at present charged to cover the fire risks it was impossible for a company to verify the statements made by applicants, and that in consequence a false affidavit should be regarded by our courts as a fraud. In speaking of the importance of fire insurance to the community he asked who would risk the vast sums of money now daily invested in all the large cities of the Union, and particularly in New York, in buildings and merchandise, if it were not for the protection given by fire insurance. Would mills or elevators, or any of those structures which have become absolutely necessary to our civilization, be built if not protected against loss by fire? Of the advantage of this risk resting with a corporation rather than with an individual he said:—"The responsibility of a company and their ability to pay can be known exactly, while it would be difficult to determine that of an individual." This is certainly a plea for more legal protection from fraud for all companies engaged in the insurance business, of whatever kind, than is usually given; the interests of the community demand it, for it is known that the rates charged by the fire companies are regulated with a view to ascertain percentage of deceit among their customers, which the law, it seems, fails to recognize. Mr. Savage testified that these corporations are doing their full share toward the building up of this country and promoting its advancement and prosperity.

In the marine department of insurance the progress of modern nautical science is illustrated by memoranda of premiums, obtained from the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company of this city, which showed an average reduction of about one-half in the rates paid now as compared with those charged at the beginning of the present century. Mr. Batterson, who represented the Travellers' Insurance Company of Hartford, stated that from practical results it is ascertained that the law of average in regard to accidents was equally reliable with that of mortality. For instance, for every person accidentally killed it is found that about eighty persons receive non-fatal injuries, producing an average disability of twenty days. The monthly average for accidental dead claims had been $7,726, and the monthly average for personal injuries non-fatal, $7,514. Mr. Elizur Wright, late Commissioner of the State of Massachusetts, unfolded his views of the valuation of policies and the question of surrender values.

The history of life insurance, as embodied in this report, is remarkable. It has been of slow and laborious growth, but its nature and influence being better understood, it has now become very popular. This is indicated by the figures given in the State reports, which show that since the establishment, in 1859, of a State Insurance department the volume of the business has been about fifteen times as great as that of the previous sixteen years. This progress is due to a variety of causes; but we notice more discernment than formerly on the part of our leading companies in their dealings with the public. This is recognized and appreciated. We have already alluded to the decision of the Equitable Life in regard to permits to the members of our militia. As an illustration of the good faith growing up between the public and these corporations we may mention that the above company, which was organized at the time when life insurance took a fresh start and under the influence of an altered condition of things, has only had occasion to dispute in our courts three claims—which, however, were very flagrant cases—out of more than sixty thousand policies. The Mutual Life, as well as the Equitable Life, have contributed from their books statistics which have formed the basis of some valuable tables showing how various are the laws and requirements of the different States. Much reform, it must be admitted, is needed, and if the object is attained for which Mr. G. W. Miller invited this Convention, and which he described in his opening address as being to create uniformity of State action relative to the government of insurance companies, much good will result. If wise and harmonious legislation be adopted it will tend to secure the interests of the assured and the stability and economical administration of the companies.

THE RIVERSIDE PARK MATTER reached yesterday its final determination for the present in the confirmation by Judge Barnard, of the Supreme Court, of the supplemental or amended report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment. This report was made in conformity with certain additional allowances ordered by the Judge to be made to owners of portions of the Bloomingdale road and the old Twelfth avenue embraced within the Park. There is still a good deal of dissatisfaction both as to the allowances granted to owners of property taken for the Park and in the assessments upon the property adjacent. There is the usual outcry of favoritism. Some claim that they have been left out in the cold altogether. It is not unlikely that the disaffected will appeal from the decision of Judge Barnard and that before this Park gets beyond its present stage—a park on paper—there will be a long and hotly contested litigation in the courts in regard to it.

Reconstruction in France.

At the present moment France is astir in consequence of her municipal elections. These elections will result in a fresh expression of the sentiments of the French people, and of course must exercise a potent influence on the policy of the government. The supplementary elections encouraged M. Thiers in his policy of delay. It remains to be seen what will follow from the municipal elections. Some facts in connection with the recent elections deserve to be noted. It is most significant that M. Gambetta has been sent to the Assembly by four different constituencies—Paris, Marseilles, Bordeaux and the Department of the Var. It is also significant that M. Rouher, so recently omnipotent in France, was defeated by a crushing majority in the Charente, where it was supposed he would have but slight opposition. Of the one hundred and seventeen vacancies ninety-one have been filled by men who declare themselves to be moderate republicans and supporters of M. Thiers. Only one legitimist and one monarchist found a place. The Assembly will soon adjourn until October, and during the interval we are likely to hear something of the plans of the various parties. It is rumored that Thiers, encouraged by the late elections, means to retain in office MM. Favre, Simon and Picard, and that Gambetta, after he has organized the left, will be taken into the Ministry. For the present the tide is more in favor of the republic than it has been since the re-establishment of order. The monarchists are not inactive, neither are the imperialists; but M. Thiers is unquestionably popular as the Executive Chief. Things are safe until October. After that, with such men as M. Rouher and M. Ledru-Rollin in the Assembly and Gambetta trying to lead the left, we may look with confidence for something like life.

The Southern Democracy.

The democracy down South are in a transition state. The "new departure" has caused a great commotion among them, from the Susquehanna to the Rio Grande, and from the Chesapeake to the wild woods of Arkansas. In Maryland, the other day, in their State Convention, the democrats, not being fully prepared to take the new or to abandon their old departure, compromised the matter by splitting the difference, and they contrived to split it by doing without a platform of any sort. This ought to be satisfactory to all the party, for it leaves the Bourbons and the progressives each to take their own course. This is as much as could be expected from the Maryland democrats at their first Convention on the new departure, with all their "time-honored democratic principles" against the "blasted nigger;" but in or before the month of July, 1872, they will doubtless, with a mighty effort, gulp him down, though it may be as the whale swallowed Jonah, only to gulp him up again.

In Virginia the democrats, under their reconstructed title of the conservative party, are to have a State Convention in August for the purpose of a party reorganization. They accepted the situation in accepting the reconstruction of their State according to the terms of Congress. What they mean, therefore, by a reorganization of the party we are left to conjecture. We suspect, however, that they mean to drop the slow coach called the conservative party, and to reproclaim themselves as belonging to the national democratic party on the new departure, with some reservations in favor of the time-honored principles of Jefferson and the resolutions of '98 and '99.

In North Carolina the democracy are evidently resolved upon a reconstruction of the State which may bring them into collision with Congress, and the political excitement throughout the Commonwealth keeps open the field for the Ku Klux and anti-Ku Klux desperadoes and outlaws of all descriptions.

In South Carolina the chivalry are under the despotic sway of Sambo, and with four hundred thousand "niggers" in the State against three hundred thousand whites, including the landholders, we can't perceive how Sambo is to be ruled out. The Palmetto chivalry, however, would have their Southern confederacy, and in their late slaves, lifted up to be their masters, they have their reward.

In Georgia Mr. Alexander H. Stephens and the fiery Toombs, who is himself a magazine of skyrockets and Chinese crackers, have, in the wake of Jeff Davis and the "lost cause," been playing the mischief with the "new departure." They will have a party of their own on the "old departure." And the spirit and the men for a similar movement are waking up in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas and Arkansas. There are some democratic bolters against the "folly of Vallandigham" in Tennessee; but the active managers of the party in that State have learned a world of wisdom from "Andy Johnson," and are not going back to those democratic principles which were swept away and buried by the Deluge.

Kentucky, of all the Southern States, is the greatest puzzle to the political philosophers. First, her neutrality in the rebellion, and then her two State governments, one Union and one rebel, gave "Honest Old Abe Lincoln" more trouble than Louisiana, shutting up the mouths of the Mississippi, or Virginia thundering at the gates of Washington. The divided allegiance of Kentucky, between the Union and the Southern confederacy in the war, was a puzzle; but with the return of her rebel soldiers after the war she became a case for reconstruction. Left to herself, however, she has drifted slowly along, until now we find her democracy accepting the new and fighting for the old departure. All taken together, including those of Kentucky, we apprehend that the Southern democracy will make a lively time of it in the Democratic Presidential Convention of 1872.

TEXAS appears to be perfectly satisfied with her present limited banking facilities. Since the passage of the act of July 12, 1870, authorizing the issue of fifty-four millions of dollars additional circulation in the Western and Southern States the banking circulation in Texas has been increased but one hundred and forty-five thousand dollars.

The Board of Health and the Tenement Houses.

A number of families have just been removed from the five-story tenement house in Cherry street called Gotham court, in order that it might undergo disinfection and fumigation. This den surpasses in filth and wretchedness the dirtiest cellar in the Seven Dials. It is a huge towering pile, five stories high, and every avenue or corridor running through it is as foul as Vulcan's stithy and every breath of air to be found under its roof is tainted and rendered thick with foul poisons. Yet here children were being reared, and men and women existed, and even clung to their rank sty as if they enjoyed happiness and health there, when the health officers came to take them out of it. This Gotham court is probably the most noisome tenement house in the city, and yet to some degree, and in many instances to a degree almost as replete with disease and foulness, every tenement house in the city partakes of the worst and most deadly characteristics of this Gotham court.

There are 20,000 tenement houses in New York city, and in these fully half a million people are crowded; but some of them are of a sort that deserve some better name than that of tenements. Some of them are inhabited by only three or four families—the families of mechanics and skilled workmen, whose incomes permit them, by close saving, to live in flats and take care, to some extent, of the health and morals of their children by keeping them out of the dirtier crowds of tenement house families, and yet will not allow of their living altogether to themselves or in the cleaner thoroughfares devoted especially to millionnaires. These are not, however, a majority of the tenement houses. The greater portion of them are huge barracks, littered all over with dirt and festering humanity, something like the plague spot that is called Gotham court. There are two hundred and ninety-four thousand persons living in such as these in New York city, according to the report of the Board of Health. The death rate, taking the average of all these, is seven per cent per annum, while the rate of social destruction—crime engendered by the pestilent associations among the mass—is beyond calculation. It is probable that seven-tenths of all the crimes committed in New York city—the murders and burglaries and those other demoralizing crimes that are included in beggary and prostitution—spring from the training of tenement houses. From these also spring the foul gases that make our epidemics, the seeds of infection that produce cholera and fevers, the deadly blights that maim and degrade the children of our very poor.

As the great evil of the metropolis the tenement house system calls for some immediate and great remedy. The action of the Board of Health will not cure the evil any more than it will permanently cure Gotham court. It will give that place a slight scrubbing, which it will have forgotten in a week. There needs something more than partial disinfectants. There is required some means of attracting the wretches in these dens to other localities. It is thought that the Viaduct Railway and the numerous other rapid transit schemes, by which the poorest of our populace may contrive to go farther away from the busy marts, may effect a change for the better in the matter, but it is a change that will hardly be noticeable. Until North and East River are bridged at every cross street of the city, and the great barriers of water that now circumscribe the limits of the metropolis are substantially removed, the wretchedly poor of the city must herd together like wild beasts for the bare maintenance of life.

Another Land to Conquer.

Levuka, Ovalau, of the Fiji group, exports nine thousand bales of cotton of the best sea island quality—better, it is said, than that of South Carolina—per year. It has a newspaper called the Fiji Times, whose columns are well filled with advertisements, and whose motto is—"Sworn to no master, of no sect am I." Among the advertisements is one headed—"San Francisco and overland to England." The natives wear for dresses the satin-like bark of a tree, which, it is thought, might be successfully used in the manufacture of printing paper. But isn't this rather "too thin?" Levuka is becoming a port of considerable importance as a coaling station since the establishment of the line of steamers between Australia and San Francisco. In the number of the Times before us we notice a column of maritime news under the head of "Dates of Departures of Labor Vessels." That may be considered a "new name for it," when we read that a number of vessels have sailed on a "labor cruise"—that is, to pick up laborers wherever they can "gather them in" from among the adjacent islands. The laborer is, of course, worthy of his hire, and in the Fijis the Europeans rope him in according to the higher law. The principal civilized occupants of the island consist of about fourteen hundred Englishmen and some forty Americans—one of whom, a New York boy, has just returned home after twenty-three years' absence among the Fijis. How long will it be before some of our "manifest destiny" men will want to annex the group of Fiji Islands to the great American group of States?

THE FAMINE AND THE CHOLERA IN PERSIA.—The latest news from the East is of the most distressing character. Persia is suffering from that terrible visitation, the cholera. After months of famine, during which time the sufferings of the unfortunate Persians have been fearful in the extreme, the cholera now appears to complete their measure of misery. Dreadful, indeed, as were the sufferings of the people with the one, they will be increased tenfold now with the cholera extending and laying waste whole districts. Since 1817 we have had nothing so dreadful to record. It almost seems as if the cholera was again about to make its tour of death as it did in the first quarter of the present century.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS for the quarter ending June 30, 1871, show a somewhat remarkable turn in the tide of emigration. The number of actual immigrants arriving at the port of New York during the period mentioned was 101,015, of whom [illegible],814 were natives of Germany, 26,149 were from Ireland, and 29,529 from England and other British localities.

GLADSTONE'S COUP D'ETAT.

Herald Special Report from London.

General Amazement at the Manner in Which the Purchase System Has Been Abolished.

The Vote of the House of Lords Anticipated.

The Action of the Government Severely Criticised.

OPINIONS OF THE LONDON PRESS.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The following despatch has been received from our correspondent:—

LONDON, July 20, 1871.

There is great excitement among the intelligent classes at the extraordinary action of the government regarding the bill for the reorganization of the British army.

The most important part of the bill, the abolishment of the purchase system, was approved by the House of Commons.

But the vote in the House of Lords was not on the main issue, now intended to be final.

ANTICIPATING THE ACTION OF THE LORDS.

The Lords by their vote only rejected the amendment which had been made in the House of Commons, without taking action with regard to the rest of the bill.

The government thereupon assumed that the House of Lords was not opposed to the principal measure of the bill, and abolished the purchase system by the royal prerogative for the regulation of the army.

THE TIMES SEVERE ON MR. GLADSTONE.

The London Times says the act of the Ministers abolishing the system of purchase of army commissions by royal warrant is a violent wrench of the constitution and a wanton setting aside of the will of the House of Lords.

The London Times regrets that this grave issue has been raised, but expresses the hope that the Lords will, in their future action, think of the effect upon the officers of the army, rather than the indignity to their own privileges.

THE DAILY NEWS IN FAVOR OF GLADSTONE'S MEASURE.

The London Daily News approves the conduct of the government in making themselves the exponents of the popular will, and recommends that the Lords pass the bill abolishing the purchase of army commissions.

THE TELEGRAPH EULOGIZING THE MINISTRY.

Herald Special Report from Madrid.

Official Announcement of the New Cabinet Formed by Marshal Serrano.

The Cause of the Ministerial Resignation.

Shall the International Society be Suppressed or Not?

THE PROCEEDINGS IN THE CORTES.

TELEGRAM TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.

The following despatch has been received from the HERALD correspondent at the capital of Spain:—

MADRID, July 20, 1871.

The formation of a new Cabinet has been officially announced.

The Ministerial crisis was brought about through dissensions regarding the International Society.

MARSHAL SERRANO DOWN ON THE INTERNATIONAL.

Marshal Serrano persisted in proposing rigorous measures against the members of the International. He held that it was necessary for the welfare of the country that this revolutionary organization should be put down and all its prominent members ordered to leave the country.

ZORILLA IN FAVOR OF A CONCILIATORY POLICY.

Minister Zorilla and two of his colleagues opposed the motion, expressing an opinion that the importance of the International Society had been exaggerated and that no danger was threatening from that organization.

Further discussions widened the breach still more and led to the resignation of the whole Ministry, which was accepted by the King.

HOW THE MINISTERIAL RESIGNATION WAS RECEIVED IN THE CORTES.

There was great uproar in the Cortes when the news of the resignation of the Cabinet was communicated, but after some remarks from the Ministerial benches the excitement calmed down.

A message was received from the King saying that a new Ministry would be formed within twenty-four hours. The Cortes thereupon suspended its session until a new Cabinet is chosen.

THE NEW CABINET.

Marshal Serrano, who has been entrusted by the King with the formation of a new Ministry, has already designated the following members:—

Minister of Justice	Señor Gomez.
Minister of Foreign Affairs	Señor Candan.
Minister of Marine	Admiral Malcampo.
Minister of Finance	Señor Camadro.

Canada Taking a Hand in the Cuban War—Two Hundred Recruits Enlisted in Montreal.

MONTREAL, July 21, 1871.

It has just become known that an agent of the New York Cuban Junta has been in Montreal recruiting for an expedition, and that he has met with considerable success, having enlisted a number of volunteer officers and about 200 men. The officer who has charge of the Montreal Branch is is Mr. Ben Wood, Major of the Prince of Wales Rifles. Captain Stormes of the Iowa corps, with two officers of the Victorias, are also engaged. They have succeeded in raising 200 men, many of whom are returned members of the Red River expedition. They are all hardy and desperate fellows, and determined to carry out the programme laid down for them. They are to receive $100 bounty before leaving Montreal, and on arriving in New York they are to receive six months' pay in advance. They will receive orders to start as soon as the steamer Virgin arrives in New York from Trinidad. It is said that a number of the Hochelaga Light Infantry have promised to enroll themselves in the expedition, but they are waiting for an advance payment. It is certain that a large number of desperate characters who are without money or employment, have been enlisted, and that they will leave this city as soon as they will receive orders. The authorities are apparently unaware of the affair.

THIERS.

Conversations with the President of the French Republic.

His Opinion of the Orleans Princes—He Doubts the Legitimists and Believes the Bonapartes Dead—Ungenerous Treatment by Bismarck—No More War Estimates.

PARIS, July 4, 1871.

Perhaps if the world understood M. Thiers better it would more respect his present position, and would not regard him as merely holding on to the name of republic while watching the opportunity to cheat what must now be accepted as the general aspiration of France for that form of government. It is with a view to give a correct insight into his real thoughts than seems to be current that I jot down the result, in a summary, rambling way, of several recent conversations with this remarkably interesting man. And first for his much misunderstood relations with the Orleans Princes. He has for these gentlemen

"UNE TENDRE SOLICITUDE."

He loves them as though they were his children, but he has felt assured the moment was not propitious for any claim on their part to the throne, and he could not lend them his influence, as he appreciated the fact that to run counter to the strong republican tendency of the nation was to insure a terrible civil war. As the result of much attention paid to the matter

M. THIERS BECAME CONVINCED

last fall that throughout France a republican feeling was predominant. He was much struck to observe this to be the case in the army also, and as he knew that the majority of the Orleanists would deplore any action on the part of the Princes likely to render them unpopular, he has all along counselled their remaining quiet. It is only just to say that none of the Princes have evinced the slightest desire to force matters. They but wished to reside in France. It is affecting to see those exiles so absolutely satisfied with the mere freedom to come and go at pleasure. They love France too much, M. Thiers feels sure, to endanger her peace, more especially at such a moment. This answer they have made to all those more ardent adherents of theirs who urged the issue of programmes and the like. They but ask to SERVE FRANCE, NOT RULE HER.

Secure in the honesty of their intentions, the real and unaffected patriotism of them all, M. Thiers has had great pleasure in receiving the Princes. He was prudent enough, however, while inviting them, to invite at the same time the most marked among the republican Deputies. This was done to prevent the comments which it was known the legitimist organs and the Bonaparte organs would surely make. It is false that M. Thiers demanded a promise from the Duke d'Aumale and the Prince de Joinville that they would not take their seats in the Assembly when the elections were validated. M. Thiers deems their right unquestionable, and anticipates not the slightest danger from their presence, certainly not from their actions. In fact he deems it wiser the Princes should be seen everywhere. "The more they mingle with the people the more will the latter learn to esteem them and the less will they fear political manœuvres on their part," says M. Thiers; and he adds:—"They are not parties from whom we may expect coup d'états; they are too honest, too straightforward for that."

He has

and less liking for them, and watches them closely. It was in this duty of watchfulness that he checked the eager recruiting of General the Baron de Charette, who was raising a strong legion in Brittany.

THE ELECTIONS.

The result, so far as known, of the elections, affords infinite pleasure to M. Thiers, who, by the advent of so many new supporters in the Assembly, is more than ever master of the situation. He thinks that this unequivocal expression of the desires and tendencies of France proves the possibility of the successful establishment of a "moderate republic" here, and will bend his utmost energies to its accomplishment. He is sincerely desirous of gratifying the "majority" and will strive against all or any attempt at reviving monarchical institutions.

M. Thiers is pleased to see the country

PRONOUNCE SO COMPLETELY AGAINST THE BONAPARTES.

In the case of Monsieur Rouher, to secure whose election a million of francs were expended, the defeat is marked and will doubtless crush the hopes of even the most sanguine adherents of the ex-Emperor. M. Thiers considers that all danger from that quarter is averted, and will now labor heartily for the firmest republican foundation. He is strongly in favor of the return of the Assembly to Paris. He utterly despairs [illegible] of the troubles which the Commune made for the government of France, and is pained to hear so constantly of the cruelties of the Prussians in the invaded districts. He has directed that strenuous representations be made on the subject, and complained personally a few days since to General Fabrice, the Prussian commander at St. Denis, who was paying him a visit.

NO MORE WAR ESTIMATES.

M. Thiers will not have any of the estimates of the War Department reduced, and is, above all, desirous that the new and extensive fortifications to be erected around Paris be at once commenced. At his orders the surveys have been made, and I am assured that in some places the military engineers are already at work.

THE AMOUNT OF LABOR

gone through with by M. Thiers is enormous, but he is in excellent spirits. The success of the loan cheered him, and now the result of the elections gives him renewed vigor. He receives daily, from all parts of the country, the strongest and in many cases the most unexpected adhesions.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

A Malicious Slander Refuted.

MEMPHIS, July 21, 1871.

The following will appear in to-morrow's Avalanche—

MEMPHIS, July 21, 1871.

Before and since my arrival in Memphis this day my attention has been called to slanderous articles in certain radical newspapers, which attack my private character in connection with that of a lady who, it is falsely stated, was travelling under my charge. It is deemed due to myself, as well as to my personal friends, to state unequivocally and without delay that the story, in the whole and in all its essential parts, is unmistakably the instigation of malice and is hereby pronounced utterly false.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

KU KLUX IN KENTUCKY.

A Full Exposure of the Kentucky Ku Kluxes.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 21, 1871.

Nine men were brought before United States Commissioner Beatty to-day, charged with being concerned in recent Ku Klux outrages near Fitchburg, Estille county, Ky., in which one man was killed and several wounded, all of the Ku Klux party.

Barry Vaughan, one of the negroes Ku Kluxed, testified to an attack on his house, in which one of the Ku Klux was killed, and recognized one of the prisoners as engaged in it.

Thomas Payne, one of the Ku Klux party, gave State's evidence. He said he belonged to a Ku Klux gang, and had joined it to escape their persecutions. He was with the party who attacked Vaughan's house, and pointed out six of the prisoners whom he recognized in the party, and mentioned the names of a number of others not present. He had been warned by them to leave the State and his house had been searched for him. He had joined the band to escape injury and learn all about them, so that he could inform on them and get satisfaction for his wrongs. He told of several bands of Ku Klux in Estille county organized and under orders of their leaders. He repeated several instances of outrages by them when he was forced to be present.

It appears that the cause of their organization, which is known to exist only in the mining district of Estille and Powell counties, was the entrance of an Ohio company into the district, who employed a large number of negro hands, thus arousing jealousy and ill feeling among the whites in that vicinity. Payne's evidence, if true, is most important, as it is the first instance of a so-called Ku Klux exposing his organization and companions.

It is stated that Cockerill, a member of the Kentucky State Senate, is at the bottom of the organization. He was frequently referred to by the members as their leader, and it seemed to be generally understood among them that he was a prominent mover in their affairs. The prisoners were held in $1,000 bail each to answer at the October term of of the federal Court.

Payne was interviewed this evening and gave an account of the secrets of the Klan, as follows:—"I first signified my intention of joining the band to Henry Adams, working in the same drift with me. He took me to the middle of the drift, and in the presence of John Patricking, after asking me to put my left hand on my heart and hold up my right, he administered the following oath:—

> You do solemnly swear you will not reveal a sign or password of this secret organization to which you now attach yourself; also, you will aid and assist any brother in any difficulty in which he may become involved, and you will support the democracy; and may you suffer your body to be cut in four parts and cast to the four quarters of the earth before you will reveal a sign or password of this secret organization.

There was also something about negroes in it. Adams also gave me signs and passwords to recognize a brother at a distance. We raise the hat with the right hand, pull the brim down over the right eye. The answer is the same with the left hand. Both then draw their left hands across their mouths, as if washing, and strike their breasts with their right. The grips are made by grasping hands in the usual manner, with the thumb pressing slightly between the other's thumb and forefinger, saying, "I am all right; how are you?" He answers, "I am all right." I reply, "How may I know you are all right?" He answers, "By word or or letter." "I ask, "Which do you prefer?" He may call for either. If he asks for a letter I tell him, "Spell." He says, "S;" I say "L;" he says, "A;" I say, "P;" he says, "U;" I say, "P;" he says, spelling out, "Slap up," which is the text word of the order. I get into a difficulty and am overpowered, and desire to know if my brother is present. I lock arms across my breast as if cold, saying I wish I knew if any of St. Mary's children were about. If any brother is about he will come to my aid. If my opponent be a member of the band he will immediately desist. When travelling at night, on meeting a person and desiring to know if he is a brother, I say "halt!" and give a loud slap with my hand on my thigh. He answers with two slaps. When it is desired by the captain to call a meeting he sends the Marshal to notify each member. The place of meeting is always in some dense wood, without fire or light of any kind. No man must leave home for the place of meeting before dark. When the meeting is assembled and the roll called the absentees are sent for [illegible] compelled to come under arrest. No [illegible] is ever made unless every member of the band is along.

FIRES.

Extensive Conflagration in West Forty-Seventh Street.

At fifteen minutes before nine o'clock last night a fire broke out in the boiler room of the two story building Nos. 628 and 630 West Forty-seventh street, occupied by Kenny & Clark as a planing mill. The front of the building was of corrugated iron, the balance being of wood. Their stock and building were damaged about $20,000 and were fully covered by insurance. The adjoining building, Nos. 622, 624 and 626, a large five story brick building, occupied by C. P. Bucking as a sheepskin and morocco manufactory, was damaged about $5,000, in consequence of the flames extending to the top floor. The dwelling house of Thomas Ing, on the opposite side of the street, was damaged $600. The adjoining building, No. 627, occupied on the ground floor by John Darragh as a stable and the upper portion as a tenement house, was damaged $1,500 on building and $1,000 on furniture. Darragh, with the assistance of a detachment of police under command of Captain Killalea, of the Twenty-second precinct, succeeded in getting all his horses from the burning building. The stable of Henry Buchin, No. 629, was damaged $500. The rear of the above building was occupied by James Donavan as a slaughter house, and was damaged $500. John W. Stevens & Brothers' lumber yard, at Nos. 632 and 634, was damaged $5,000. The rear of Nos. 641 and 643, occupied as a rawhide manufactory, was also damaged $2,500. The cause of the fire and amount of insurance could not be ascertained last night.

Destruction of a Factory in Flushing.

Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock a fire broke out in Christie's sash and blind factory, near the Main street depot, and, although the Fire Department was promptly on hand, on account of the want of water the building, together with a large portion of the stock was a total loss. The fire communicated to the dwelling of John Sharkey, adjoining, which was also destroyed. Mr. Christie's loss was about $5,000, and Mr. Sharkey's between $3,000 and $4,000. Both buildings were insured for about half their value. The Fire Department is in good condition and discipline, but would be nearly useless in most cases of fire on account of the impossibility of obtaining water.

Burning of a Cotton Mill Near Hudson, N. Y.

HUDSON, N. Y., July 21, 1871.

The cotton mill of Alexander Abbott, at Valatie, was destroyed by fire this morning, together with its contents. The loss is $80,000; insured for $50,000, in New York, Providence and Hartford companies. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

COMMERCIAL AGENCIES.

ST. LOUIS, July 21, 1871.

The case of Mellier vs. Shepherd, Manager of Bradstreet's Commercial Agency, was before the Circuit Court yesterday, the hearing being on the motion of defendant to dissolve the injunction granted a few days ago enjoining the circulation of the July number of Bradstreet's Commercial Reports, on the ground of the false and injurious rating of the plaintiff. Several witnesses testified to the solvency of Mr. Mellier, his business qualifications, integrity, &c.; also that he is doing a large and prosperous business.

Mr. King, formerly an employé of the agency, testified to the mode of transacting the business of the agency. He said that most of the reports were manufactured in the office. From the time Mr. Shepherd took charge the reports were based on the old reports. The city reports were all copied into the letter book, and then forwarded to New York. A book called the "Black Book" was kept, in which all unfavorable reports were copied. Every one in the office had access to this book. He testified that Bradstreet's agency was partial to subscribers, and that a gold-headed cane would often raise a man's rating. The plaintiff had been reduced from the rating of "G C D D," a very high rating, to "D E," which meant that he was doing business with a capital of less than $500. Subscription to the agency generally meant an increase of credit. The witness further stated that he had manufactured hundreds of reports himself.

RAILROAD COLLISION IN NEW JERSEY.

MORRISTOWN, July 21, 1871.

A collision occurred at five o'clock this afternoon at Hinchman's mills, six miles west of here, on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, between a freight train going west and a coal train bound east. Both engines came together while going at the rate of fifteen miles an hour, the engine of the coal train completely mounting the other and so remaining. The engineers and firemen had time to jump and escaped uninjured. No one was hurt. The engines and three freight and twenty coal cars are completely ruined.

The official returns received at the Bureau of Statistics show that during the quarter ending June 30, 1871, the total number of passengers arrived at the port of New York from foreign countries was 107,114, of whom 64,213 were males and 42,901 females. Of the total number arrived 101,015 were actual immigrants—males, 60,032; females, 40,983. Ages—Under fifteen, 19,812; fifteen and under forty, 71,056; forty and upwards, 10,147. The deaths on the voyage were ninety-two, of whom fifty-four were males and thirty-eight females. The principal nationalities of the immigrants were as follows:—England, 17,845; Scotland, 4,613; Wales, 399; Ireland, 20,146; Great Britain, locality unknown, 6,672; Germany, 30,314; Austria, 1,983; Sweden, 5,127; Norway, 1,286; Denmark, 1,[illegible]; France, 849; Switzerland, 1,365; Spain, 104; Italy, 8,671; Holland, 409; Belgium, 78; Russia, 295; Poland, 153; Cuba, 43[illegible]; Bermuda, 77.

National Bank Circulation.

The total circulation issued to the national banks to date is $313,636,950. The act of July 12, 1870, authorized the issue of $54,000,000 additional circulation and the establishment of gold national banks, to which circulation can be issued upon the deposit of United States bonds at the rate of eighty per cent upon the par value thereof. Since the passage of the act circulation has been issued to the following States:—Virginia, $744,000; Illinois, $3,0[illegible]; West Virginia, $950,000; Michigan, $1,166; Kentucky, $2,200,100; Indiana, $1,174,000; Wisconsin, $324,000; Ohio, $1,760,000; Tennessee, $1,300,000; Iowa, $1,076,000; Louisiana, $1,200,000; Minnesota, $380,000; Georgia, $561,000; Kansas, $176,100; North Carolina, $609,[illegible]; Missouri, $1,220,000; South Carolina, $258,000; Nebraska, $212,000; Texas, $145,000; Colorado, $81,000; New Mexico, $135,000; Oregon, $137,000; Alabama, $250,000; California, $3,2[illegible]. The law requires that one-half of the increased circulation shall be apportioned among those States not having an excess already, according to population, and one-half according to the existing banking capital, resources and business of each State or Territory. The census returns of the valuation of property and banking capital have not yet been received, and the proportion of circulation for the States of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois cannot probably be ascertained with any accuracy until about the 1st of October. It is probable, however, that there will be sufficient circulation for all of the Southern and Western States when the full census returns are received. No additional circulation can be issued to the Eastern and Middle States.

Commerce of Australasia—Subsidy for the American Steamers.

A statement has been completed at the Treasury Department from the latest statistics showing the imports into Australia and New Zealand, as follows:—From Great Britain, £17,924,420; from the United States, £1,354,385; all other countries, £3,812,473. Stated by percentage they are as follows:—From Great Britain, seventy-seven and six-tenths; from the United States, five and five-tenths; all other countries, sixteen and six-tenths. The Parliament of New South Wales has recently voted a subsidy of $75,000 to a monthly line of American steamers between San Francisco and Sydney. The imports of Australia and New Zealand being largely manufactured goods it is believed that a very large and profitable commerce will spring up with our Western coast, and if Congress made provision for a line of steamers they would be fully sustained.

Treasury Balances.

The balances in the Treasury at the close of business to-day were:—Currency, $3,213,000; coin, $9[illegible]; certificates, [illegible].

Personal.

A letter received from General Spinner, dated Berlin, July 1, says that he was to dine with Minister Bancroft the next day, in company with the Rothschilds and other bankers, to talk over the new American loan.

DEATH OF ANOTHER VICTIM.

The interest created by the riot of the 12th instant is but slowly dying out. The official reports absorb much attention and are freely commented on, while meetings are being held and the course of the authorities denounced in expressive if not eloquent style. Below will be found the official report of Major General Shaler, giving a brief and succinct history of the trouble and the movements of the troops.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF MAJOR GENERAL SHALER.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
New York, July 19, 1871.

SIR—I have the honor to report that on the morning of the 10th inst. I was personally waited upon by His Honor the Mayor, who informed me that on the evening of that day a police order would be issued to prevent any parades or processions upon Wednesday, the 12th inst., but that owing to the excited state of much of the populace there might nevertheless arise disturbances which might render the aid of the military necessary. Accordingly we examined section 243 of chapter 80 of the laws of 1870, and I received the following written communication under that law:—

NEW YORK, July 10, 1871.

In order that the police authorities of this city may be well assisted in preventing a disturbance of the peace, of which on Wednesday next, the 12th inst., there is anticipation and imminent danger, I desire you to order and have in readiness at their armories for active service three regiments of infantry and one troop of cavalry.

Very truly, yours,
A. OAKEY HALL,
Mayor of the city of New York.

To Major General ALEXANDER SHALER, Commandant of the First division.

During the day of the 11th inst. I also received a verbal request from the President of the Police Department to furnish an increased force. On the 11th, at about midnight, I was further requested by His Excellency the Governor of the State to furnish all the military aid required in assistance of the civil authorities. In answer to these requisitions the following order was issued from these headquarters:—

SPECIAL ORDERS—NO. 16.
HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 11, 1871.
[Extract.]

* * * * *

II. In obedience to a requisition from the civil authorities the following organizations are hereby ordered to assemble at their respective armories, in fatigue dress, fully armed and equipped for actual service on Wednesday next, the 12th inst., at seven o'clock A. M.:—First regiment infantry, Sixth regiment infantry, Seventh regiment infantry, Eighth regiment infantry, Ninth regiment infantry, Eleventh regiment infantry, Twelfth regiment infantry, Twenty-second regiment infantry, Sixty-ninth regiment infantry, Seventy-first regiment infantry, Eighty-fourth regiment infantry, Washington Gray troop, cavalry, Battery C, Battery G. The infantry will be supplied with forty rounds of ammunition and the artillery with twenty rounds per gun.

By order of
Major General ALEXANDER SHALER.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

At two A. M. on the 12th inst. I personally informed the Superintendent of Police of my action, and at six A. M. reported to the Commander-in-Chief in person, with a portion of my staff, at Police Headquarters.

The accompanying map, prepared as a part of this report, an examination of which is invited, will show the location of the forces under arms at seven A. M. The blue spots mark the quarters of the infantry regiments ordered on duty, the red those of the artillery and the orange those of the cavalry; the blue crosses the quarters of the infantry regiments and the orange cross that of the cavalry regiments, over which guards were placed.

It being apprehended at Police Headquarters that the necessary withdrawal of most of the police force from the Thirty-first precinct would invite disorder along the line of the Boulevard, it was deemed prudent to establish an armed force in the vicinity of Elm Park, and to secure the greatest amount of protection with the least number of men a regiment armed with breech-loaders and a squadron of cavalry were despatched by the service of the following orders at half-past seven A. M.:—

SPECIAL ORDERS—NO. 17.
HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
New York, July 12, 1871.

I. The commanding officer of the Washington Gray Troop will report immediately with his command to the commanding officer of the Seventy-first regiment of infantry, at the armory of the regiment, corner of Thirty-fifth street and Broadway.

By order of
Major General ALEXANDER SHALER.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
New York, July 12, 1871.

Lieutenant Colonel GEORGE D. WOLCOTT, Commanding Seventy-first Regiment:—

COLONEL—Upon the receipt of this you will march your command up the Boulevard to the Thirty-first precinct police station, in 100th street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, and put yourself in communication with Captain Helme or other police officer in charge. You will regulate your movements so as to support the police force in the discharge of their duties, and for this purpose you will confer with the officer in command and keep yourself informed as to his movements.

The service which is required of you is, as you will appreciate, one of a delicate nature and one in which you must be guided by circumstances and your own judgment. The police will enforce the law so far as they can, and if unable to do so will call upon you for assistance, which you will render, so as to uphold them in the discharge of their duties. You will keep your command in the ranks and see that the men behave quietly and orderly and not allow any straggling, so that they can be used at a moment's notice.

If compelled to send detachments to any point you will see that they are sufficiently large to enforce order, if possible without resorting to sanguinary measures.

You will not use force unless it becomes absolutely necessary to put down a riot or disturbance, and then you are expected to act with coolness and firmness. No positive orders can be given to guide you in your actions, but you must be governed by the exigencies of the case, and your authority is, therefore, necessarily discretionary. The Washington Gray Troop of cavalry has been directed to report to you. It will co-operate with your command under your orders.

By order.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH,
Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

At the same hour Colonel Scott, of the Eighth regiment, was ordered to occupy the City Arsenal, corner of White and Elm streets, with about three-fourths of his command, for the purpose of protecting the building and its contents, and of supporting the two batteries assembled there, should their services be required.

The balance of the Eighth regiment were left for the protection of their own armory.

Colonel Ward, of the Twelfth regiment, was ordered to occupy the State Arsenal, corner of Seventh avenue and Thirty-fifth street, with his command, leaving about forty men for the protection of his armory, and detailing an equal number for the care of the Seventy-first regiment armory.

The commanding officer of the Fifth regiment stationed fifty men in the armory of his regiment, in Hester street, near Bowery, and an equal number in the armory of the First and Third cavalry, at 37 and 39 Bowery.

The commanding officer of the Seventy-ninth battalion stationed one company in the armory, corner of Greene and Houston streets. The commanding officer of the Ninety-sixth regiment stationed one company in the armory, at the Germania Assembly Rooms, 291 and 293 Bowery. At eight o'clock A. M. Brigadier Generals Varian and Ward, commanding the Third and First brigades, respectively of the First division, reported to me in person and were directed to establish their headquarters as follows:—General Varian at the armory of the Seventh regiment and General Ward at the armory of the Twenty-second regiment. They were requested to visit the armories of the regiments of their command and see that the instructions issued were observed and hold themselves and their staffs in readiness for any service.

In order that the excited condition of the public mind might not be aggravated by the presence of uniformed soldiers in the public streets and that the troops should be well in hand for prompt action the following circular was issued to all the commanding officers:—

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 12, 1871.
[Official and confidential.]

The Major General commanding directs that the ammunition be not distributed until orders to do so are received from these headquarters.

You will please form your companies as soon as the men arrive and keep them within the armory. Loitering about the doors and neighboring saloons will under no circumstances be permitted. If necessary to prevent it appoint a provost guard, not otherwise. Men arrested by a provost guard will be returned for disobedience.

By order of Major General ALEXANDER SHALER.
WILLIAM H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, A. A. G. and Chief of Staff.

By nine o'clock A. M. reports received at headquarters of small bodies of armed men moving in various parts of the city became frequent. The first one of any magnitude or of positive seriousness was received about eight A. M., to the effect that a large crowd of evil disposed persons had made a demonstration at 142d street and Seventh avenue, and obliged all the workmen in that neighborhood to quit work and join their party. There being no available police force in that vicinity I despatched, at the request of the police authorities, Major Jussen, of my staff, with orders to the commanding officer of the Seventy-first regiment, stationed at Elm Park, to at once move one wing of his regiment and the Washington Gray cavalry in the direction of the point indicated. This movement was rapidly executed, but upon reaching 115th street information was received that the rioters had moved down through the Park. The infantry remained for a short time at 115th street and Eighth avenue and the cavalry at 110th street and Sixth avenue, and at fifteen minutes past twelve M. were returned to Elm Park by a telegraphic order.

About ten A. M. information was received that a considerable body of rioters was moving down Third avenue at Thirty-sixth street, and that the workmen engaged in laying Croton pipes had quit work and joined them. To support a detachment of police, sent on in omnibuses to intercept them, the First regiment infantry, Colonel Ferley commanding, was ordered to move across and up the Third avenue at twelve M. Colonel Ferley telegraphed from the Nineteenth precinct station house, "Everything quiet," and he was, after consultation with the police authorities, telegraphed to return to the armory and keep a sharp lookout.

At half-past ten A. M. an effort was made by an excited crowd to seize the arms stored in a reported Fenian headquarters in avenue A, near Fourth street, and Colonel Clark, of the Seventh regiment, was ordered to detail two companies to co-operate with Captain Mount, of the Eleventh precinct, in protecting them. These companies shortly afterwards reported back to their armory, the arms having been secured and removed to Police Headquarters by the men under Captain Mount.

About the same hour an exciting report to the effect that an armed mob had attacked Second avenue cars was received, and a detachment of police was despatched by Superintendent Kelso to the Eighteenth precinct. To support and co-operate with this detachment Colonel Sterry, of the Sixth regiment, was ordered to send four companies of his command to the Second avenue. The report proved unfounded, or at least was greatly exaggerated. The numerous details of policemen had reduced the force at Headquarters so much that it was deemed necessary to reinforce it by a portion of the military. Colonel Clark, of the Seventh regiment, was therefore ordered to send two companies and occupy the second floor of the Headquarters building. These companies were commanded respectively by Captains Kip and Ely.

The reports from different parts of the city had now become most exciting in their character. One from the immediate vicinity of Headquarters, brought in by detectives considered most reliable, was to the effect that an organized force, formed in companies with officers commanding, having a leader with a drawn sword at their head, was moving down Prince street towards Hibernia Hall. Instantly a plan of capture was determined upon. A body of policemen was to move down Mulberry street to Prince to meet the column; another body was to go down the Bowery to strike their rear, while a strong squad of detectives were to operate in making captures as circumstances would permit. To give more effect and render aid if required the Eighty-fourth regiment was moved from their armory at Fourth street down Broadway to Prince street, and the Eleventh regiment was moved from Delancey and Chrystie streets up the Bowery to Prince street. The rioters having received some information or entertained suspicions of an aggressive movement on the part of the authorities had marched off to another section of the city before the disposition made for their capture was consummated. Subsequently, however, a goodly number of captures were made by the police in the same neighborhood. While the regiments last named were on the march they were directed to Police Headquarters. As soon as the Eighty-fourth regiment vacated their armory their surplus arms were removed for safety to Police Headquarters.

A report was received about the same time, and since confirmed by the official report of the commanding officer of the regiment, that a body of about five hundred men were threatening the armory of the Fifth regiment at Hester street, near the Bowery. The building was occupied by a company placed there for its protection, and its presence deterred the mob from making an attack.

Information having been received about noon that the Orangemen had determined to parade, and that a considerable force would probably be required to aid the police in their protection, the Fifty-fifth regiment and the balance of the Seventy-ninth battalion were ordered to assemble at their armories. A detachment of the latter was ordered to Police Headquarters, and after conducting a body of prisoners to the Fifteenth precinct station house was returned to its armory to protect the United States Army building, in which it is located. Colonel Budke, of the Third cavalry, was authorized to assemble a part of his command to relieve a company of the Fifth infantry in the protection of the cavalry armory. Major General Woodward, commanding Second Division, N. G., very kindly offered the services of one of his regiments, armed with breech-loaders, already assembled at their armory. Their services were accepted and they were marched to the armory of the Ninety-sixth regiment, 291 and 293 Bowery, as a place most convenient of location and a point d'appui to the movements about to be commenced. At half-past one o'clock P. M. arrangements having been made by the police authorities to protect the procession that was to form at two o'clock at the corner of Eighth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, and desiring the support of the military, orders were issued to the Sixth, Colonel Sterry; Seventh, Colonel Clark; Ninth, Colonel Fisk; Twenty-second, Colonel Porter, and Eighty-fourth, Lieutenant Colonel Mitchell commanding, to report at once on the ground above designated to Brigadier General Varian, who had been assigned to the command of the escort and previously informed as to the number of regiments ordered to report to him, and the character of the services required of the escort. The instructions to General Varian were necessarily general in their character, and conveyed simply of my opinion as to the proportions of troops to be placed in front, on the flanks and in the rear of the procession; with the usual caution about preserving steadiness among the men and keeping the ranks well closed up; all the details of formation, which would be varied according to the number of men in the procession, and which could be determined only upon the ground, together with the orders and instructions to the different regimental commanders according to their respective positions in the column, and the attitude assumed by the crowds at different points, were necessarily left to the exercise of his own best judgment and discretion after he should have arrived upon the ground. When the Seventh regiment moved from the armory the two companies on duty at Police Headquarters joined the regiment, and the Eleventh regiment occupied the rooms vacated on the upper floors. The regiments were reported promptly as ordered. For the dispositions made of them and other information concerning the procession your attention is invited to the following report of General Varian, submitted immediately after the procession had been dismissed:—

HEADQUARTERS THIRD BRIGADE,
FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 12, 1871.

Major General ALEXANDER SHALER, commanding First Division N. G. S. N. Y.:—

GENERAL—In compliance with your instructions I have the honor to submit the following report:—

According to verbal instructions received from you this morning I proceeded to visit the several regiments of my brigade, and had completed the tour, with the exception of the Eighth regiment, when orders were received from your headquarters desiring my presence immediately.

In accordance with your directions to take command of the escort to the Orange procession I at once proceeded with my staff to the place designated, viz., Eighth avenue, corner of Twenty-ninth street. On my arrival there I found the procession under the protection of the police and ready to move.

The regiments of infantry ordered for escort service—viz., Sixth, Seventh, Ninth, Twenty-second and Eighty-fourth—arrived promptly and reported for duty. I at once disposed the troops in the following order:—Seventh regiment on the right, Twenty second and Eighty-fourth on the right and left flanks respectively, in columns of fours, Sixth and Ninth in the rear (Sixth leading) in column by companies. Before ordering the column to move I was informed by Inspector Walling, of the Police force, that the roofs of the houses on the avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets, east side, were covered with men who had been seen loading firearms, and at once directed Colonel Clark to detach the right wing of his regiment and take position on the opposite side of said block, facing those buildings, instructing him to return any fire which should commence, with sufficient vigor to stop it, and to rejoin his regiment after the column had passed that locality. These preparations being made I gave command for the column to move, and at once took position on the right with my staff. Having arrived on the corner of Twenty-third street I halted the column to give the right wing of the Seventh an opportunity to rejoin the command. The order to halt had scarcely been obeyed when I heard firing proceeding apparently from the rear, and immediately returned to ascertain the nature of the difficulty. On arriving I ordered the firing to cease, made inquiry as to the cause, and learned that the column had been fired into both from sidewalk and houses, and the fire had been promptly returned by some of the regiments, killing and wounding a number of persons.

Comparative order being restored I again put the column in motion, proceeding through Twenty-third street to Fifth avenue, down the avenue to Fourteenth street, thence around Washington Monument, down Fourth avenue to the junction of Third avenue without further disturbance than the occasional arrest of individuals on the sidewalk by the police. At the said junction the procession dismissed, and in accordance with your further instructions I disposed of the troops so as to enclose the space between Fourth and Eighth streets, and then cleared the space of the crowd assembled.

After remaining in the position described about an hour and a half I gave directions to the several commands to return to their armories and to hold themselves in readiness for further orders from your headquarters.

I cannot close without expressing my satisfaction at the alacrity and cheerfulness displayed by officers and men in obeying orders and giving me every assistance in their power; to the police for their hearty co-operation, and, lastly, to the men composing the procession—for it must be said, to their credit, that not a word was spoken or firearm displayed, or anything done by them which could be construed as a menace to any one, carrying out the instructions given them to the letter.

I have the honor to be, General, respectfully, your obedient servant,
J. M. VARIAN, Brigadier General.

The firing referred to in General Varian's report was telegraphed to headquarters, with the additional information that large bodies of rioters were confronting the head of the column, impeding its advance. Upon this the First regiment infantry, Colonel Ferley commanding, was ordered to move promptly down to and occupy Madison square, so as to flank the rioters should they continue in force in front of the procession when it reached that point, or render such assistance as General Varian might require. For a similar purpose two companies of the Eleventh regiment, afterwards reinforced by two other companies, were ordered to occupy Fourteenth street, near Irving place, and the Thirteenth regiment was moved up the Bowery as far as Fourth street. These movements were made on the left flank of the column under the supposition, which was afterwards found correct, that the bulk of the rioters would approach the route of the procession from the north and east. The Thirteenth regiment was subsequently reported to General Varian, and used in the dispositions made to insure order and quietude in the dispersion of the Orangemen. Those dispositions were simply the occupation by the troops of the streets running into and across the Bowery and Fourth avenue, from Astor place and Eighth street down to Fourth street. After the Orangemen had left for their homes the troops were gradually withdrawn and sent to their armories. The procession formed and marched from Eighth avenue shortly after two o'clock and arrived at its destination a little past four o'clock. While it was moving the troops not in the column or disposed of on the flanks, as above recited, were stationed, ready for immediate service, as follows, viz.:—The Fifth, Sixty-ninth, Fifty-fifth and Seventy-ninth in their respective armories; the Eighth at the City Arsenal, with Batteries C and G, Captain Searing and Lieutenant Wright commanding, and the Twelfth at the State Arsenal.

Having been requested by the President of the Police Department to furnish a guard for the protection of the United States Post Office, a detachment of two companies of the Sixty-ninth regiment were ordered, at twenty minutes past five P. M., to occupy the Post Office and remain there until seven o'clock the next morning. At the same time two companies of the Seventy-first regiment were ordered to occupy Kapp's Garden, at Eighth avenue and 112th street, until eight o'clock A. M., to prevent an anticipated attack upon a picnic party. At six o'clock A. M., apparent quietude having been restored in the vicinity of headquarters, the Thirteenth regiment was relieved with the thanks of the division commander and ordered to return to its armory; at the same time the First regiment, at Madison square, was ordered to return to its armory, and the four companies of the Eleventh, at Fourteenth street, to rejoin the regiment at Police Headquarters. These dispositions brought all the troops, except the Eleventh regiment, to the position occupied early in the day, where they remained, undisturbed by orders or alarms, the whole night.

No indications of a necessity for the use of large bodies of troops being apparent, General Ward and staff were relieved at eight A. M. and General Varian and staff at one A. M. of the 13th instant by the issue of the following notice:—

The Major General commanding desires me to say that the recent reports from the various precincts are so satisfactory that he does not consider it necessary for you to remain longer on duty. You will therefore please consider yourself relieved upon receipt of this, with the thanks of the commanding General for the efficient discharge of the difficult and delicate service of the day.

The regiments will all remain at their armories until further orders.

The night passed without any unusual excitement, and at eight o'clock A. M., with the consent of the police authorities, a gradual dismissal of all the troops, except the Twenty-second regiment, was begun. To the Twenty-second the following order was issued, viz.:—

SPECIAL ORDERS—NO. 18.
HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. G. S. N. Y.,
NEW YORK, July 13, 1871.

The commanding officer of the Twenty-second regiment infantry will proceed immediately with his command to Elm Park, corner of the Boulevard and Ninety-fourth street, to relieve the Seventy-first regiment and the Washington Gray troop of cavalry. Upon his arrival he will confer with the officer in charge of the Thirty-first police precinct, and co-operate with him in the preservation of order.

By order of Major General SHALER.
WM. H. CHESEBROUGH, Colonel, Assistant Adjutant General and Chief of Staff.

And at noon it was returned to the armory and dismissed.

In the following table will be found the strength of the several organizations ordered on duty and the list of casualties which occurred in this command:—

CASUALTIES.

Sixth regiment—Captain Adair, slightly grazed at the wrist; and private Kelly bruised in the leg.

Ninth regiment—Sergeant [illegible] Wyatt, Company F, killed; private H. C. Page, Company K, killed; Colonel James Fisk, Jr., ankle sprained; Captain B. F. Spencer, slightly hurt with a brick; private Pryor, Company A, wounded in leg, since dead; private Burns, Company B, stabbed in back; Sergeant T. C. Byers, Company B, kicked in side by mob.

Eighty-fourth regiment—Captain J. Douglas, Company K, cut in face by missile; private [illegible], Company I, shot in head, since dead; private W. Archer, Company F, flesh wound in wrist.

Seventh regiment—Sergeant [illegible], Company G, leg wounded by a stone; private Townsend, Company G, shot in neck, musket ball; private Morgan, Company H, scalp wound, slight.

There are two points in connection with the operations of this command on the 12th inst. to which the attention of the Commander-in-Chief is specially invited. First, the promptitude with which the troops assembled, and which the Commander-in-Chief by his presence had an opportunity of witnessing, and second, the increased numbers which each organization turned out. In many regiments this increase amounted to fifty per cent more than usual parades, and when is considered the peculiar circumstances under which the orders were issued, and the divided and excited state of the public mind, the extraordinary and unusual conditions which made it necessary to call upon the National Guard and the extremely delicate character of the service to be performed, the devotion of the officers and men to principles of law and order, and of complete subordination to the constituted authorities is strikingly apparent. Their conduct during the twenty-four successive hours of service was in the highest degree commendable. But one case of [illegible] is reported, and that is being attended to. A very small portion of the public press and a few persons with biassed and prejudiced minds have endeavored to create an impression that some of the regiments acted hastily in firing on Eighth avenue; but by a careful perusal of the official reports of all the principal commanding officers and a minute personal inquiry of the officers engaged and of the citizens residing in the neighborhood, into the circumstances attending the firing, I have failed to discover sufficient cause for the statements made. An official report of operations of a military body is not the place to discuss the merits of any proposition touching the conduct of the troops; that does not emanate from the recognized source of military authority. But as so much has been said by certain classes, and so much has been written calculated to bring into disrepute at least a portion of that organization which alone can protect and defend law-abiding citizens in their rights of person and property in times of riot and anarchy, I will be pardoned for assuming the guardianship of the honor and reputation of that part which I have the honor to command, so far as to declare my belief that what is said or written about the misconduct of the troops on the 12th inst. has a partisan origin and an unmanly aim. Letters of thanks from citizens in the neighborhood of the riot for the services rendered by the troops confirm the official reports of the officers. The testimony is abundant to show that long before the troops retaliated firearms were discharged and missiles of all kinds thrown at them from the sidewalks, windows and housetops, and it was not until an officer of the Eighty-fourth regiment had been struck down by a missile thrown from a housetop, one of the men shot in the head, and another had received a flesh wound, two men of the Ninth killed outright, a number wounded, and three of the Sixth wounded, that fire was opened on the mob. It is the opinion of the most experienced officers of the police force and military present that the troops did not fire any too soon; that in a very few minutes more it would have been difficult, if not impossible, to overpower the mob, and that the lives lost at Eighth avenue and Twenty-fourth street saved the sacrifice of a much greater number at some other point.

None can sympathize more deeply with the families that suffered by the unfortunate occurrences of the 12th inst. than do the men whose duty required them to use their weapons in sustaining the civil authorities and in defence of themselves. And it is not unreasonable to hope that while all are deploring the circumstances which made a resort to arms necessary, the public will not be unmindful of the bereaved families of the dead and suffering members of the National Guard.

The extremely delicate service of General Varian in commanding the escort to the procession was performed in a highly creditable manner and to my satisfaction, and it would be unjust to meritorious officers not to record herein my conviction that the regimental commanders of the escort acted with coolness and discretion; that the officers and men under them discharged their duty under circumstances calculated to excite and aggravate the most experienced troops, and are entitled, therefore, to the commendation of their superior officers. The orders issued from time to time were obeyed by all the commands on duty with an alacrity rarely witnessed, giving abundant evidence that the National Guard stands ready at all times to sustain the civil authorities in maintaining law and order against all aggressors.

To the members of my staff, who from early morning of the 12th until noon of the 13th were actively engaged, without rest, I am indebted for the prompt delivery of orders and despatches and other valuable assistance.

I desire also to record my acknowledgments for the professional services of Surgeon Cheeseman, formerly of the Seventh regiment, N. G., which were kindly volunteered and accepted early on the morning of the 12th.

Permit me in conclusion, while alluding to the meritorious services of those under my command, to confirm what the public press have already said of the gallant conduct of the police force engaged on that day. It was my duty to keep in constant communication with the Commander-in-Chief and the police authorities from early morning until the excitement of the public mind had subsided. At headquarters but one sentiment actuated the officers on duty, from the President of the Department, Mr. Henry Smith, and his colleagues of the Board of Commissioners, and Superintendent Kelso and his subordinate officers, and that was to do their whole duty in the most prompt and energetic manner. The movements of the detachments were made with the greatest alacrity, and the officers of the National Guard who witnessed their operations in attacking the mob at different points unite in giving the highest praise for the courage and dash displayed in making attacks, as well as for the patient coolness manifested while exposed to the abusive epithets and dangerous assaults of the mob. Their valor was conspicuous and entitles them not only to the respect of their superiors, but to the confidence of the public at large. While New York possesses so brave and self-sacrificing a body of protectors she has little to fear from internal dissensions.

Very respectfully yours,
ALEXANDER SHALER,
Major General Commanding.

THE CORONER'S INQUISITION.

Investigation to Be Commenced Next Monday at Twenty-second Street and Seventh Avenue—The Jury.

Coroner Young has at last decided upon a time and place for holding the investigation into the circumstances attendant upon the riot which occurred in this city on last Wednesday week, with such fearfully disastrous results. The Coroner has secured the use of the Eighth District (civil) Court room, southwest corner of Twenty-second street and Seventh avenue, and there intends to commence his inquisition at ten o'clock next Monday morning. No witnesses except those who were present at the scene of the riot will be called to testify, and Coroner Young will continue the examination from day to day and reach a conclusion at the earliest possible moment. It is probable that in the investigation the Coroner will be aided by District Attorney Garvin or one of his assistants, although he feels fully competent to conduct the case alone. Great interest is felt in the result of the inquiry and doubtless a large crowd will be in attendance at the court-room. It is likely to last about ten days.

THE JURY.

In order that there may be no cavil or fault-finding about the jury to be sworn in the case, Coroner Young has determined to wait upon Mr. Douglas Taylor, Commissioner of Jurors, the legally constituted officer for such duty, and request him to empanel twelve good men and assume the entire responsibility of that part of the business.

DISMISSAL OF OFFICER LOGAN, OF THE TWENTY-SIXTH PRECINCT.

Patrolman Patrick Logan, of the Twenty-sixth precinct, was yesterday tried before President Smith and Commissioners Barr and Manierre for improper conduct and insubordination on the day of the riots.

The charge was preferred against him by Sergeant Carpenter, of the Sanitary squad, who testified that on the 12th inst. the complainant was under the command of Captain Hedden, of the Fifteenth precinct, in Broadway, and received orders to disperse a crowd of ruffians who had collected at Eleventh street. A fight ensued, and the police were obliged to use their clubs freely. Among the men who were ordered to charge the mob was Patrick Logan, who has been on the force for ten years. This man saying that he was an Irishman and a Roman Catholic, and felt that his conscience would not allow him to attack his fellow countrymen. He subsequently interfered with other officers, calling upon them to "deal gently" with the mob, and seized one officer who was endeavoring to disperse the rioters. Logan called several witnesses to prove that unnecessary violence was used, but the evidence failed to establish the fact.

REFUSED TO ATTACK THE RIOTERS,

Other witnesses testified that the mob was a dangerous one and fought desperately, and testified that the conduct of Logan was calculated to

INJURE THE DISCIPLINE OF THE FORCE.

Logan, in his own defence, again urged that unnecessary violence was resorted to, and finally spoke in a disrespectful manner to the Commissioners, saying that "he knew he would not have a fair trial because he was a Roman Catholic, adding that he had never known an instance where a Roman Catholic had not been unfairly treated, and that it was his holy religion that was assailed."

Commissioner Smith said that the Board might have been induced to take a lenient view of the case in view of the previous good conduct of the accused, but such a course was impossible after the expressions used by Logan and his charges of unfair conduct on the part of the Board. He must, therefore, be dismissed from the department.

ANOTHER INNOCENT VICTIM.

Charles A. Kattenbeck died at Mount Sinai Hospital on Thursday night. He was a notary public and resided at 80½ Attorney street. On the day of the riot he went to Thirtieth street and Eighth avenue to draw a deed for a gentleman and left about two o'clock to return home. Nearing Twenty-sixth street he saw the crowd on the avenue and turned up Twenty-sixth street to avoid them. He had proceeded but a short distance when the German regiment opened fire on the rowdies. Mr. Kattenbeck received three balls, one in each arm and one in the back.

THE CATHOLIC BISHOP OF COLUMBUS, OHIO, ON THE JULY RIOT.

The following is a card from the Catholic Bishop of Columbus, Ohio, published in the Ohio State Journal:—

The attempt of certain persons to make the Catholic Church responsible for the late New York riot is unfair and unjust. Those who were fired upon by the police and militia were on the spot in defiance of a strict command of their Archbishop, given in all the churches of the city the Sunday previous. The feud between the Orange and Ribbon factions, both made up of a faction of the lower orders of the Irish people, is now centuries old. Religion was made the pretext, but both parties practically renounced religion in their acts. The New York riot was simply a continuation of that strife. To make the Catholic Church responsible for what it forbids, abhors and condemns is unfair and unjust. The Rev. [illegible], in [illegible] chapel, last evening, according to [illegible], was guilty of this injustice.

"An outlet," said he, "always tells the secret of the family," and in this riotous, untutored, ungoverned portion of the Catholic Church we see the tumultuous upheaving, the gathering power that shall shake, unless it is broken, this country from centre to circumference. The principle of toleration is a fundamental principle of this country; destroy it, and all is lost. The tendency of the whole Catholic Church, in its teachings, is toward intolerance."

The injustice of this consists in assuming that "the untutored, ungoverned portion of the Catholic Church" are [illegible] and the "ungoverned" the [illegible]. The fact is, these men, when they disobeyed the command given them from the altar, ceased to be children of the Church, and the scene they revealed was the old, old story of human wrath, known since the time of Cain.

To connect acts of violence like this with the doctrine of infallibility is simply absurd.

Toleration, to be wholesome, need not be founded on a conviction that there is no religious truth, but rather on the belief that God alone is master and judge of men. This was what actuated the Catholics of Maryland, who were the first to organize religious toleration in America. This is the principle on which the Catholics of this country who are true to their faith propose to live in peace with their non-Catholic countrymen. They do not think of saying "we may be wrong in our belief, therefore let our neighbor alone," but, "we know our faith is true, therefore we know that we are bound to love our neighbors, no matter of what creed or color, as we love ourselves, and recognize in him the right we claim for ourselves, of having God alone for master and judge."

We Catholics, Mr. Editor, desire to be citizens of a free republic. We want nothing for ourselves but what we will do our best to maintain for others. It would be a pleasure for us to see Jesus Christ crucified honored and loved by all our countrymen, but no pleasure to see any one calling himself a Catholic for fashion's sake or on compulsion. The clergy have no temporal or political design. Their expectations are on the period that shall follow the judgment, whence they can suffer patiently, though with regret, the obloquy and unjust hate excited against them by misrepresentations of such scandals as the New York riot.

A "HEAVY" CLUB.

Three or four representatives of the Twentieth Ward Workingmen's Club met last night at Milleman's Hall, corner of Seventh avenue and Twenty-sixth street. The officers of the society were the only members present, and presented to the reporters resolutions condemnatory of the course pursued by Governor Hoffman during "the late unpleasantness."

RIOTERS IN COURT.

The Assault on the Two Officers of the Seventy-first Regiment—Application to Reduce the Bail of the Assailants.

John Mahony, the alleged rioter, was brought before Justice Cardozo, of the Supreme Court, yesterday, upon a writ of habeas corpus sued out by William F. Kintzing, his counsel. Mahony, it will be remembered, was arrested last Sunday for having made an assault with a sword cane upon Captain Charles N. Swift and Lieutenant Emilio Cardozo, two officers of the Seventy-first regiment, who were walking along Thirty-ninth street, and near Third avenue. They were both in uniform at the time, returning from the funeral of Sergeant Wyatt and private Page, of the Ninth regiment, and on their way home. Lieutenant Cardozo drew his revolver and held the crowd, of which Mahony was the leader, at bay until rescued. Mahony was arrested and committed for trial by Justice Coulter in default of $3,000 bail. At the time of his arrest upon this charge it was supposed from the character of the weapon used by him that he was the man who stabbed private Burns, of the Ninth regiment, upon the day of the riots; but upon his being taken to the bedside of the soldier he failed to identify him.

Mr. Kintzing, in behalf of Mahony, insisted that the amount of bail fixed by the magistrate was excessive, taking into consideration the character of the offence and the condition of the prisoner, who was but a poor working man. If he was guilty of an offence it was, he urged, but a simple assault. The bail ought to be $500 instead of $3,000. The prisoner was a man of most excellent character, instead of being a ruffian and rioter as characterized in some of our leading journals. He was to be found on the 12th day of July in the ranks of the Sixty-ninth regiment, with his musket, ready to support the authorities in vindicating the laws. The amount of bail fixed by the magistrate was simply disgraceful.

Assistant District Attorney Sullivan said that the question as to the reduction of bail was a matter purely within the discretion of the Court. From what counsel said it would seem that the bail was somewhat excessive. As to the character of the offence, that was a matter to be hereafter determined.

Judge Cardozo said that the complainant was of the same name as himself, but he was no connection or relation of his, and he had never heard of him before.

Mr. Kintzing observed that it was the complainant's good fortune to have so good a name.

The Judge remarked smilingly that this might be the prisoner's misfortune, and then added that he would take the papers.

CROPS ON LONG ISLAND.—From all parts of Long Island comes good news concerning the crops, which, it is said, have never in years presented such a promising aspect as at present. GREENVILLE COURT HOUSE, Va., July 21, 1871.

Nearly four years ago a radical orator named Connolly, of the carpet-bag species, proclaimed to a large assemblage of negroes in the African church at Richmond that it was now their time to "hold high carnival," intimating that the military authorities were specially sent here to punish the whites and protect the negroes, and that the latter might with impunity commit any and all sorts of outrages on the whites in retaliation for the wrongs and oppressions of that race upon the negroes during a bondage of two hundred years. Happily for the people of Virginia the defeat of the policy which the reconstruction acts were meant to secure saved them from that lawlessness and violence which prevailed to such an alarming extent in the States where the Congressional programme was triumphant. But they did not escape altogether. During the years of 1868 and 1869 among the horde of Northern adventurers that arrived in Virginia was one Dr. Lewis, who took up his abode in Brunswick county, organized a Union League and became teacher of the negro youth. Following the inspiration and teachings of his fellow carpet-bagger Connolly, the Richmond orator, he armed his League and at its head marched the streets of Lawrenceville, the county seat of Brunswick, with flaunting banners, yelling hideously, making hostile demonstrations and frequently perpetrating the most flagrant outrages. This was carried to such a fearful extent that the people became alarmed for the peace and safety of the community, and Lewis was arrested, tried and found guilty of

and was sentenced to the Penitentiary for five years. In accordance with his sentence he was lodged in that institution, but in those days of military rule, when General Canby commanded District No. 1, the arrest and punishment of a "loyal" man was taken as an evidence of the still smouldering rebellious spirit in the South; and Governor Wells then ruling here by virtue of military authority, as is the custom with all radical Governors, pardoned Lewis a month after he was imprisoned. Upon representing to General Canby that he was persecuted by the rebels on account of his loyalty and devotion to the Union, that military autocrat granted Lewis certain documents exempting him from arrest by civil process. Triumphant, exulting and defiant he returned to Brunswick county, where he again resumed the leadership of the negro leagues, and renewed his hostile operations until a perfect was inaugurated in the county. In this course he was [illegible] seconded by a man named Thomas McGiffin, an ex-Federal soldier, recently from North Carolina and a native of the State of Maine. By concentrating, arranging and teaching, the negroes became [illegible] with excitement, and they committed excesses and outrages daily, until lawlessness reigned supreme in the county. Under these circumstances an effort was made by the civil authorities to maintain law and order and protect the people from outrage and violence. Accordingly a peace warrant was issued for the arrest of Lewis, but getting wind of it he continued to elude the officers in whose hands it was placed for a considerable period. [illegible] Drummond, the officer who had the warrant, receiving information of the whereabouts of Lewis, summoned a posse of eleven men, himself making the twelfth, and with this force he proceeded on the Lawrenceville road [illegible] to effect the capture of Lewis. It was not long afterwards when the posse met both Lewis and McGiffin

REIGN OF TERROR

MOUNTED AND ARMED

cap-a-pie. The two parties halted at about twelve paces and eyed each other intently. Lewis had his rifle cocked in his hand and McGiffin had a navy revolver similarly prepared. Constable Drummond then said:—

"We have a warrant for your arrest, Dr. Lewis."

LEWIS—I have protection papers from General Canby exempting me from arrest by civil process. Let me see your warrant.

Upon this one of the constable's party took the warrant in his hands and called out, "I will read it for you."

MCGIFFIN—If you come here I will shoot your damn guts out. No surrender is my motto. Surrender ain't my name.

Hostilities being now openly declared, Lewis and McGiffin cautiously fell back some thirty or forty paces, confronting the constable's posse as they did so. The posse then resolutely advanced the same distance, all of them being on foot except two.

DRUMMOND (with his gun at a ready)—I command you to surrender in the name of the State.

Lewis then raised his rifle to his shoulder, McGiffin crying out, "Shoot him! Shoot him! Kill him!"

A member of the posse then levelled his gun at Lewis, when Drummond exclaimed, "Hold! Let us have no bloodshed."

FELL DEAD IN HIS TRACKS,

shot through the heart. Lewis and McGiffin then wheeled their horses round and dashed down the road at a breakneck speed, which they did not slacken until they reached their homes by another route. Hastily collecting together what articles they needed, and all the money they had, these two branded murderers fled the State. A few hours' ride brought them into North Carolina, but traversing that entire State without making many long stoppages, they reached South Carolina and settled at length in the remote and unfrequented district or county of Horry. Here they resumed their respective occupations of farm hand and school teacher, remaining undisturbed nearly twelve months, when at last the bloodhounds of justice came upon their trail. After a desperate running fight of over eight miles, in which he received a wound in the right breast,

M'GIFFIN WAS ARRESTED

and brought to Richmond by Detective Knox, of that city. Lewis was arrested about the same time, and both were lodged in the City Prison of Richmond for safe keeping. From the time of his arrest and imprisonment Lewis became the victim of remorse. His crimes preyed heavily on his mind, sleep forsook him, he stopped talking to the jail officials, left his meals untouched, walked his cell all night, muttering incoherently—at last becoming a raving maniac. Both were brought up for trial at the April term of the Court of this county, where they had removed their trial. Owing to Lewis' idiotic condition the jury could not agree upon a verdict, and his trial was postponed until next October. McGiffin elected to be

TRIED THEN AND THERE,

though he could have had it deferred until after the trial of Lewis, who was the principal in the crime. Evidence, substantially as above narrated, was elicited on the trial, which occupied four days. At its close the jury remained absent but a short time, returning with a verdict of guilty, according to the indictment, which made McGiffin a principal as well as Lewis, though some argue he was only an accessory, and should have been so tried. Sentence of death was then passed and the criminal was returned to Richmond for safe keeping. The condemned man,

THOMAS M'GIFFIN,

was a native of Augusta county, State of Maine. His father and mother both died while he was young, and as a consequence he grew up in ignorance and vice. He was about five feet ten inches in height, of slender build, twenty-four years of age, sallow complexion, dark hair, hazel eyes, with side whiskers, light mustache and goatee, was ordinarily intelligent, and his features were rather pleasing than otherwise. He enlisted in the 16th New York infantry, and served in several campaigns in this State; and when his term of service expired he joined the navy, and was present at the bombardment of Fort Fisher by Admiral Porter's fleet. At the termination of hostilities he came to Richmond, where he remained but a short time, leading a roving sort of life until he settled at Porter's gold mine, in Franklin county, N. C. Here he wooed and won a damsel of the North State, seven years his senior, who accompanied him to Brunswick county, in this State, where they were married. His wife is now at her home in North Carolina, whence she wrote him that she never expected to see him again in this world. A boy, now four years old, was the result of this marriage. While he was yet at Richmond I visited McGiffin in the City Prison and had the following

MCGIFFIN—Yes, sir, I am. I had no hand in the killing of Drummond, not that I say he ought not to have been killed; he went than he would have gone. I was along with Lewis that day but I took no part in it.

REPORTER—Did you not call out to Lewis to shoot him?

MCGIFFIN—No, I did not; and the witness that swore to that knew he was perjuring himself. Some of the witnesses swore they followed us up, but the whole posse

RAN LIKE COWARDS

when Lewis fired and Drummond fell.

REPORTER—Have you applied for a respite to the Governor?

MCGIFFIN—Yes, sir; my lawyer applied for a respite until Lewis could be tried, but the Governor refused to grant it.

REPORTER—Well, the Governor is a Northern man; he would be likely to do the best he could for you?

MCGIFFIN—Yes; but I reckon he is like the balance of the politicians. He knows which side his bread is buttered, and he would not go against the wishes of the Brunswick people, who would rather fast a week and go in sackcloth and ashes than that I should escape the gallows.

REPORTER—What could you hope for in case of a respite?

MCGIFFIN—Lewis' trial would clear me. It could then be proved that Drummond came that day prepared to kill me. Lewis had also a witness to prove that Drummond, who was once laid in wait for him (Lewis) to kill him, but his coward's heart failed him and he could not fire the shot.

REPORTER—Are you prepared to die?

MCGIFFIN—I hope I am in a way; but I would like to have a short while longer to serve my God. If Drummond had shot me that day, as he fully intended to, I should have went straight to hell; but now I have repented and made my peace with my Maker. (He had embraced the Catholic faith, was constantly visited by a priest and wore a crucifix around his neck.)

REPORTER—Have you any hope of being saved from the gallows?

MCGIFFIN—Yes; while there is life there is hope, and I possess the means of ending my life right here if I wished. It's a terrible means of death, the gallows.

REPORTER—You cannot possibly contemplate suicide?

MCGIFFIN—Well, no, not exactly. They say that is the unpardonable sin. I would prefer death in any shape to remaining manacled here in this horrible hot den.

This ended my talk with McGiffin and I took my leave. A few evenings since he cut one of his manacles in two with some sharp instrument, but every effort to discover it in his cell proved fruitless, and up to the last there were strong apprehensions that he would put an end to his own life.

Though there is no doubt that McGiffin did seriously contemplate suicide to avoid the terrors of the scaffold, yet he failed to do it, either from a lack of sufficient resolution or from a want of the means. During his stay in the Richmond jail he was heavily manacled and closely watched, and this [illegible] of self-destruction. Sheriff Bidwell, of this county, arrived in Richmond yesterday, accompanied by a guard, to conduct McGiffin here. The condemned man was provided with a suit of new clothes, consisting of a blue cloth coat, dark cassimere pants, black slouch hat, neat calico shirt and black necktie, in which he made quite a respectable appearance. His manacles remained on him and his arms were bound with cords at the elbows around the waist. A carriage conveyed himself and guards from the jail to the depot, where he took the cars almost unobserved and began

THE RIDE TO DEATH.

As soon as it became known that a condemned felon, on his way to the scaffold, was on the train the passengers flocked into the forward car to see him, and it soon was packed. McGiffin spoke cheerfully and resignedly of his fast approaching doom and held quite a spirited discussion with the jailer and his guards on the subject of eternal punishment beyond the grave, in which he took, as his position, the Catholic doctrine that all sinners must first be cleansed in purgatory, but eventually reach the kingdom of heaven. The passengers listened to this discussion with the most absorbed interest, and before long it became developed that McGiffin had another plan of evading the gallows besides that of committing suicide. It was observed by the watchful Sheriff that while McGiffin was most earnest and animated, completely engaging the attention of his listeners, that he cast furtive glances at the window of the car and was ready at any moment to slip his handcuffs, for his hands were quite small. He had intended to

JUMP FROM THE CARS

as the train passed over the James River bridge and either be shot or killed in the attempt, and thus save himself the ignominy of a gallows death; but Sheriff Bidwell detected his man's moves and quickly warned him to desist, as his efforts would be useless. After this he abandoned all hope of escape and submitted with a good grace to what seemed inevitable. At all the intermediate stations between this point and Richmond large numbers of people were assembled to obtain a passing glimpse of the man "going to be hanged." Upon the arrival of the train the condemned man was conveyed in a wagon from the depot at Belfield to the jail here. Now, the murder of Drummond occurred in Brunswick, where feeling against the criminals ran high, and hence they elected to be tried in this the adjoining county, and although McGiffin was sentenced and executed here I found a strong and a general belief that the punishment was too severe and terrible for the part he had taken in the crime. This was not the case, however, among the people who came from Brunswick to witness the execution. They were unanimous in the expression of the justice of his sentence, and seemed rather to exult over than regret the terrible punishment. On the east side of the town, just beyond an old Confederate fortification, which was built to protect the railroad bridge over the Meherrin River, the scaffold was erected on a slight prominence in an old field, which made it conspicuous. It was a large, substantial structure, having a platform about ten feet high, with a drop in the centre, which was surmounted by a gallows, eight feet above the platform, making

POPULAR SYMPATHY IN HIS FAVOR

which was viewed with intense interest by crowds of both whites and negroes during the morning. Owing to apprehensions that McGiffin might do himself violence, some of the guards remained in his cell the entire night. He prayed and conversed on spiritual matters alternately, and read a small Testament which he had by the light of a candle, sleeping but little, and then dreaming and speaking in his sleep. Father Janssen, a Catholic priest, arrived by the morning train at eight o'clock, and soon after went to the cell of the condemned man and engaged in the solemn services of that Church before death. While the clergyman was reading the services McGiffin became overpowered by weariness, and, placing his hand on the priest's shoulder, he begged him to continue reading, but said, "I can't keep awake; I must sleep." He then stretched his head upon his pallet and said, "Wake me up in half an hour, at eleven o'clock; I will then be refreshed." In a few seconds he was sound asleep and seemed to enjoy a last repose—calm and tranquil and not at all suggestive of a murderer's slumbers. At the hour of eleven he was awakened, and were resumed, continuing until the hour of noon. By that time the town was thronged with vehicles of every description, and a crowd that numbered over two thousand, and composed of all ages and sexes of both races, the females of the negro race predominating. In this assemblage the demoralizing effect of public executions was apparent in the eager, craving and impatient manner in which the crowd awaited the scaffold's tragedy. They moved restlessly about the jail and roamed between the gallows and that building in continuous stream, watching and waiting anxiously for the terrible event. Besides being demoralizing, too, public executions entail a loss to the communities in which they take place that sometimes is serious and irreparable. The labor of over one thousand persons, just now in the harvest season, was thrown away to-day to gratify a depraved and morbid curiosity in witnessing the expiring agonies of a condemned fellow creature.

THE MARCH TO THE SCAFFOLD.

About twelve M. the Sheriff entered the cell of the condemned man and pinioned him by the arms. He was then conducted without the jail, leaning upon the arms of two assistants. A procession was formed, with the Sheriff at its head, which, followed by a large concourse of people, moved slowly and solemnly toward the scaffold, and preceded by a rabble, running and scampering as if for life and death to obtain eligible places near the place of execution. The clergyman, Sheriff and Mr. Odwyer, a jailer from Richmond, accompanied McGiffin to the platform, the steps to which he ascended firmly, though assisted. He was ghastly pale, but composed. The clergyman and prisoner then knelt down, the former offering a fervent and feeling prayer, after which McGiffin stood up, a smile upon his countenance, and he took a survey of the crowd. An assistant then pinioned his hands behind his back and his ankles. During this operation he spoke to two or three persons whom he recognized, and then addressed the crowd as follows, in a clear and steady voice:—

THE DOOMED MAN'S DYING WORDS.

"I hope this will be a solemn warning to you all; yes, a warning to beware of whiskey and bad company. You all seem sad and look sadder than I feel, and if you were in my place you would not feel sad either. I know I am going to heaven, to leave this world of trouble and trials, and I shall go from purgatory to heaven, where there is nothing but joy and bliss. My only regret at leaving this world is on account of my little boy, whom I leave behind me. I ask you all to pray for him, and I will pray for every one of you, from the cradle up. As soon as my breath leaves my body I will see you all as I see you, every one of you, and I will pray for your forgiveness. I believe this is all I have to say. Goodby, ladies and gentlemen."

THE LAST ACT IN THE TRAGEDY.

In referring to the crime he reiterated what is contained in the interview above. At the conclusion of the speech the Sheriff, priest and deputies took a last farewell, and soon after the noose was placed over the criminal's head and tightened. The black cap was then drawn over the features, and at the same instant it began to rain. All those remaining on the platform then stepped clear of the drop; the Sheriff gave a signal; the heavy drop swung back, and

THE ROPE SNAPPED LIKE A THREAD,

McGiffin falling to the ground with a force that was terrible, the concussion being distinctly heard through the crowd, which stood an instant transfixed with horror. Then, with awe-stricken faces, large numbers turned and went away to shut out the repetition that might follow of this horrible scene. Four men lifted the pinioned, half strangled criminal and carried him back, placing him in an erect position again on the drop. He coolly requested the Sheriff to loosen the noose [illegible] if the rope broke again. The cap was still over his face, the [illegible] noose and broken rope still dangling around his neck and his clothes covered with the earth from which he had been taken a hideous sight.

A SICKENING SIGHT.

The same rope was tied where it broke, making the fall about one foot shorter, and again, at twenty-five minutes past twelve P. M., the drop fell. The crowd mostly turned their heads as the executioner withdrew the bolt, but looked round rapidly to see if the criminal was suspended. This time the tragic act was a success. The body of McGiffin swung in the air, the fall having been about five feet. The noose was not properly adjusted, and respiration continued some eight minutes, during which there were convulsive movements of the lower limbs. In twelve minutes pulsation had ceased, and after hanging twenty-five he was declared extinct and the body was cut down, placed in a coffin and

BURIED NEAR THE SCAFFOLD.

The neck had not been broken; but, guilty or innocent, the soul of McGiffin was in eternity.

THE COURTS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

Judge Blatchford, after having disposed of all the motions and business set down for hearing, has adjourned the court until the 8th of August. Meantime His Honor will have enough to do in writing up decisions on argued cases; for instance, in the Erie litigation, his opinion upon which may be looked for on or about the 25th or 26th of the present month. The other departments of the court—Bankruptcy and the United States Commissioners' offices—are open as usual. There is "no let up" in these, in which the officials are pretty well worked, even during this warm weather.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE.

Charge of Passing a Counterfeit Bill.
Before Commissioner Shields.

The United States vs. Antonio Grandelli.—The defendant had been charged with passing a $20 counterfeit bill. After having taken all the testimony the Commissioner discharged Grandelli, there being nothing in the testimony to support the accusation.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—SPECIAL TERM.

Before Judge Robinson.

Rufus Hatch vs. Fay H. Purdy.—This was a motion to discharge an order of arrest issued against defendant Purdy at the instance of plaintiff in an action to recover on a protested check for $500. The affidavit on which the order of arrest was issued set forth that defendant gave his check, [illegible] for $500 on [illegible] between the same parties for $1,000 and had been returned to plaintiff protested almost immediately after the receipt of the $500 check, that, therefore, plaintiff sent his bookkeeper to Tarrytown to present the $500 check for payment, who there received the information that defendant had deposited $500 in the bank a short time before and had almost immediately drawn it out again, and that there were then no funds to his credit in the bank. On the motion to vacate the order of arrest it was shown by affidavits on behalf of defendant that he gave the check in good faith; that it was given, not for cash, but to cover margins on gold transactions; that though he had no money in the bank to meet the check at the time he gave it, yet he kept his accounts there, and intended to have money there on deposit in time to meet it if it had reached the bank through the ordinary course of collection through the banks, instead of being sent directly for payment; that he was taken sick just about the time the check was given, and continued so for about two weeks, thus interfering with his business; that since giving the check deposits had been made by him in the same bank amounting to over $3,800 and if it had been so presented it would have been paid. In reference to this state of facts, affidavits were read on behalf of plaintiff to the effect that defendant had got a $25 check cashed by another party, and that it was protested for nonpayment; that he had the reputation at some watering places of giving drafts which were also protested, and that on one occasion as a member of Christ church (Episcopal) he had got control of funds, the result of a lecture by Cordova, for missionary purposes, and had neglected to pay the amount over. The Judge held that this church missionary business was hardly appropriate to the motion except as bearing on the question of fraudulent intent in issuing this check. It was contended on behalf of the defendant that it was a very common if not a universal custom among merchants to issue checks without having the funds on deposit to meet them, expecting to make the account good before the check had returned through the ordinary channels of bank collection, and that if defendant could be held under arrest in this transaction then almost every merchant and business man in the city was liable to a similar fate at some time in his business experience.

Judge Robinson vacated the order of arrest on condition that defendant stipulate not to bring an action for false imprisonment.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Judge Cardozo.

Maria Gallinger vs. Simon Gallinger.—In this case, the full particulars of which were published yesterday, a motion, it will be remembered, was made to set aside the referee's report, the action being brought for divorce, as not allowing sufficient alimony, the amount allowed being $5 a week. The Judge rendered a decision yesterday upon the motion ordering the report to be set aside. He made this decision on the ground that there was no reason why the referee should have fixed the value of the defendant's property at $40,000 in the face of a bona fide offer of $62,000; that the debts sworn to by the defendant were to a great extent very suspicious; that, except his wife, whom the decree settles he has foully ill-treated, he has no one but a son, aged nineteen, dependent upon him, and that, under the circumstances, it is little enough to require him to pay alimony at the rate of $1,200 a year.

Decisions.

Lawrence et al. vs Taylor.—Memoranda for counsel.

Kinsman vs. Kinsman.—Motion denied.

In the Matter of the Application of Henry A. Kaly.—Motion granted.

Louis B. Cohen vs. Florence Wilkowski.—Order vacated without costs.

Same vs. Same.—Motion granted on payment of $10 costs to defendant, who has appeared.

Rodman vs. Jones.—Order settled.

THE RIVERSIDE PARK QUESTION.

Supplemental Report of the Commissioners—Judge Barnard Confirms It—Appeals Threatened.

The Riverside Park matter came up again yesterday before Judge Barnard, of the Supreme Court. As on the previous occasion, when the subject was before the Court, there was a large attendance of parties interested and nearly every one represented by separate counsel. It will be remembered that when the report of the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment was first presented for confirmation various objections were made to the same, and that the Judge overruled them all, except one, in which it was shown that no compensation had been given for the portions of the Bloomingdale road and the old Twelfth avenue included in the park, and he accordingly fixed the additional compensation to be allowed certain owners for the same, and sent the report back to the Commissioners to be altered accordingly. When the report was again to be presented the Commissioners had not been able to meet, but several land owners on closed or newly opened streets claimed that they were in the exact position of the owners on the old Twelfth avenue and should be allowed similar awards. The Court refused to alter its order unless with the consent of the Corporation Counsel. Thus the case stood at the reconvening of the Court yesterday for further hearing in the matter.

Mr. O'Gorman, Corporation Counsel, presented a supplemental or amended report, drawn in conformity with the order of the Court and duly signed by the Commissioners.

Mr. Devlin said that so far as Mr. Karrigan, one of his clients, was concerned, he having received a fair award he had nothing to say, but he would ask leave to file a list of the others for whom he appeared, so they might be included in case of appeal.

Ex-Judge Strong, on behalf of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, said that points had been presented to the Court on their behalf which, as they had not been noticed by His Honor in his opinion, had not, perhaps, come under his notice. He insisted that the railroad company had not received any benefit, and that it was the duty of the Court to see that it received its just rights.

Judge Barnard said that a large number of briefs, some of them very voluminous, had been given to him, embracing some one hundred or more points, and that he had examined them, but had noticed only those two on which he thought the Commissioners had erred. The rest he overruled.

Counsel for owners on Seventy-second and Seventy-third streets asked a correction, as being within the privilege of the Judge's order.

Judge Barnard said that it was too late, unless the Corporation Counsel would consent.

Mr. O'Gorman stated that he supposed he had no discretion in the matter. He could not go beyond the order of the Court; with this order the amended report concurred. It contained no more and no less.

The Judge signed the order confirming the report, after which he directed an adjournment of the Court sine die.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

WALL STREET,
FRIDAY, July 21—6 P. M.

On 'Change to-day wheat was heavy and dull. The cotton market was more active at unchanged quotations.

MONEY TWO TO THREE PER CENT.

The money market was easy at two to three per cent.

Paper was dull and more difficult of sale. Buyers are indisposed to take anything having longer than sixty days to run. For such short paper the demand is good at 5½ a 6½ per cent. Paper of longer date is hardly saleable below 6 per cent, and is quoted at 6 a 7 per cent.

Foreign exchange was nominally unchanged on the basis of 110⅝ a 110¾ for bankers' sixty-day sterling, and 11[illegible] a 110¾ for sight bills, but there was a pressure to sell borrowed bills, and sales out of second hand were made at ¼ a ⅛ below the asking rates.

GOLD WEAK—112¼ A 112.

The gold market was dull and weak, and declined from 112⅜ to 112 on the sales of sterling bills above referred to, and also in consequence of the small engagements of specie for export to-morrow, which is a favorite day usually with remitters. The market eventually rebounded to 112¼, which was bid at the close. The course of the market is shown in the table:—

10 A. M.	112¼	2 P. M.	112⅛
11 A. M.	112⅛	2:42 P. M.	112
11:[illegible] A. M.	112⅛	3 P. M.	112⅛
12 M.	112⅛	4 P. M.	112⅛
1 P. M.	112⅛	5:30 P. M.	112⅛ a 112¼

In the gold loan market the sales were 1 per cent for carrying and flat for borrowing. The operations of the Gold Exchange Bank were as follows:—

Gold cleared	$21,254,000
Gold balances	1,[illegible],657
Currency balances	1,377,515

The engagements of specie for Saturday's steamers foot up $525,000.

GOVERNMENTS STEADY.

The government list opened steady, but fell off a fraction all around at the noon board. Subsequently the market regained the morning's figures, and closed steady, the lower quotation of gold being offset by the fact that the coupons now represent more or less accrued interest. The following were the closing street prices:—United States currency sixes, 114¼ a 114½; do., 1881, registered, 115⅜ a 115¾; do. do., coupon, 115⅝ a 115⅞; do. five-twenties, registered, May and November, 113⅛ a 113⅜; do. do., 1862, coupon, do., 114¼ a 114⅜; do. do., 1864, do. do., 112⅝ a 112⅞; do. do., 1865, do. do., 112⅞ a 114; do. do., registered, January and July, 112⅝ a 113; do. do., 1865, coupon, do., 112⅝ a 112⅞; do. do., 1867, do. do., 112⅞ a 113⅛; do. do., 1868, do. do., 113 a 113⅜; do. ten-forties, registered, 112⅛ a 112⅜; do. do., coupon, [illegible]

THE NEW LOAN.

There were no subscriptions to the new loan to-day.

In view of the fact that the London agent of the Associated Press recently telegraphed the brilliant success of Mr. Boutwell's new loan in Europe the following extract from a Washington despatch will be read with interest:—

Assistant Secretary Richardson's letter to Secretary Boutwell contains nothing intimating that he has been or will be successful in negotiating one dollar of the loan.

SOUTHERN SECURITIES DULL.

The Southern list was dull. The following were the closing street prices for the several State and corporate bonds, including the new Virginia consols and "deferred" bonds:—Tennessee, ex coupon, 72⅛ a 72½; do. new, 72 a 72½; Virginia, ex coupon, 68 a 65½; do. new, 73 a 74; do. registered stock, old, 55 a 55½; do. consols, 70 a 71; do. deferred, 25 a 26; Georgia sixes, 80 a 83; do. sevens, 94 a 95; North Carolina, ex coupon, 44½ a 45; do. funding, 1866, 33 a 35; do. do., 1868, 20 a 25; do. new, 25½ a 27; do. special tax, 19½ a 20; Missouri sixes, 95 a 95½; do. STOCKS LOWER AND STEADY.

The stock market was feverish throughout the forenoon, with a rally in Northwestern to 67, but became heavy in the afternoon, and after submitting to a further decline became steady and very dull. The chief feature was a tumble in Hannibal and St. Joseph, which dropped from 79 to 74. Eight thousand shares of Western Union which had been held on a "put" were delivered, occasioning a decline to 56¾.

HIGHEST AND LOWEST PRICES.

TOMBS POLICE COURT.

Wedded Entanglements—One Wife Too Many—A Case of Cognac—Pocket-Picking—Terrible Outrage on a Married Woman—"Red Bottle" Revenge.

Before Judge Hogan.

Mr. David George Hodgens has just got himself into an ugly difficulty by his predilection for plurality in wives. David is a young man, well dressed and tolerably good looking. On the 10th of October, 1865, he married Louise Elizabeth, his wife, in this city, and they lived happily up to the fourth week in June last, when David got into a wandering spirit and left his wife at their residence on Staten Island to join himself to Margaret Kane. On the 10th of June, 1871, he married Miss Kane, at the Allen street Methodist Episcopal church, knowing his wife was living. At the time of his arrest, when David was questioned about the little affair, he manfully acknowledged it. His wife has instituted against him, but that only makes his case the better, as it is alleged he has avowed his intention, as soon as the divorce has been obtained, to remarry Margaret. He was locked up in default of $2,000 bail.

As Detectives Heidelberg and Tilman were walking down town yesterday morning they noticed three sneak thieves going along Park row, one of whom carried a case of brandy on his shoulder. The detectives gave chase, but two of the thieves got off; they captured the third one and the brandy, which is now lying at the Central Office waiting for an owner. The sneak was caught at the corner of Beekman street and Park row. The brandy is marked "E. Hines & Co."

John Tierney, a simple youth who hangs out at 152 Cherry street, took a walk up the Sixth avenue on the night before last. John saw or imagined he perceived something unusual in one of the heavenly bodies, and looking around for some one to whom he could express his admiration of the phenomenon he had discovered, found Sarah Wilson at his elbow. The gentle Sarah looked and admired and went into ecstasies over the rising comet (John thought he had discovered a comet), while she put her hand into his pocket and picked out $44. John was so delighted with the enthusiasm of the lovely Sarah for the heavenly bodies that he asked her to take a stroll, and they rambled along the streets until they reached the young Sarah's home in Cherry street; and John was chagrined to find that Sarah's "ma" was chiding her for keeping such late hours; but Johnny was still more surprised to find, when he was alone that his coin was gone. He questioned one of the civic heroes upon the subject, and the conversation ended in Sarah's arrest and final commitment in default of $2,000.

A woman, named Ellen Reed, who sells mint in the drinking saloons, went into one of these places, on the southeast corner of West and Liberty streets. While she was there an unknown man requested her to drink something. She took a glass of sarsaparilla and left the place. Shortly after this man met her at the door of an office at 146 Liberty street, and he with two others grossly abused and ill-treated her. Mrs. Reed is a married woman and the mother of six children, three of whom are now living. The office at 146 Liberty street is kept by Frank McCormack, Jack Conway and Michael Keegan. When the poor woman came into Court yesterday morning to make a complaint she was approached by a man named James McFlynn, who offered her $50 to leave the place and say no more about the outrage. Mrs. Reed refused to do so and told the whole to Judge Hogan, who instantly ordered the arrest of McFlynn. McCormack is the only one of the three men who has yet been arrested.

An examination has been held in the case of Arnold and Leavens, for obtaining money on land they pretended to own in Suffolk county, Long Island. Mr. Rogers, of the firm of Rogers & Quin, was witness in the case, and said these two men had come to him some time since and asked him to procure them a loan of $2,500 on real estate they had on Long Island. Mr. Rogers went to Mr. McElroy, of Nassau street, whom he knew had money to lend, and proposed the matter to him. The affair was finally settled and Mr. McElroy lent the money at seven per cent interest, for the accommodation [illegible]. The loan was paid over to Arnold and Leavens by Mr. Rogers, and it has since turned out that neither of them had any claim whatever to the property they mortgaged for this money. Arnold was remanded for further examination, but Leavens has not yet been arrested.

Another case of attempting to meddle with a complainant and buy her off happened towards the close of the Court. A Mrs. Margaret Ann Abbott, of 23 Mulberry street, had an altercation with her neighbor, Mrs. Sophia Ferrom, and Mrs. Sophia, to be revenged upon her lady friend, poured a lot of scalding water upon her head from one of the upper windows of the house.

The husband of Mrs. Ferrom endeavored to arrange the matter for $25, but it could not be done. Judge Hogan said to him when he was brought before him —"I will not allow any complainant to be interfered with in this Court while I am here. That, to me, is one of the greatest offences a man can be guilty of, and I do not allow it to go unpunished whenever it comes before me. You take advantage of the poverty of the complainant to tempt him with a bribe, and you are at the same time sheltering a lawbreaker and fostering crime. You likewise show designing and malicious people how they can trade upon the susceptibilities of respectable citizens, and point out a means by which they could extort money from them. I will not permit it to go on."

AQUATICS.

Three Boat Races on the Connecticut, at Ingleside.

The Single Scull Race Won by Ellis Ward.

The Harvard Freshmen Beat the Brown Crew.

The Amherst Agriculturists Carry Off the Prize Against the Harvards and the Browns.

ANOTHER OVERTHROW OF FAVORITES.

INGLESIDE, near Holyoke, Mass., July 21, 1871.

The closing features of the week's aquatic sports on the Connecticut River have been by far the most interesting and exciting, and as a natural consequence have attracted the largest crowd of visitors. Some allowed their interest in the various races of to-day to overcome their prejudices against the course and occupied what few available commanding positions there were during the progress of the several contests. The weather was propitious to every respect, and the river was as tranquil and peaceful as the most fastidious Harvard oarsman could wish. The only drawbacks, therefore, consisted of the ill chosen course, the lack of accommodation for those who wished to see the race, and the absence of properly conducted hotels in the immediate neighborhood, all of which inconveniences were borne by the multitude with a patience and good nature which were as amusing as they were marvellous.

FOUR OR FIVE THOUSAND PERSONS

THE RACES

were announced to begin at three o'clock, but it was considerably after four before they commenced. First for prizes of $75 and $25 a single scull con[illegible] Club, an organization to which the public is indebted for what few meritorious arrangements there have been during the week. The competitors were James Ten Eyck, of New York; Thomas C. Butler, of Boston; Pandeen Harrington, of Springfield; Michael Hurley, of Chicopee, and Ellis Ward, of Cold Spring, New York. The distance rowed was two miles—one mile down the river and back again—and the positions in starting were in the order named. The weight of the several ambitious scullers, according to their own statements, put Butler 139 pounds, Ten Eyck at 150 pounds, Harrington at 136 pounds, Ward at 145 pounds and Hurley at 170 pounds. When the word was given the bold Ten Eyck jumped away but the experienced Ward not only soon came up to him, but crept slowly and surely ahead, amid almost deafening cheers from the crowds along the shore. Then again, almost in a moment, Ward seemed to tire, and Ten Eyck came up even with him in a manner which could not fail to have been encouraging to his friends. In fact, he took the lead and left the renowned Ward second, and closely pursued by the energetic Butler, of Boston. The other two were about even, some half a dozen lengths behind. This was their position at the end of the first three-quarters of a mile, but before the other quarter was finished Ward took an advanced position, and was about a length ahead of Butler in turning the upper stake, and both followed sharply by Harrington and Ten Eyck, and Hurley loitering along leisurely under the chagrin of certain defeat.

AHEAD OF THE OTHERS,

ON THE LAST HALF MILE,

coming downward, kept ahead, and found that it was about all he could do to keep Butler and Harrington from passing him. He managed, however, to come in a couple of lengths ahead, making the two miles in 14m. 42s. Butler was second, 14m. 45½s., and Harrington was third, Ten Eyck fourth and Hurley fifth and last.

The next race was between the six-oared Freshmen crews of Harvard and Brown Universities, and was over the three-mile straightaway course which was rowed over by the Atalantas and Harvards on Wednesday. The prizes were half a dozen silver goblets and a set of colors for the winning crew, and were furnished by the Springfield Club.

THE CREWS

were as follows:—

Harvard—R. H. Dana, stroke; W. C. Sanger, H. L. Morse, C. E. Low, G. W. White, A. L. Bevans, bow.

Brown—H. Cornell, stroke; A. Gallup, W. Hurd, F. B. Case, J. L. Lincoln, P. A. Sayles, bow.

The contest was neither close nor exciting, and the result was not expected. The Harvards took the start almost from the word "go," and kept gaining slowly until the end of three miles, coming in about a dozen lengths ahead in 20m. 45s.

The next was

as it was playfully termed, and was likewise a three-mile straightaway over the same course, and also for prizes, consisting of silver goblets and a set of colors. The competing crews were from the Harvard and Brown Universities and the Massachusetts Agricultural College in Amherst. The Harvard crew was the same one which the New York Atalantas vanquished on Wednesday, and their competitors were as follows:—

Brown—C. C. Luther, stroke; W. E. Caldwell, A. M. Smith, W. H. Riebe, A. D. McClellan, E. H. Luther, bow.

Agricultural—F. C. Eldred, stroke; F. M. Somers, G. H. Allen, A. D. Norcross, George Leonard, bow.

This race was by all odds the most interesting and exciting of any during the day. It was generally anticipated that the Harvards would be victors, and that they would be followed in turn by the Browns and Agriculturals. Pools were sold at the rate of about 2 for the Agriculturals, and 10 for the Browns, against 20 and 25 for the Harvards. The idea that the representatives of the Agricultural institution would make any sort of a show was very remote, notwithstanding they had been under the training of the skilful Josh Ward.

WHEN THE WORD WAS GIVEN,

however, it was evident that their aquatic ability had been most lamentably underrated. They shot way ahead at the start, and with that long and powerful stroke for which the Wards are famous they carried disappointment at once to the hearts of the Browns and Harvards. Not for a single moment did they lose, but constantly gained all the while, their strokes averaging about forty-one per minute. For the first two miles the Harvards and Browns were about even, but finally the latter began to show signs of weakening, and the Cambridge crew got ahead of them and followed the Agriculturals, who came in not less than a dozen lengths ahead, amid the astonishment and cheers of the assembled thousands. Their time was 17m. 47s., which is next to the fastest three-mile time ever made, the time of the Harvards was 18m. [illegible]s., and of the Browns 18m. [illegible]s. The prizes were at once awarded to the several victors. Then the crowds departed for their respective homes, and to-night Ingleside is again happy and serene, which is a great deal more than can be said of some of the week's visitors. If ever there are any other aquatic sports in this vicinity they will probably take place on the old river course, opposite the city of Springfield.

Boston Regatta—Three Fine Races for Keel and Centre Board Boats.

BOSTON, July 21, 1871.

The city regatta, which was postponed from the Fourth of July on account of the fog, took place yesterday. In the first race five boats entered. Starlight won the first prize in 4h. 35m. 41s.; Jantie, the second prize, in 5h. 20m. 18s.

In the race for keel boats the Coming won the first prize in 3h. 57m. 46s., and Tartar the second in 4h. 4m. 50s.

In the second race for second class boats there were twenty-two entries. The first prize was won by the sloop Mist in 3h. 44m. and the second by the sloop Plaudette in 3h. 10m. 59s.

For keel boats and centre boards the sloop White Cap won the first prize in 2h. 2 m. 15s., and the sloop Clyde won the second prize in 2h. 31m. 26s.

For the third race there were forty entries. The sloop Ripple was the first to return, but the prizes were not awarded, as some matters of allowances are under consideration.

NEW HAVEN.

YALE LAW SCHOOL.—The faculty of Yale College have made the following appointments for the next term of the Yale Law School:—President Porter, lecturer upon mental discipline and methods of study; ex-President Woolsey, lecturer on international law; ex-Judge McCurdy, formerly of the Supreme Court bench, lecturer on the law of insurance; Professor Hadley, lecturer on commercial law; Professor Hoppin, lecturer on English composition and style; Professor Francis Bacon, lecturer on medical jurisprudence; Professor Bailey, lecturer on forensic elegance; ex-Lieutenant Governor Francis Wayland, lecturer on the law of bailments, the conflicts of law and civil jurisprudence.

HORSE DISEASE.—Within a week or two the West Haven Horse Railroad Company have had several of their horses attacked by the disease prevalent among the horses used by the railroad companies in New York. The progress of the disease has been stayed and those attacked are expected to recover. All the horses attacked were purchased last spring in New York. Those purchased in Canada have not been affected.

HORSE NOTES.

We learn from Buffalo that preparations are being made on a grand scale for the approaching annual summer meeting of the Buffalo Driving Park Association. The unprecedentedly large sum of $50,000 has been offered as premiums for the winning horses during the four days in August next, commencing on the 8th of that month. The splendid band of our Ninth regiment, Levy and all, have been engaged for the meeting.

Mr. Buck, of Buffalo, has matched his trotting gelding, Harry Harley, against the Pownal mare, for $1,000 a side, the race to come off the day after the close of the Buffalo meeting—the 12th of August.

Mr. Buck has also matched Harry Harley against Belle of Paterson, Mr. Buck laying $6,500 against $5,250; the race to come off on the 2d of October, at the Prospect Park Fair Grounds.

There is a trotting horse now in training at Columbus, Ohio, that is said to be a clipper. He will make his début on the trotting track at Buffalo, contending for some of the large purses to be given there in August. This horse is of a dun color, sixteen hands high. He is described by one who has seen him, to be finely proportioned for a trotter. He is very deep in the chest, has immense quarters and is very short from the hock to the heel. He has a very low, springy stride and a remarkably easy way of going. The name of the horse is Milton Day, and the person who gave us the information about the horse says that he has frequently seen him trot quarters in thirty-two seconds. Milton Day was originally a pacer and never was known to trot until last spring. He will be very likely to carry off one of the $10,000 premiums.

Mr. Henry J. Howard has a private stable in Neilson place that will compare favorably with any in New York. It has every modern improvement that can conduce to the comfort of its inmates. In its roomy stalls, which are airy and light, are six splendid animals, all bays, comprising a fine pair of sixteen hand carriage horses, a pair of well-shaped road mares, who are fast trotters, and Frank and Bid, a matching pair of geldings that can trot together close to 2:40.

Mr. J. Q. Laws recently purchased of Commissioner Garvey a fine gray gelding as a mate for his chestnut mare. They make a stylish cross team, and trot beautifully together.

Joseph Townley has a capital pair of trotters, a bay and a brown, fifteen and a half hands high, which he says can trot in 2:45.

Mr. Phyfe has sent his bay mare Lady Lockwood to Captain Rynders' farm, at Passaic. Aberdeen is there.

Mr. James W. Gillies has recently purchased a very pretty sorrel mare. She is very fast double, and makes Brown Dick put his best foot foremost when they are driven together.

[illegible] has sent his brown horse Quaker to the country [illegible] during the summer months.

P. C. Barry has sent his black gelding [illegible] to John Rogers', at Fleetwood Park, for a course of training. This young horse is improving in speed very rapidly.

John H. Harbeck has taken his team of trotters to Long Branch.

Harry Hamilton has been rattling up and down Harlem lane lately behind a pair of white-faced trotters that seem to like the fun.

Mr. G. N. Furguson's bay gelding Needle Gun trotted half a mile on the Fleetwood Park track a few days since in 1:21. This horse, it will be remembered, broke his leg last autumn, and by skilful treatment was saved and is now nearly as fast as ever he was.

Robert Brown and his splendid gray gelding M. T. Brennan are again on the road, the horse having entirely recovered from his recent sprain.

Dunn Walton is driving a very fast pair of ponies. It is said they can trot in 2:40 to the pole. They are brown and look well. His Ethan Allen mare, White Stockings, is a "stunner."

Dan Mace is "greasing out" George Palmer. He will have him in order for the fall campaign. Rumors are afloat that Dan has one or two dark ones that he will bring to light at Buffalo and Kalamazoo. One of them is credited with having made a remarkable mile at the Fashion Course in a midnight trial recently.

W. H. Harbeck has turned out his stable of horses and gone to Europe for the summer.

John Olcott, of Cheesebrough place, Fort Washington, has under his charge the stallion Rattler, by Pilot, Jr. This horse has recovered entirely from his lameness and is trotting very fast. Olcott has also Garibaldi, Contraband, Yankee Dan, Jennie Clark, a Hambletonian, by the Clark Vandewater horse, and a number of other well bred ones.

Mr. Lawrence's black and roan team are hard to beat from Jerome Park to the pavements. They are rattlers of true metal.

Sam Truesdell is out every day with either the Doctor, Lew Pettit or Maximilian. They are all hard to beat.

John Briggs' bay gelding Bay George, by Royal George, is a splendid road horse. It is said that he can trot in 2:35. His is a very fine-looking animal and perfectly gentle.

Colonel Russell disclaims the assertions that his horse Czar was pulled in the trot with Heather Bloom, Easton Boy and others at the late trotting meeting at Beacon Park, Boston. The Colonel, we know, has been a hard worker in the cause of reform of abuses on the trotting track for years, and is now a member of the Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association.

TROTTING AT FLEETWOOD PARK.

NEW YORK THIEVES CAPTURED.

Their Operations—How They Were Detected.

Yesterday four notorious New York thieves, named John Hudner, Frank Murtle, Daniel Rooney and Charles Lang, were taken from Long Island City to the Queens County Jail, to await the action of the Grand Jury. A man named John Hayes moved from New York to Long Island City about two months ago. He would loiter about during the day in search of a place easy to be "cracked," and at night his New York confederates would cross the river above Blackwell's Island, and the places designated by Hayes would be robbed before morning. It is estimated that this gang stole over ten thousand dollars' worth from people of the city and vicinity. The goods were taken to New York and in due time were sold. Hayes was cheated out of his part of the spoils, and to be revenged unbosomed himself to Detective Lyman, who apprehended the four parties above named and a man named Daniel Hudner, who negotiated the sales. This latter man was taken to Brooklyn on a habeas corpus by order of Judge Pratt, and while in that city succeeded in making his escape. He told Officer Lyman that, if held, he would disclose the whereabouts of all the stolen property. Each of the four men hold confessed having been in State Prison.

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

The Narragansett, Commander Meade, arrived at Sandy Point, in the Straits of Magellan, June 5, on her way to San Francisco. Despatches dated June 2 have been received from Rear Admiral Lanman, commander of the South Atlantic fleet. The United States flagship Lancaster, Captain J. W. A. Nicholson, was at Rio Janeiro on June 25; all well. The Portsmouth and Wasp were at Montevideo, Uruguay; all well at latest dates. The latter was to proceed up the Paraguay River to Asuncion to convey the United States Minister, Hon. Mr. Stevens.

Ensign Frank C. Birney, son of the late Major General David B. Birney, died at Mount Holly Springs on the 16th inst.

YACHTING.

Fourth General Meeting of the New York Yacht Club.

Classification of Yachts—The Ocean Race Eastward—Ballast, Apportionments, the Annual Cruise and the Wallack Cup.

The New York Yacht Club held its fourth general meeting of the year at Delmonico's, Fifth avenue and Fourteenth street, on Thursday. There were present the owners of a large number of yachts, and the meeting was characterized by general good feeling. Commodore Bennett in the chair.

After the usual preliminary business incident to the meeting had been dispensed with Messrs. Livingston, Center and Krebs were appointed a committee to take into consideration the

in any regatta, so far as dividing them into first and second class schooners and sloops was concerned, and at the same time to consider the number of men as a crew that each yacht should be allowed to carry. This committee will report at the October meeting.

THE OCEAN RACE EASTWARD.

Secretary Minton read a letter from Commodore Heard, of the Eastern Yacht Club, in which that gentleman referred to the contemplated visit of the Club fleet to Boston during the annual cruise, and desired to advise with them as to the better course over which the proposed ocean race of the two clubs from that harbor or the neighboring waters should be sailed. The Secretary was directed to communicate with the Eastern Club, giving as the sentiment of the New York Club that the entire matter be left in the hands of their brother yachtsmen.

BALLAST.

Rule 17 of the sailing regulations, on motion of Rear Commodore Osgood, was so changed as to allow the trimming of a yacht by dead weight up to the time of starting in any race, but not during its progress, and that no ballast or water can be taken in or discharged within twenty-four hours of the time named for any regatta.

APPORTIONMENTS RECALCULATED.

Rule 3 of the sailing regulations, on motion of Mr. Homans, was amended so that a yacht owner may have the apportionment of his yacht recalculated before any regatta, which new apportionment shall be valid, provided that it is certified by the chairman of the regatta committee.

THE ANNUAL CRUISE.

After a little discussion it was resolved that the fleet should rendezvous at Glen Cove on Saturday, August 5, for the annual cruise eastward. In this connection it was also decided that the guests of [illegible] during the cruise should be exempt from [illegible] allotted to each vessel [illegible] number of men

THE WALLACK CUP.

The Club decided to leave the day of proposed race for the Wallack Cup in the hands of Commodore Bennett.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE NEW SCHOONER YACHT RESOLUTE.

Another Addition to the New York Yacht Club Fleet—Her Dimensions in Hull, Spars, Character of Construction, Accommodations and Tonnage.

On Monday next, at six o'clock P. M., the large schooner yacht Resolute, built for Mr. A. S. Hatch, a prominent member of the New York Yacht Club, will be launched from the ship yard of David Carll, at City Island. For months past the attention of the yachting community has been directed to this craft, and now, as the time draws near when she will make her appearance with both the old and new favorites of the club, the interest surrounding her materially increases.

The Resolute is a centre-board, cockpit schooner, modelled in many respects similar to the yacht Vesta, yet deeper and wider, and with much finer lines forward and aft than she possesses. The utmost care has been exercised by her builder, in accordance with instructions, that she should be stanch, durable and comfortable. These requirements are assumed to have been the governing ideas of her owner from the first, and not that they should be sacrificed to speed alone, and to this end the Resolute was constructed, and she will be aptly named, as there are few, if any, abler pleasure crafts afloat. The dimensions of the schooner are as follows:—

	Feet.
Length of keel	101.6
Length on water line	105.0
Length over all	118
Extreme breadth	25.9
Depth of hold	9
Draught of water	8.6

Tonnage, 240 tons, or thereabouts.

FRAME OF THE YACHT.

The frame of the Resolute is of live oak, white oak, white chestnut, hackmatack, red cedar and locust. Her keel, laid in the latter part of April, is of Ohio white oak; her apron and transom of live oak. The stem is in one piece, of white oak; the floors of live oak at each end of trunk, and sided fifteen inches. The ceiling is of yellow pine and the planking of live oak and white oak.

THE DECK

The yacht is built with a trunk cabin, her owner desiring this construction rather than that of a flush deck, because of the additional comfort and ventilation secured. The deck planking is of Susquehanna white pine, clear of knots, three by three inches, and is very handsome. The deck frame is of yellow pine, hackmatack and chestnut, fully kneed off with bosom lodging, and hanging knees of hackmatack. Her frame ballast—about twenty-four tons of lead—is adjusted in position with rubber springs.

THE BOWSPRIT

is permanent, and elegantly finished in the old-fashioned way with carved work.

THE STERN

of the schooner is elliptical, with seven feet rake from rudder head to after side of taffrail. Its finish will be decidedly American in type.

SPARRING.

In sparring the new yacht there is nothing noticeable that is peculiar or extraordinary. The annexed will give an excellent idea of what has been done in this particular:—

Mainmast, 86 feet 9 inches; 21½ inches in partners, 18 inches at bounds; 9 feet masthead, of white pine.

Foremast, 85 feet 6 inches; 22½ inches in partners, 18 inches at bounds; 9 feet masthead, of white pine.

Bowsprit, 25 feet outboard, 13 feet inboard, of white pine.

Mainboom, 72 feet; 13½ inches in the slings, of white pine, with mahogany jaws.

Foreboom, 34 feet; flying jibboom, 16 feet clear of cap; pole, 8 feet 6 inches.

Maingaff, 35 feet; foregaff, 32 feet 6 inches.

Topmasts, 45 feet and 43 feet 6 inches; to be fitted with patent fids.

Her standing rigging is of Italian hemp; the stay, back stays and topping lifts of charcoal wire.

THE ACCOMMODATIONS

of the Resolute will be exceedingly comfortable. The interior arrangements were planned by her owner, and in many respects are novel. The companionway does not lead into the cabin. On either side of this there is a quarter room for guests or the storing of flags and cushions. The cabin is 13 feet 9 inches in length, 14 feet wide and has 7 feet 8 inches head room. Sofas, 2 feet 4 inches wide, extend around and the whole length of the cabin, with lockers at the back. Mahogany, gold, ash-stained and other rich woods will be tastefully blended in the panel work. Mirrors will abound in numbers here, and the ceiling finished in pink and light shades, with just so much of gold as to make the contrast effective. The upholstering of the cabin will be in good taste and in keeping with the surrounding finish. Amidships are six in number, three on either side of the passageway, which is 2 feet 9 inches wide. First on the starboard side is that designed for ladies. It is 8 feet 8 inches long by 10 feet 6 inches wide, and will be finished in mahogany, with bird's-eye maple trimmings. Next is the owner's room, 11 feet by 10 feet 6 inches, which will be finished in black and French walnuts, rosewood, mahogany, white holly and bird's-eye maple. The third stateroom is 9 feet 6 inches by 10 feet 6 inches, and this in finish will be equally fine, but treated differently from the others. These three rooms can be thrown into one when required, making a delightful apartment. On the port side will be three guests' staterooms, 6 feet 4 inches long and 8 feet wide. These are also arranged so as to be communicating, thereby making the ventilation more perfect. The centre skylight opens in part in the starboard staterooms and fret work is placed around the top of each room to insure greater ventilation.

The kitchen, icehouse and officers' rooms are on the port side forward. A large provision room and the cook and steward's quarters are opposite these. The bath tub, placed beneath the floor, is arranged for constant supplies of fresh and salt water.

The yacht is finished with mahogany rail. All skylights, coamings and companionways are of the same material.

Such, in brief, is the new Yacht Resolute, to be launched on Monday. Her owner desired comfort and stability; these are certainly combined in the new craft; and if speed is also found, which is anticipated, she will be a marked pleasure vessel.

A Yacht Club at Constantinople.

[From the Levant Herald, June 21.]

Not a few of our local readers will be glad to learn that a serious effort is at last being made to establish a Constantinople yacht club—this time free of the trammels and restrictions of any "patronage," except that of the members themselves. It is intended that the new club shall be formed on the model of those which have done so much to promote the love of aquatic sports in England and America, with such excellent effects on [illegible] seamanship of both countries. [illegible] the practi[illegible] New York Bay can compare [illegible] the Solent as a yachting ground, and [illegible] the Marmora so much it will be little credit [illegible] nature has done if there be not within it [illegible] Constantinople found at least the nucleus [illegible] energy enough to some way worthy of [illegible] of a yacht squadron in of the promoters of [illegible] waters. A first meeting Monday next, at [illegible] the movement is to be held on [illegible] the Ottoman Bank, when a majority of the [illegible] original members" present will agree on a set of [illegible] regulations and name officers for the current year.

OBITUARY.

Joseph F. Berg, D. D.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Berg, Professor in the Theological Seminary of New Brunswick, N. J., died in that city on Thursday evening. Dr. Berg was born at Grace Hill, Island of Antigua, on June 3, 1812, and was consequently but just past his fifty-ninth year. His parents were missionaries of the Moravian Church in the place of his birth; he was consequently educated in the Moravian faith, up to his twelfth year, at Full Neck, England. He came to the United States in 1825, and studied at Nazareth, Pa., at a Moravian school. As a linguist he had few equals in this country, speaking most modern languages with ease and fluency, while his knowledge of the classics was most remarkable, and at the early age of twenty-one he was Professor of Greek in the Mercersburg College. In 1835 he was ordained to the ministry in the Dutch Reformed Church, and in 1837 was called to the First German Reformed church in Philadelphia, where he attained a national reputation as a preacher. About ten years ago he was called to the chair of didactic and polemic theology in the Theological Seminary of the Dutch Reformed (now Reformed) church, New Brunswick, N. J., which position he held to the time of his death. It is generally considered the most eminent chair in the institution. Dr. Berg was not less celebrated as a writer than as a scholar and preacher. He was constantly engaged in literary labors, bringing out a great number of books and translations from the French and German. His works—over twenty volumes in all—are all on theological subjects, and mainly devoted to discussions of the Papal question. It is claimed that he was more intimately acquainted with Roman theology than any other Protestant clergyman in America, and his works, therefore, have the weight of authority.

Professor John W. S. Hows.

Professor John W. S. Hows, the well-known elocutionist, died in this city yesterday. He was born in London, England, June 21, 1795, but had been in this country over fifty years. Mr. Hows was engaged in mercantile pursuits for some time, but meeting with reverses he devoted his attention to instruction and authorship. He was for some time dramatic critic of the Golden Rule, Figaro, Mirror and Albion. Subsequently he prepared and published his "Practical Elocutionist," "Shakspearian Reader," "Historical Shakspeare," "Golden Leaves" of English and American poetry, "Ladies' Reader," "Ladies' Book of Readings and Recitations," "Junior Ladies' Reader" and "Primary Ladies' Reader," and was also a frequent contributor to the press. Mr. Hows was Professor of Elocution at Columbia [illegible]

SUICIDE IN AN INSANE ASYLUM.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 21, 1871.

Robert Buffum, who murdered Mr. Scaverns, at Newburg, N. Y., last winter, committed suicide on Thursday in his cell, at the State Asylum for Insane Criminals, in this city, by cutting his throat with a razor. He made a barricade with his bedstead to prevent his keeper thwarting him in his design. Dr. Wilkie, the superintendent, tried to narcotize him, but the attempt failed, and Buffum accomplished his purpose while the cell door was being forced.

PROPOSED RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION IN ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, July 21, 1871.

The Rockford (Ill.) Gazette understands that the directors of the Rockford Central Railroad have under consideration proposals of consolidation with the proposed Madison and Portage Railroad, and that it is not improbable they may be accepted. If the consolidation takes place it will thereafter be known as the St. Louis and Duluth Railroad.

OHIO AND MISSISSIPPI RAILROAD.

CINCINNATI, July 21, 1871.

Active preparations are being made along the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad for a change of gauge, which will be accomplished throughout the entire line on Sunday next. It is reported that narrow gauge trains will run on Monday morning.

THE MAILS IN ARKANSAS.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 21, 1871.

None of the new mail contractors on routes leading from this city have made their appearance yet. A special mail agent is here endeavoring to make contracts for carrying the mails. Great complaints are made on account of failures.

FELONIOUS ASSAULT.

Timothy Clifton, of No. 18 Roosevelt street, last night got into an altercation with his wife and struck her on the head with a club, inflicting a severe wound. The assailant was arrested and the woman sent to Park Hospital.

Sarah Murray, of 22 Cherry street, last night struck James Kelly, a boarder at the above house, with an axe, breaking his arm. They were both arrested and locked up in the Fourth precinct station house.

ROASTED ALIVE.

Foul Play Suspected.

In the case of the old man Patrick J. Rafferty, who was roasted alive on Sunday morning, his relatives have reason to suspect foul play, and have induced the county physician to withdraw the certificate of burial previously given and to order an inquest. This takes place to-day.
